M'ARTHUR CAPTURES MUBO

JONES, WALLACE BOTH LOSE

ALLIES SMASH TO GUN RANGE OF SALAMAUA

Knock Down 45 of Enemy's Planes.

ALLIED HDQ. IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 16 [Friday]—(AP).—A big land victory — capture of Mubo, New Guinea, with the destruction of 950 Japanese — and a sensational air triumph, the shooting down in the Solomons of 45 enemy planes out of a formation of nearly 80—were announced today by Gen. MacArthur.

The seizure of Mubo, made possible by a highly secretive operation involving infiltration behind the Japanese hill positions in the jungles of northeast New Guinea, opened the way for an advance upon the enemy air base of Salamaua less than eight air miles to the north.

Only Three Planes Lost.

The air victory, scored over Rendova Island not far from the scene of the land fighting for possession of the enemy air base on Munda, was described as one of the greatest ever fought in that area. Only three American fighters were lost as they piled into a formation of 27 medium bombers and between 50 and 60 Zeros. The enemy losses brought to more than 300 the number of planes shot down since the present offensive opened June 30.

There was good news from Munda itself, with United States jungle fighters reported stealthily advancing on that key base in the central Solomons. Once the Japanese tried a counter-attack. It was thrown back.

"The Mubo bastion has been captured," the communique reported.

"United States forces, after landing and consolidating a beachhead at Nassau bay on June 30, moved inland up the valley of the Bitoi river, effecting a junction with Australian units in Buigap creek at dusk on July 10.

Cut Jap Communications.

"This move, effected in complete secrecy, operated to cut the enemy's line of communication between Mubo and Salamaua and isolate his garrisons on Observation and Green hills.

"Following this enveloping move and in coördination with attacks on elements in the rear areas, Australian forces attacked from Lababia ridge and Garrison hill and destroyed the enemy defenses on Observation hill, the Pimple, and Green hill.

"Our ground forces have now cleared the Mubo area of all organized enemy resistance and are pressing on to Koiatum. Approximately 950 enemy troops were destroyed. Our losses were light."

Today's communique said that Japanese planes had made a new attack on the Nassau bay area, but that it was without effect.

U. S. Destroyer Sunk.

Today's communique also disclosed that after the second battle of the Kula gulf, July 13, in which a Japanese cruiser and from three to five destroyers were sunk by units of the United States navy, the United States destroyer Gwin was damaged and sank under tow.

It was the third American warship disclosed to have gone down during the present Solomons warfare. The light cruiser Helena was lost in the first battle of the Kula gulf, in which between nine and 13 enemy cruisers and destroyers were sunk, and the night before the battle the United States destroyer Strong was sunk while shelling enemy positions on New Georgia.

The Rendova air fighting was thus described:

"Our fighters intercepted and dispersed an enemy formation of 27 bombers and 50 to 60 Zeros shortly after noon, shooting down 15 bombers and 30 fighters. Three of our planes failed to return."

THOMPSON TELLS HOW CHUTISTS FOUGHT IN SICILY

PLAN BROADCAST TODAY.
John Thompson has returned from the Sicilian front to North Africa to make a special radio report on the progress of the Mediterranean campaign over W-G-N and the Mutual network. It is hoped to put the broadcast on at 10 o'clock this morning.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE TROOPS IN SICILY [Delayed].—Spearheading the invasion of Sicily, an American parachute troop combat team has just completed a brilliant and tough mission, fulfilling the expectations of this, the largest airborne combat operation ever attempted by the United States army.

Since late Friday night, when they landed by the light of a waning moon, they have been fighting crack German and Italian troops, killing and capturing hundreds and hundreds. They have fought as small guerrilla bands, attacking pillboxes and strong points with grenades, anti-tank weapons and knives, and they have fought as a small but rugged team against the Hermann Goering Grenadiers and tanks.

They have taken rather heavy losses but they never gave ground. And it was largely thru their slashing, demoralizing attacks on strongly prepared enemy positions that the advance of the much larger seaborne force, coming in behind them, was accomplished in the area around Vittoria.

All Worthy of Medals.

It would take a book to tell the full story of this operation and it will be days before all details are even learned, for almost every man who jumped did a job worthy of an army medal. But this much at least can be told by a correspondent who jumped with them to make his second combat jump, and this by night.

Your correspondent emerged from his tangled shroud with a wrenched knee, skinned knuckles and bruises, and what was not to appear until later—a cracked rib.

Actually this mission started under inauspicious circumstances, for the entire team was dropped by troop carriers 30 to 50 miles from the planned objectives. Instead of jumping inland in front of the center force to cut off enemy reënforcements, destroy strong points, and otherwise soften up the seaborne landing, as was planned, the entire group of paratroops jumped in front of another force farther out.

Armada Arrives Over Sea.

ALLIED ARMIES GAIN IN SICILY; REPULSE NAZIS

Yanks Win Air Field in 7 Mile Push.

CHICAGOANS IN ACTION.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15 (AP).—American troops plunged seven miles deeper into Sicily's mountains tonight as British coastal armies struck toward the Catania plain, where allied parachutists and glider troops dropped behind the enemy's lines for what is expected to be a major battle.

The Americans under Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. captured another airdrome and some important heights in a thrust which reached the Vizzini area, 25 miles inland from Augusta, the British base for the drive on Catania to the north.

Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British-Canadian 8th army was fighting along the coast after repulsing a stiff axis counter-attack which temporarily broke British lines early yesterday to reach Augusta.

Advance Four Miles.

By noon yesterday the British had ejected the Germans and went on to take Brucoli, four miles north of Augusta. Their next objective was Lentini, on the edge of the plain 13 miles below Catania. Another force aimed inland at Gerbini, a key air field city.

Lentini and near-by Carlentini already were smoldering from heavy British naval bombardments and a dispatch from an Associated Press naval correspondent said allied airborne troops had landed on the plain above Lentini.

[An NBC correspondent, in a report from a British cruiser off the coast, said the British had captured both Lentini and Carlentini, and Catania had been shelled heavily.]

A hard fight was expected to begin at Lentini, if it had not already begun, as axis troops, including units of the Nazi Hermann Goering division, strove to check the British sweep on Catania.

Make Large Gains.

A headquarters communique said "considerable gains" had been made by the land armies in the last 24 hours and, presumably referring to the fight for Catania plain, it added that British and American airborne and parachute troops had carried out "successful operations."

Part of the Goering division already had been badly mauled by the Americans in their inland strikes from Gela toward Caltagirone and Vizzini when the British 8th army suddenly found itself attacked by units of the same outfit.

Line Held by Yanks.

Capture of Catania would set the trigger for a gigantic trap of all axis forces in Sicily. The town controls roads running into the interior and would leave the axis troops only one major escape exit, the coastal road running along northern Sicily toward Messina, 55 miles above Catania.

The Americans went forward from the western horn of the allied front thru hilly and difficult country to a strategic area protecting the British flank and at the same time threatening the enemy's rear if he offers battle on the Catania plain.

In the middle the Americans near Niscemi are threatening Caltigirone while to the west, a dispatch disclosed, Riesi and Campobello have been taken. They are about 15 miles northeast and 12 miles north, respectively, from the beachhead at Licata.

Pin Big Medal on Little Yank of Spud Pile

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

A U. S. BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 15.—Life had its ups and downs today for Staff Sgt. Maynard Smith. One minute he was on the spud pile doing disciplinary kitchen police and almost before you could say European theater of operations he found Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson fastening the blue ribbon of the congressional medal of honor around his neck.

Today the quiet Caro, Mich., lad with the mischievous gleam in his eye is the number one hero in these parts. What is more, if they return him to the potato pile for taking a little French leave, he will get a salute from every officer and man who passes by up to and including four star generals. That is one of the honors that goes with his medal which has been awarded only once before in this theater and that time posthumously.

Hero of the Sky.

On May 1 "the little guy with the big medal," as Smith is now known, was on his first mission, a raid on the Nazi U-boat pens at St. Nazaire. He was serving as ball turret gunner when his Flying Fortress was hit and set afire.

Smith climbed into the body of the plane and fought the fire singlehanded, while three of his mates, believing the situation hopeless, bailed out. Smith used all the fire extinguishers and water bottles aboard and finally, in desperation, beat out the flames with his hands.

He also administered first aid to a wounded crewman and leaped from side to side of the plane, manning first one waist gun and then the other, to fight off Focke-Wulfs that were pressing home their attack on the burning bomber.

Lone Fight Saves Crew.

Smith's heroic 90 minute battle against fire and Nazi fighters saved the lives of the pilot, the co-pilot, the bombardier, the nose gunner, the top turret gunner, and the tail gunner, and enabled them to bring the ship home, his mates said.

Today the little man—he is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 140 pounds and is 32 years old—nervously moistened his lips and clenched and unclenched his fists as a distinguished group of officers headed by Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, United States army commander in Europe, and Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the 8th American air force, paid tribute to his bravery on the field in the shadow of his Flying Fortress.

The band played, the troops passed in review, and a squadron of Fortresses flew overhead. It was a great day for Sgt. Smith, late of the potato pile.

ALLIED CHARTER NO BAR ON BASES, BRITAIN HOLDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 15.—The Atlantic Charter leaves the allied nations free to hold indefinitely any key point they consider necessary to preserve peace after the war, Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee told a cheering house of commons today.

There were further cheers when Comdr. Oliver Locker-Lampson, Conservative, sought assurance that, "if and when we take Heligoland ["Gibraltar" in the North sea]," it would not be returned to Germany, but Attlee did not reply.

Richard Stokes, Laborite, suggested that it was time the government clarified the charter, regarding which, he said, "considerable dubiety exists in the minds of a great number of people." Attlee replied that he thought Stokes "exaggerates the number of his companions."

REPORT ROBERT ABOARD WARSHIP OFF MARTINIQUE

ALGIERS, Algeria, July 15 (AP).—The French committee of national liberation announced tonight that Adm. Georges Robert has left Martinique and is living on a warship offshore.

[The island was recently turned over to the French committee at Robert's request. Henri-Etienne Hoppenot has been designated as plenipotentiary to take over the government from the pro-Vichy Robert, bringing the island over to the allied side.]

Fathers Get Draft Respite Until October

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—Fathers living with and supporting children born before last September 15 got today their first official and positive assurance that there will be no need to issue a general draft call for them before October at the very earliest.

Classes 1-A and 1-A-O [men who can be used for noncombatant service] already contain enough men who will actually get into uniform to fill draft calls for July, August, and September, Maj. Emett Solomon of the selective service man power division told reporters.

40 Pct. Being Rejected.

That will be true, he said, altho some of the 1,566,000 men in these classes will be reclassified on appeal and many more will be rejected by physicians and psychiatrists, who are currently turning back 40 per cent of those examined.

Solomon declined to comment directly on the induction of fathers of children conceived before Pearl Harbor or predict when it would begin, but data he presented indicated that the drafting of their class might be delayed past Oct. 1.

Approximately 50,000 of the 90,000 youths newly turned 18 years of age each month can be counted upon for induction, he said, adding 150,000 to the pool of men who can be taken thru September.

Half Already in Service.

On the darker side of the picture, Solomon pointed out that of the total of 22,184,000 men aged 18 thru 37, more than half already have either been taken into military service or rejected and placed in 4-F.

Man power officials said there are now 9,300,000 men and women in uniform and this number will grow to 10,800,000 by Jan. 1 and to 11,300,000 by next July 1 as the navy expands by some 500,000.

Indict Engineer in Deaths of 13 in Train Derailment

Camden, N. J., July 15 [Special].—Christopher Pitcock, 48 year old engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad train that was derailed at Belair, N. J., on May 23, was indicted by the Camden county grand jury today on charges of manslaughter in the deaths of 13 persons killed in the wreck. Pitcock was accused of operating the train at an excessive rate of speed for the section of the track where the derailment occurred.

Russians Gain 28 Mi. in New Drive on Orel

MOSCOW, Russia, July 15 (AP).—Two Russian armies have begun a powerful counter-offensive in the Orel sector against a stalled German military machine, smashing or routing 10 German divisions in three days, recapturing 110 towns, and advancing as much as 28 miles, a special bulletin announced tonight.

One of the larger towns recaptured was Staritsa, which is about 60 miles northwest of Orel, and another was Klen, about 40 miles from Orel, in the same area as Staritsa.

A vast wheeling movement north and east of Orel threatened to pinch off that German bastion, which the Nazis used as a base in their own futile offensive begun July 5.

54,000 Germans Lost.

More than 12,000 Germans have been killed and 2,000 captured as "our troops north and east of Orel, after fierce counter-attacks, passed onto the offensive," the communique said.

Thus the casualties inflicted on the Germans in the 11 days of battle in the center amounted, on the basis of official Russian statements, to more than 54,000 men killed or captured; 3,068 tanks destroyed or captured, and 1,636 planes shot down.

These gains were announced:

An advance of 12 to 15 miles on an 18 mile front in a break-thru against stubborn German resistance east of Orel.

Belgorod Attacks Repulsed.

East of Orel, the Russians occupied more than 60 populated places, at least eight of which were described by the communique as "large." Soviet troops routed the German 56th, 262d and 293d infantry divisions and the 5th and 18th tank divisions. Heavy losses also were reported inflicted on the German 112th, 208th and 211th infantry divisions and the 25th and 36th motorized divisions.

The Russians were said to have destroyed 109 enemy tanks, 294 planes and 47 guns of various caliber and captured at least 40 tanks, 210 guns, 187 mortars, 99 machine guns, and 26 supply dumps.

German tank and infantry attacks in the Belgorod sector were repulsed today, Moscow announced, while Russian troops attacked the enemy in the area between Orel and Kursk.

Grim and Knife Wielding Goums Join Allies in Sicily

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15.—French troops fighting with the allies in Sicily are Goums, it was announced today. The Goums are Moroccan hill fighters who prefer knives to guns and are formidable at close quarters. Goums did well toward the end of the Tunisian campaign and should prove valuable in Sicily's mountainous terrain.

F.D.R. KILLS BEW AND CURBS RFC; GAGS ALL AIDS

Crowley Gets Jobs of 2 in Cabinet.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—The battle of Washington between Vice President Henry A. Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones was brought to an abrupt end tonight by the third man in the ring—President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a caustic frame of mind, cracked down on both Jones and Wallace, and took them both completely out of the field of foreign economic affairs. He summarily abolished the board of economic warfare headed by Wallace, and deprived Jones of all his foreign purchase powers as chief of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

See F. D. R. First or Resign.

In an executive order, the President created a new agency, the office of economic warfare, headed by Leo T. Crowley, the alien property custodian, and head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, to take over the duties of the BEW and the subsidiaries under Jones which are engaged in foreign purchases. Then, moving to curb disputes among government officials in war time, he sent identical letters to heads of government agencies telling them flatly that they are gagged for the duration if they wish to keep their jobs.

Any official involved in a disagreement with the head of another agency, decreed Mr. Roosevelt, must first submit the dispute to him or to War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes or resign forthwith. Specifically, he said that any official who decides to submit a controversy to the newspapers must send his resignation to the White House at the same time.

Order Is Unprecedented.

This order was believed to be unprecedented in United States history. And the letters which the President sent to Jones and Wallace were said to carry the sharpest public rebukes for members of a Presidential cabinet within memory.

The battle had its inception last month when Wallace charged Jones, as head of the RFC, with holding up funds and otherwise obstructing the program of the BEW to which was entrusted the job of arranging for the purchase and development of strategic materials.

F. D. R. STATEMENT

"The President today issued an executive order to unify the policy of the various administrative agencies engaged in different phases of foreign economic matters. The order also relieves both the Vice President and the secretary of commerce of any responsibilities or duties in this field and transfers such responsibilities and duties to other hands.

"1. The present board of economic warfare, of which the Vice President is chairman, is abolished.

"2. All of its powers, functions, and duties are transferred to a new office of economic warfare, headed by a director. Mr. Leo T. Crowley, has been appointed such director.

Provides for Funds.

"3. The United States Commercial corporation, the Rubber Development corporation, the Petroleum Reserve corporation, the Export-Import Bank of Washington, and all the other subsidiaries of the Reconstruction Finance corporation which are now engaged in financing foreign purchases and imports, are transferred from the department of commerce and from the Reconstruction Finance corporation of the new office of economic warfare to be administered by the new director.

CHARGES BRITISH REFUSED TO TELL OF CANADIAN AID

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 15.—Had it not been for the personal instructions of President Roosevelt, at the urging of Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, there would have been no reference in the original announcement of the Sicilian invasion to the participation of Canadian troops.

This was disclosed here today by King, as he told of the efforts he had to make to get recognition for the Canadians immediately upon the invasion taking place.

"For reasons of security, military authorities in Britian stated there should be no reference made to Canadians being involved in the operations in Sicily," King said.

British and Yanks Named.

"The information I had indicated that the original announcement would only state that British and United States forces had attacked Sicily. It had also been mentioned that Gen. Eisenhower would make a statement to the French people that Anglo-American forces had attacked Sicily.

"As soon as that came to my notice, I communicated with British authorities that Canadians should be specifically mentioned. I pressed very strongly the announcement should name British, United States, and Canadian forces as participating, and that any announcement by Gen. Eisenhower should include Canadians. I did that two days before the announcements were made."

King said he communicated with the Canadian high commissioner in London, Vincent Massey, and with military headquarters in Britain.

"I could get no satisfactory answer," he continued, "and I was left in the position that any announcement I made would have to be Saturday night, 24 hours after the event.

Went to Roosevelt.

"On Thursday, realizing how serious the whole matter really was, that Canadians would not be mentioned in these communications of Gen. Eisenhower and the British government, I got in direct touch, thru one of our officials in Washington, with President Roosevelt.

"I told him I thought it an extraordinary thing that a communication would come from Gen. Eisenhower without mention of Canadian troops. The President said at once he agreed with me, and that he would see that Gen. Eisenhower was instructed to include Canadians in any announcement made. Gen. Eisenhower was so instructed."

King then said that in the original announcement from headquarters in Washington and in Gen. Eisenhower's statement to the French people Canadians were mentioned. But, even tho he told authorities in London that President Roosevelt was instructing Gen. Eisenhower to include Canadian troops, he could get no release from London to make an announcement here, he added.

Thanks U. S. Authorities.

But when he heard after midnight, Friday, the announcement from Washington, King said he "felt the obligations I was under were no longer binding, and I immediately made the announcement I hoped to make Friday evening in commons." He thanked the American authorities "for making the announcement when they did."

ALLIED FLYERS KEEP UP RAIDS ON SHIPS AND RAILS IN BURMA

NEW DELHI, India, July 15 (AP).—American B-25 Mitchell medium bombers sustained the allied assault on Japanese installations in Burma yesterday, hitting railroad yards, barracks, and warehouses at Myingyan and Meiktila, a United States army air force communique said today.

At much-bombed Myingyan, 55 miles southwest of Mandalay, further damage was reported to tracks and warehouses, while at Meiktila, 75 miles south of Mandalay, direct hits were scored on enemy barracks, buildings, railroad sidings, and among storage sheds, the bulletin said.

British Blenheim bombers joined the steady destruction of enemy equipment with an attack on a Japanese occupied village in the Mawlaik area, while R. A. F. Beaufighters were reported to have destroyed two large steamers and an oil barge on the Irrawaddy.

YANK WARSHIP BLASTS KISKA FOR 4TH TIME

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—The navy reported today that an American light warship bombarded Japanese defense positions on Kiska Island Wednesday, making the fourth surface attack on the enemy base in eight days.

Meanwhile, observers were asserting that the time for an American offensive against Kiska Island is growing short. Responsible opinion here is that if the strategic base is to be recaptured from the enemy this year the weather makes it essential that operations begin soon.

The alternative to an attack this year is to let the Japanese suffer the ravages of another rough Aleutians winter with few if any supplies reaching them.

YANKS FIND SEA WORSE FOE THAN ITALIAN TROOPS

It Smashes Them Hard, but Enemy Doesn't.

BY JOHN A. MOROSO III.

NEAR SCOGLITTI, Sicily, July 10 [Delayed]—(AP).—Our force, a small part of the allied troops who invaded Sicily smashed into this medieval land in a rough sector defended by quavering Italians who never fired the machine guns that could have wiped us out.

The pounding surf on the rocky shore claimed more American lives than the enemy in our initial assault wave which went in bravely despite a lack of combat experience. Later the enemy got tougher and there was a welter of blood, mostly Italian.

Rifle Fire Banned at Start.

I was aboard an assault transport that came all the way from the United States. Our story is a tribute to American boys who knew how to fight and die bravely. Their orders were to go in with bayonets and grenades. Rifle fire was taboo until daylight and there was to be no turning back.

As darkness clouded the Mediterranean the ship rolled and pitched in a gale. As our lads began loading heavy packs and weapons onto their backs the stars came out, but many seasick soldiers had to be helped with their packs.

Naval Barrage Begins.

After what seemed an eternity we squeezed into a landing boat and shoved off. At 3:05 a. m., when a light signal told us the assault was on, our naval escort began spouting flame and destruction shoreward in a fantastic barrage. The night became hideous with the thunder of guns and the whistle of shells.

Altho we still could not see the shore, some one let the ramp down, yelled "Jump for it," and the men with heavy packs slid into the water. Before my turn came I heard men screaming in the merciless turmoil of huge waves. There were continuous screams in the darkness of: "Help, I'm drowning," but the victims could not be found. Most of the boys who reached the shore had lost their rifles and all were chilled and sick, but they crawled toward the enemy. There was no turning back now.

Capture Machine Gun Nests.

Shots rang out and we lay still. Then we heard American voices and the rush of feet. We rushed blindly forward and found three Italians standing near a machine gun nest with their hands high. We herded them into a trench and found another machine gun nest nearby but learned the rest of the garrison had fled.

Then a colonel arrived and made us spread out to await dawn. Shots rang out. Bullets whistled. Overhead, till dawn, praying prisoners came in with grimy Yanks who had seized Italian rifles as weapons.

Visitors at The Tribune War Show

Nun Studies Gun

Eighty nuns from De Paul university summer schools were among the more than 8,300 visitors yesterday at the Tribune-army ordnance show, being held in Nathan Hale court, Tribune Tower lobby, and the lower level area south of the Tower.

One of the nuns, Sister Mary Angela of Holy Family of Nazareth, South Bend, Ind., climbed into the seat of the 90 mm. ack-ack gun, said she'd like to learn how to shoot it, and listened attentively as Sgt. John Johnston explained the weapon's operations.

Visitors also included numerous well known Chicagoans, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Spencer, Mrs. Orville Taylor, and Mrs. W. H. Rennie. They were given a ride in the war show's amphibious jeep, under the guidance of Lt. W. A. Morey.

YANK PRISONERS OF ITALIANS AT RAGUSA FREED

[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN SICILY, July 15.—Two American flyers, the first Italian held prisoners released by Yank invasion forces, were found lying wounded in a hospital in Ragusa.

They were 1st Sgt. Allen B. Huckabee of Temple, Tex., 43 years old, who holds the title of the oldest combat man in the United States air force, and Technical Sgt. David Fleming of Jackson, Mich., formerly of Detroit. The former has 11 bullet wounds, the latter five.

They were captured when their Flying Fortress, raiding the Comiso air field, was shot down. Three of their fellow crew members were killed, including 2d Lt. Allen J. Ewolt of Iowa, the co-pilot.

WOMAN FOUND HANGED.

Mrs. Philomina Malina, 72 years old, a widow, was found hanged yesterday in the basement of the home at 2301 South 59th court, Cicero, where she was housekeeper.

ROUNDS UP 150 ITALIANS WITH GUNS OF PLANE

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES IN SICILY, July 10 [Delayed]—(AP).—The war's latest Sgt. York of the air force is Lt. [j. g.] Paul E. Coughlin, an American naval aviator. Coughlin captured 150 Italian soldiers in a unique maneuver today near Scoglitti.

Flying his slow scout plane over the sand hills, Coughlin spotted Italians manning pillboxes in the path of the advancing Americans. He dropped some bombs and the Italians, instead of taking cover, ran into the open with their hands up.

Coughlin circled until he saw an advanced patrol. He fired his machine guns at the rear of the Italians, forcing them to run toward the Americans—like a shepherd herding sheep—until the Yanks arrived and took over the prisoners.

BOY ON BICYCLE KILLED.

Rockford, Ill., July 15 [Special].—Howard Robert Akins, 15 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Akins, was killed today when his bicycle crashed into a bus on U. S. route 51, north of Rockford.

A SICILIAN TOWN FALLS—AND HERE IS WHAT'S NEXT

Bury Dead, Find Food, and Restore Order.

BY ALEXANDER CLIFFORD.
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

SOUTHERN SICILY, JULY 14 [Delayed].—This is how any Sicilian small town gets back onto its feet after the allies occupy it.

At first there is chaos. Every house is shuttered and barred. There may be vehicles and tanks smoldering in the streets. There are little heaps of shell cases in the gutters, and the streets are strewn with paper, straw and filth. Half the inhabitants have fled to the country. The rest are barricaded inside their houses.

A few cowed, fascinated people creep timidly out into the streets. You get hold of one of them and send for the mayor. Soon a quiet little man, unshaven and dressed in a shapeless ersatz suit, comes in bowing and flashing his gold teeth in a sickly smile.

Bury the Dead First.

First there is the matter of corpses. The bodies of enemy soldiers and perhaps civilians, too, killed in bombing and shelling and fighting, still are lying around. They must be buried.

The mayor agrees. He calls in a few shabby, unshaven friends who have gaudily painted mule carts. You send them off with a gang of Italian prisoners to bury the dead.

Then you turn to the water supply. Finally the mayor admits there is an old reservoir they used to use when he was a boy. It should be possible to fix it up again. So you send a party of engineers to look at it. Soon you have the water flowing from the fountains and pumps in the public places and the population comes out with saucepans and huge earthenware crocks to carry some home.

Food Question Next.

Then you turn to the food question. You call together millers and bakers for a conference to try to get the manufacture of bread and macaroni going again.

Then you stick up an allied proclamation in the main square. The peasant women throw up their hands in despair at the prospect of mathematical calculations which the new currency regulations will involve.

But gradually it is settling down. Townspeople take down shutters and open front doors.

JACK THOMPSON TELLS HOW YANK CHUTISTS WON

transport planes flying in perfect formation. The terrain looked unfamiliar to the team commander, a colonel from Mount Carmel, Pa., but a red light flashes from the pilot controls. The red light meant that we would be over our objective in a few minutes.

We had been standing for several minutes in our heavy parachutes, the soldiers weighted down with loads of ammunition, guns, and demolitions and this reporter sagging under his own load of non-combatant equipment.

The minutes passed quickly. The green jump light flickered, there was a rush down the aisle toward the door and in a moment we were hurtling thru space. Then there was the snap of shoulders as the 'chute opened.

A brilliant glare illuminated the ground revealing an olive grove instead of the expected wheat field. For a moment most of us thought that ground troops had sent up flares and were opening fire. Then the sickening realization came that the flare was from one of our transports which had broken in two and had burst into flames.

The next moment we were landing.

Lands in Tree.

Thirty feet from the ground the oscillation swung my body horizontal as I smashed thru an olive tree and then to the ground. It was a good landing, all things considered. The others didn't fare as well.

That night we went prowling about in small groups, trying to reach some ground that we could recognize. Before dawn as it turned out later, every one realized we had landed in the wrong locality and we had to check to find out in what part of southern Sicily we were. Then we started a general movement to the northwest toward our original objective.

Many men jumped into the fight right away, landing on machine gun nests or pillboxes. Others soon found their hands full as they ran into Italian strong points along the coast or farther inland along strange highways.

Drive Gunners from Posts.

We began to lose men, but not many, as the tough, wily troopers rushed the pillboxes. These emplacements were well designed with three foot cement walls, slits commanding all approaches, 47 millimeter guns and machine guns, and a great deal of wire.

But the troopers had come to kill and they did. Their anti-tank weapons and grenades drove the gunners from the slits of the pillboxes to be rushed. Well aimed Garand rifle fire often accomplished the same purpose and within a short while each pillbox surrendered its load of Italians or a few Germans.

Our own group by daylight had increased, including this correspondent and two medical officers, also unarmed, who had been "sweated out" in the dark hours together, to 25 assorted troopers.

Won't Forget the Day.

Our executive officer had joined up with us and at his command we moved off in column, with flanking scouts, intending to swing north around Vittoria. That was a day we won't soon forget, particularly this reporter, who had seldom walked more than two miles at a time at home.

The Sicilian countryside was beautiful in its green and yellow colors. Most of the natives greeted us in friendly fashion as we passed, offering wine, water, or bread. We trudged along under a hot sun, over plowed fields, thru vineyards, grain stubble and cane brakes, and along dusty limestone roads until we got to the outskirts of Vittoria in the morning.

My typewriter, a second hand portable weighing at least 15 pounds, had been safely dropped in a parachute bundle and recovered. Under the command of a sturdy sergeant major we had gotten the load this far.

Attacked by Italians.

Just as we reached the outskirts of the town which we learned contained an Italian garrison, snipers opened up on our scouts a few yards ahead of me. We beat a hasty withdrawal behind a stone fence and there my typewriter was left hidden among the rocks—later to be stolen while the troopers fought back and then withdrew to a point south around Vittoria.

It was march, march, march all afternoon and part of the night until we made a bivouac. A parachutist carries no blankets or clothing other than his jump suit, but despite the chilliness of this country we slept and at dawn were off again.

Far out of town we encountered our colonel and a small party preparing to attack the enemy holding the hill up a road 29 kilometers [about 18 miles] out of Gela.

Our own group had increased in force. It fought a hard battle to accomplish its original mission.

Attack Hill.

Despite the smallness of his force the colonel went into position on the lower hill in the orchard and then began working thru the tall grass, gnarled little trees and vineyards.

The armored grenadiers—for that is what the opposition proved to be—fought back with their fast firing machine guns, mausers, artillery, and mortars.

Our first rush shoved the enemy back up and over the hill altogether. He outnumbered us then about three to one. The troopers had him on the run, but he came back strong with more artillery fire and then tanks, not only Mark IV's, but his huge Mark VI. Tiger tanks mounting 88 mm. guns in the turret.

The next hour was our worst. Every one expected an attack by the tanks in force and it looked as if there was a good chance that we would be overrun. The colonel had sent word by a runner to task force headquarters, saying:

"If you want this position held we must have more fire power. But whatever happens, we aren't moving off this hill."

Command Post Under Fire.

He and his staff were dug into foxholes while the command post was under heavy fire. One staff member, Capt. A. W. Ireland of Baltimore took 10 men to the right flank with orders to hold at all costs. Another held the left flank.

We waited, this reporter being some 100 yards to the rear sheltered by a culvert while the roar of enemy tank engines grew louder.

Out in front the parachutists kept up a constant fire. The crews knocked out two Mark IV.'s, but other crews were brought up. One youngster after capturing a small Italian tank similar to the British Bren gun carrier charged off in it with the avowed purpose of "scaring those blanks." A direct hit killed him.

Then the colonel called on his last hope and ordered three available howitzers wheeled up for direct fire. I saw one gun come up this hill into position.

One trooper rode its barrel while others muscled the piece up the slope to a ridge beside a small white stone house. The tanks began registering hits all around the gun almost immediately, but with the coolness of veterans these men placed their gun. They opened fire at 1,800 yards, knocking out two tanks.

By this time higher headquarters had brought up some 105s which were firing rapidly and the tank attack was stopped. By evening more troopers had arrived and the colonel ordered a counter-attack in order to recover our dead and wounded. Then, like in the last minutes of a Hollywood ending, came our Gen. Sherman tanks and some half-tracks towing anti-tank guns. You could hear the parachute troopers' cheers even above the clatter of the tanks.

At 8:10 p. m. our tanks opened fire and we charged in two waves while the Germans replied with intense mortar fire and sweeping machine gun fire. Overhead their Messerschmitts prowled to observe or strafe.

Bullets Whiz By.

Ricocheting bullets sang their beelike song of death past my culvert while shell fragments whirled thru the air. Half an hour later it was quiet. And in the gloom of the gathering night our men came back to their lines while the tanks withdrew, having destroyed from the rear a hugh Tiger tank.

We counted many dead and wounded, but it was a victory beyond question.

The attack had driven the enemy off his hill back thru the village and he had abandoned tons of equipment. In fact, reconnaissance later showed he retreated completely from this sector.

As a result the combat team of this task force which had been held up by the enemy's strong point was able to push on thru in the same manner as the parachutists' attack on pillboxes and the rear areas had enabled the combat team on the southern flank to advance.

Navy Shells Foe's Guns.

There was another contributing element. The enemy's huge pillboxes and strong points protecting high ground from the west had, during the height of the battle, come under fire of heavy naval guns and one of our warships.

Fire of these guns was directed by radio from two young naval ensigns who had jumped with us and who had been out in front in the wrost fighting all day.

That was yesterday, and today the men are resting, reorganizing, and often eating for the first time. You find during the fierce throb of battle that hunger is nonexistent, but it comes back once you've had a chance to relax.

QUIET, BATTLE IS OVER

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE TROOPS IN SICILY—[Delayed].—It's quiet today, oddly quiet, in the cool shade of our Sicilian orchard. The noise of battle has passed and overhead is a Spitfire patrol which appeared for the first time yesterday, replacing what seemed to be the ever present enemy fighters and bombers.

In this strange and unaccustomed quiet you glance thru the grove at tired men improving the sand slit-trenches or cleaning their guns, and you marvel again at the ability and stamina of the American soldier, particularly these airborne soldiers. In fancy they might be a band of Robin Hood's men bivouacking in Sherwood forest, their olive green jump suits, often camouflaged with darker dapples of green, completing the picture. But these men are an even tougher breed.

They Distinguished Themselves.

You have just seen them in their first combat. They parachuted thru the night into axis strong points. They battled their way along the coast and inland, fighting as guerrillas, and then, drawn together into a small combat team and reenforced with tanks and artillery, they fought as well as any Yanks have ever fought.

It was their first fight, but you would have thought they were old hands at it. Some mistakes naturally were made, but these shock troops distinguished themselves brilliantly.

Dropped as they were in this operation, they made forced marches, lugging all their heavy equipment and sometimes managing to scouge some extra transport.

The task force, which they aided, was able to provide only a few jeeps and trucks for a limited time. The industrious parachute troops have been coming up to this area in everything from captured Italian tankettes, trucks, hearses, and bicycles to peasant carts, sedans, motorcycles, horses, and jackasses. They had to appoint a stable officer and establish a picket line when 30 jackasses appeared.

Rations and water are an ever-present problem, as well as the evacuation of the wounded from the busy frontline aid stations, where medical officers and first-aid men worked long hours to save the lives of both Yankee and axis soldiers.

And the fact that we always had food and water as well as ammunition and other vital supplies was due almost entirely to the ingenuity of the combat team's supply officer, Maj. Edward Kaj, from Hamtramck, Mich. No request seemed to be beyond his power to fulfill. His supply problems came later. For the first 24 hours, like every other officer, he was fighting with a squad going to the northwest, near Vittoria. Pillboxes became his specialty and Kaj was happy.

Another group of six parachutists, later augmented to 14 and headed by Lt. Richard Janney, 26, of Baltimore, Md., and Sgt. Carl Hearn, 25, of Columbus, O., knocked off half a dozen pill boxes along the coast, taking 250 prisoners. Sometimes our men were wounded or killed, but more often it was the enemy.

Tells Some Experiences.

There was the case of Pvt. Robert Games of Norfolk, Va., a clerk in the headquarters company. He should be dead. Attacking a pillbox, Games crept in close when the enemy fired 70 rounds and then pitched three hand grenades at him, knocking him unconscious. He awoke inside the pillbox, stripped naked. Half an hour later the Americans attacked again and destroyed the pillbox, killing all the Italians, but he was not scratched.

Sometimes our men did not take many prisoners, after rescuing ours and finding them naked or otherwise mistreated.

Then there was Pvt. Leonard Rosenthal, 28, of 1221 South Independence blvd., Chicago. Rosenthal blew the roof off a pillbox, wounding three Italians. One came out with a white flag and then started firing. Rosenthal killed him and the remaining two surrendered.

[Leonard Rosenthal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosenthal. He is a graduate of Marshall High. He was employed in a drug store at Western and Milwaukee avenues before his induction into the army Aug. 4, 1941.]

Give Foe Proper Burial.

"It was our first fight," he said, "so we gave the dead man a proper burial."

"This could go on indefinitely. There was Lt. H. H. Swingler, 25, of St. Louis, Mo., of the headquarters company, who led the final assault on an enemy hill in a battle two days ago with a force that included riggers, company clerks, cooks, and orderlies, as well as infantry and engineers.

Two of his best men were killed on either side of him, but Swingler kept on, creeping under machine gun cross fire. In a defile he came upon a Mark IV. tank, beside which stood two of its crew. One hand grenade killed both and the tank retreated, while Swingler hollered for an anti-tank gun.

Or Pvt. Philip Foley, of Boston. He and two others [illegible] the first to reach a point from which they could observe the enemy before the colonel's team came into action. Soon they were under fire.

Kills a Shiper.

One of his pals was killed by a sniper who fell a few moments later to Foley's accurate Garand fire. A second man lost an arm and Foley had his heel creased trying to help the wounded man. Later, back in the lines, he started back a mile to recover his musette bag but changed his mind, fearing he would miss the next action. He didn't miss it. I saw him again behind a tree hunting snipers.

Or Sgt. David Rosenkarantz of Los Angeles, and Corp. Lee Black, of Jackson, Tenn. They stumbled upon 200 Italians and were captured. But the Italians held a conference and decided they wanted to surrender to the Americans. Rosenkarantz and Black agreed to turn them over at the first opportunity. Then every one sat down to dinner and wine provided by the major. As soon as the Yanks appeared after daylight, the Italian colonel formed his command, and headed by Rosenkarantz and Black they marched, singing, to give themselves up.

Or our official airborne observers, Lt. Col. William T. Ryder, the army's first parachutist, and former commandant of the paratroop school at Fort Benning, Ga., and Charles Billingslea, of San Francisco, who jumped with the British parachute troops in Tunisia.

Came to Watch; Stay to Fight.

They came to watch and remained to fight. Each started out with a squad, fighting and marching day and night without any sleep and with little food. Ryder pitched in, helping the colonel as troop director and liaison officer—before, during and after the battle. Late on the day of the battle Billingslea was sighted coming up the road at the head of a "Coxey's army" of several hundred parachute troops with their strange assortment of transport. By the time the fighting was over these two looked like gaunt and blackened scarecrows.

There have been many strange sights here during the past several days. The lush green fields of tomato plants or unripened grapes, and in their center, a squat, ugly Tiger tank belching smoke and shells. The roads, congested with tiny, two wheeled Sicilian carts, their sides painted in brilliant reds and blues, illustrating heroic passages of history or the scriptures, their horses or jackasses belled and tasseled and the carts piled high with household goods.

Medical Men Under Fire.

One black-coated peasant was trapped on the road near the United States headquarters during the battle. He and his cart and jackass took shelter beneath a tree 25 yards from the colonel. There they remained thruout the day until our evening attack when the Germans countered with heavy mortar fire. Then the old man led his animal rapidly to the rear.

Medical men were under fire all the time yet performing heroic work carrying the wounded back from the front lines, treating them at improvised aid stations in the orchard where life-giving blood plasma cans littered the place. Some were carried back to the tiny railroad station where operations could be performed until German skip-bombers blasted a few yards from the building. Then there was a struggle to get ambulances, trucks, and things in which to carry them farther to the rear to a civilian hospital or down to beaches.

There they lay on stretchers shielded from the hot sun and tended by other doctors and first aid men, awaiting the time when landing craft would be unloaded of supplies and they could be put aboard ships bound for Africa.

Meets Another Chicagoan.

It was there on the hot sands amidst the orderly confusion of the beachhead that I met another Chicagoan, Ensign Randolph Herman, 28, of 328 North Linden avenue, Highland Park. As beachmaster he and his shore patrol and army engineers had the task of unloading supplies and getting them moved over improvised roads inland.

[Ensign Herman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Herman, was educated at Lake Forest and Tabor academies and at Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y. He enlisted in September, 1941. His brother, Grant, 30, also is a naval ensign.]

Herman's highest praise was for the army's "ducks," those amphibious trucks. They proved superior to any landing craft.

There was an old friend and Tunisian campaigner, Lt. Col. P. Yarborough, from New York. He and his men had seen their comrades go down in blazing planes, but had jumped safely thru a hail of fire, some coming down with riddled chutes, but organizing into fighting units once they were on the ground and pushing on to join us with their equipment.

It was a mission worthy of the best parachute troop efforts—this entire operation—and now the men are reorganizing for the next mission when needed.

NEW PHONE NUMBER FOR OPA.

Crash Land in Midst of Heavy Gunfire.

BY RODERICK MacDONALD.

[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH AN AIRBORNE FORCE IN SICILY, July 12 [Delayed].—Like a Wellsian fantasia the big planes were strung out behind us, pulling troop-filled gliders tugging at the end of tow lines like kite tails.

Our course was planned to carry us some 400 miles, at the end of which we were going to attempt to land in the half light of the moon on hostile territory.

The attempt was successful and the most ambitious glider-borne invasion in history started shortly after 10 p. m. July 9.

Wear Red Berets.

We wore red berets, leaving our metal helmets behind for it had been decided it would be a good thing for the Italians to learn quickly that the "red devils" of the airborne force ha darrived.

[Early reports from Sicily indicated that only British troops used gliders while the Americans were the paratroops.]

Once we got into the air soldiers with supreme nonchalance were digging sticky candy out of a jar with their fighting knives and munching cheerfully.

We bounced crazily at times in a near gale and the glider officer piloting us was striving with his controls in a fashion that cannot be compared with anything else.

Rivulets of sweat trickled thru the blacking which, like all of us, he had smeared over his face.

Fly Thru Bullets.

When darkness came tiny lights were switched on by the tug plane and these pin points in the blackness were the only orientation with which to tell whether we were following our tug course. To deviate from it would have meant crashing into the sea.

About 10:10 p. m. we sighted the coast and came under immediate fire from light ack-ack and sighted more searchlights than we had expected.

Tracers and small caliber bullets went thru the tail, but none exploded and damage was minute. When we were not more than 200 or 300 feet from the ground searchlights were criss-crossing in blinding flashes.

"I can't find it. I can't find it," shouted the pilot, who sought vainly for the field on which the landing had been planned.

"We will have to crash land. Drop the wheels off," he called to the co-pilot.

The co-pilot seemed to be having difficulty with the release gear and we were only about 50 feet from the ground.

"Drop it! Drop it!" the pilot shouted.

We were still being fired on when suddenly there was a grinding crash and the smell of fire. I thought we were hit. Then we were air borne again for an instant; then there was another grinding crash, and we came to rest.

What had actually happened was that the co-pilot had managed to drop the undercarriage a few seconds before we hit at 90 miles an hour. We had bounced into the air again and then come to a halt on hard, rocky ground.

The sides of the glider had broken loose; equipment had crashed into the back of the pilot's seat. We all were bruised and shaken, but none of us was a casualty.

Oh, Yeah?

CAPTIVE ITALIAN GENERAL EAGER TO GO TO BRITAIN

Believed Allied Invasion of Sicily Just a Raid.

BY NOEL MONKS.

[Correspondent of the London Daily Mail.]
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

ABOARD AN ALLIED DESTROYER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, July 14 [Delayed]—Seated beside me in the ward room of this destroyer is the bulky 55 year old Italian general, Achille D'Avet, captured in the allied advance in Sicily.

He is trying to read what I am typing but his watery eyes are drooping with sleep and his massive, close-cropped head is nodding with fatigue.

He rouses himself with an effort and says in a husky voice: "Tella—tella da English peoples we thinks kindly of them, and tella my wife in Roma that I fight lika da gentleman until up comes this very fine gentleman Montgomery."

Clad in Full General's Kit.

It is stifling hot in the ward room but Achille D'Avet is clad in full kit—the kit of an Italian general in the field. In the middle of three rows of decorations nestles the ribbon of a British military medal, but I suppose it's just another color patch to Achille D'Avet.

"And now," he says, with what seems a trace of hope in his voice, "we go to England, no?"

At this, another Italian sitting opposite, says quickly in good English, "Yes, yes to England we hope. If it cannot be Italy then let it be England." This man is about half as big as D'Avet, is bald headed, 10 years younger and is dressed as an Italian naval captain.

Naples His Home Town.

Bruno Preney is his name and New Bagulot street in Naples is where he hoped to retire after the prospective defeat of the British in 1940.

Gen. D'Avet is the first Italian general in Sicily to fall into the hands of that great collector of Italian generals, Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery. Capt. Preney is, or was until 24 hours ago, D'Avet's naval liaison officer.

I've had the haggard general and the smiling captain on my hands because those officers who are not running the ship are sleeping in bunks for the first time since we began the invasion of Sicily five days ago.

The general was too weary to go into details of his downfall—he surrendered just south of Syracuse—beyond telling me in a tone that suggested he was piqued that he had expected us to land in Sicily June 6.

Ah, Ah, Politics.

When I told him that was just Mussolini's guess, he threw out his hands in that grand macaronial gesture and said, "Ah, ah politics," and let his head sink between his hands.

The little captain, however, was anxious to tell his story. He was very upset, he said, that Mussolini didn't send the Italian fleet to protect Sicily.

He blamed the German air force for not picking up our great invasion armada at sea [I smiled at this and he hastily added, "and the Italian air force."]

The little captain shuddered.

"Then came Gen. Montgomery's men, about whom we had heard, and we thought it would be honorable to surrender to such honorable soldiers like the 8th army. So we surrendered."

ALLIED PLANES BELIEVED OVER NORTHERN ITALY

LONDON, July 16 [Friday]—(AP).—Air raid alarms sounded in Basel and western Switzerland early today, indicating that allied planes again might be attacking Italy from the north. Axis radios at Calais and Paris also switched off suddenly twice, late last night and early this morning, a sign that allied planes were over Europe.

In Britain anti-aircraft guns opened fire in the greater London district early today. County districts in the Thames estuary were bombed and there was one casualty.

Nine German fighters were destroyed by R. A. F. Spitfires in rooftop battles as they escorted Boston and Thyphoon bombers on attacks on the Poix and Abbeyville, France airfields, the air ministry announced yesterday. Seven R. A. F. craft were lost.

[The Rome radio quoted the Italian communique Friday as saying that 402 persons were killed and 601 injured in Monday night's raid on Turin in northwestern Italy by home based R. A. F. bombers.]

Swiss Bury 14 Britishers Killed in Night Air Crash

Use Flattest Wheat Plot They Could Find.

BY HAROLD V. BOYLE.

[Associated Press Correspondent Representing Combined U. S. Press.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 7TH ARMY IN SOUTHERN SICILY, July 13 [Delayed]—(AP).—Twenty-four hours after they landed in Sicily under strafing attacks by Nazi planes American soldier engineers accompanying the invasion troops had built and ready for service a complete landing field for allied fighter planes.

"We just grabbed the flattest wheat field we could find and went to work," said Lt. Edwin Munroe of Talladega, Ala.

"In 24 hours we had a taxi trail all around the field, the runway ready, and gasoline, ammunition, and oil to supply the planes.

P-40 First Customer.

"Our equipment was landed the day after the invasion or we could have been in operation even sooner. We landed at 11 a. m. one day and by 5 p. m. that same day we were turning that wheat patch into an airport."

The first customer was an American P-40 with engine trouble which made a forced landing.

Then a wounded P-38 pilot, who had been shot thru an arm by an ME-109; and two P-38 fellow pilots brought down their craft. After seeing the wounded flyer off to a hospital, the other two took off to return to the battle.

The engineers didn't even knock off to hunt standard army grub, feasting briefly on tomatoes and melons in the fields and then pitching in again on the arduous labor of clearing and smoothing the runway.

Patrol Group Moves In.

As Munroe pridefully told how the wheat field was whipped into military service an American Spitfire in a group patrolling overhead circled and landed.

Capt. W. C. Bryson of Castlegate, Utah, flight leader, stepped out.

"Have you got plenty of ack-ack guns, food, and gasoline?" he asked.

"We are set up to do business," answered Munroe.

"We have scores of aircraft and hundreds of men. Can you take us?" came the question.

"Okay, come on in," said Munroe.

A minute later Bryson took off.

It was as offhand as that—moving day during a military operation. You pick the best home you can and settle down on it before some other unit beats you there.

BOMBERS POUND MESSINA, KEY OF SICILIAN DEFENSE

Strike Thruout Isle; Italian City Hit.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15 (AP).—Allied bombers, striking from bases in North Africa and the middle east, heaped "very great damage" upon Messina yesterday in one of the heaviest assaults against the enemy's most important Sicilian port.

Other allied planes, many operating from captured air fields in Sicily, attacked axis positions thruout the island and enemy shipping.

More than 200 Flying Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders blasted harbor installations and rail communications at Messina, barely two miles from the Italian mainland and virtually the only port thru which the enemy can reënforce his shrinking Sicilian defenses.

Seventy-five American Liberator bombers from the middle east dumped more than 400,000 pounds of bombs on Messina for their part in the assault. Then they continued across the Messina strait to bomb San Giovanni on the Italian mainland.

The daylight blow followed a night attack on Messina by the royal Canadian air force, disclosed for the first time to be participating in the Sicilian campaign.

Other airmen pummeled Enna, an axis troop concentration point, Palermo, Gerbini, Termini, Lercara-Friddi, Leonforte, Vallelunga, and Stefano.

Off northern Sicily torpedo planes blew up an enemy tanker, set another afire, and left a cargo ship sinking.

From the feeble enemy opposition, the allied raiders knocked down nine axis craft while losing three. Among the airdromes now in allied hands and from which planes are operating are Pachino, Biscari, Gela-Farello, Ponte Olivo, Licata, Syracuse, Comiso, and Pozzallo.

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill and Mrs. Churchill joined 3,000 others in paying tribute to the late Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski of the Polish government in exile at a solemn requiem mass in Westminster cathedral today.

U. S. FOREIGN RELIEF OFFICE IS READY TO HELP SUPPLY SICILY

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—American relief officials are standing by to apply their Tunisian experience in supplying food to Sicilians, if called in by the army, Fred K. Hoehler, chief of the operations in North Africa said today.

Hoehler, who headed the field staff of Director Herbert Lehman's office of foreign relief and rehabilitation operations, told a press conference it was understood the military already are taking some supplies to the island for the civilian population.

Herbert W. Parisius, chief agricultural officer, reported that French North Africa, as a result of rehabilitation work, would produce surpluses of grain, dry beans, and peas this summer, which would be offered to the allied armies.

3 DAYS OF WAR OFF GELA TOLD BY CHICAGOAN

Former W-G-N Producer Officer on Transport.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15.—Three days and nights of battle on the beaches and offshore at Gela, Sicily—replete with scenes of American cruisers firing on enemy tanks and allied anti-aircraft and fighter planes dueling with German raiders which skipped over the dunes—were described today by Lt. Blair Walliser of the United States coast guard.

Walliser, who was a producer of radio shows on radio station W-G-N for nine years and lives at 2912 Commonwealth avenue, Chicago, was deck officer during the embarkation on the coast guard transport flagship which participated in the Gela landing.

"Every credit is due our crews for getting all personnel, vehicles, tanks, and landing craft to the right beaches at the right time," Walliser said. "It was the greatest example of a combined operation I could imagine."

At Sea Several Days.

The transport on which Walliser was an officer traveled zigzag across the Mediterranean for several days after leaving Africa so as not to indicate its destination to any enemy observers. The sea was quiet until Friday. Then there were heavy winds and high waves. All day Friday, American and British bombers flew above "like birds of passage migrating and then coming home," Walliser said.

"While we were approaching Gela," Walliser related, "we could see large fires on the hills to the north—the air fields around there having been the targets of our bombers. It was midnight soon and time for us to start lowering our boats. The moon had set. There was absolute quiet and all waited tensely on the deck.

"Then the men began getting into the personnel boats and loading tanks and vehicles into the other craft. The sea was heavy, but we worked according to schedule. The zero hour was 2:45 a. m., and at that moment our first boats reached shore, as did the first boats from the other transports that were with us.

Cruisers Open Fire.

"Suddenly there was no more darkness as the enemy's big searchlights came on from shore like giant blazing winks. Our cruisers pumped their shells toward those objectives and toward the pillboxes and machine gun nests which were firing at the landing craft.

"Soon those big lights winked out. The men in the landing boats fired heavy projectiles at the pillboxes and the gun posts. The opposing fire started to die down.

"When the dawn came Saturday morning, it became a race to get enough ammunition and artillery ashore before the Germans and Italians could counter-attack," Walliser said.

Enemy air attacks began Saturday morning, Messerschmitts, Focke-Wulfs, and Stukas coming over and strafing the beaches. American and British Spitfires and American Lightnings engaged them and our fighters and Mitchell bombers also swept farther inland to knock out enemy planes on the ground.

Warships Shell Tanks.

"Saturday night some more German fighter bombers came over the transports and on Sunday morning Walliser had a view of the German attempt to cut the American lines and thrust thru to the sea. Armored elements of the crack Nazi Goering division were in this counter-attack.

"About sixty German tanks got partially behind the infantry in the hills," he said. "The army unloading crews hurried forward to support the infantry. Our cruisers swiftly went into action with their big guns trained on the tanks. The cruisers knocked out or damaged at least 14 tanks that I know of. The infantry rallied, the tanks fled back, and the attack was repulsed."

That afternoon 21 Junkers 88s flew over, dropping bombs, and our fighters got after them, Walliser said. On Sunday night enemy planes came over again, lighting up the whole fleet with flares, and Monday morning Messerschmitts swooped in for some more beach strafing. "Before dark Monday night our transport pulled out with a load of Italian prisoners," Walliser said.

Ruins in the Sicilian Town of Gela

The signal corps says this scene confronted American soldiers when they entered the town of Gela in Sicily. Enemy forces in the town offered stiff opposition, and so it was subjected to heavy attacks from the air and sea.

4 YANK RANGERS TAKE 52 ITALIAN OFFICERS IN ONE GELA BUILDING

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15 (AP).—Four American Rangers landing at one of the most heavily defended points on the South Sicilian shore Saturday, charged thru German mines and into the town of Gela where they captured 52 Italian officers in one building. Despite machine gun fire and mines that jump four feet in the air on contact and spray fragments over a wide area, the Rangers quickly crossed the field of fire.

Observers said Italian coastal troops fought poorly. Then they ran from their guns, leaving them undamaged. "No Italian gun crews fought to the finish," they said. The enemy air force was "hogtied" by hundreds of allied fighters when it attempted to strike at American warships and transports off shore, it was said. One raiding formation, estimated at 100 enemy planes, was intercepted fiercely and only seven bombers got thru to the vicinity of Gela, their objective.

American naval gunnery saved American land forces from a repulse Sunday by engaging a large column of German tanks which penetrated to within about a mile of Gela. "When those panzers got strung out, our warships smacked them hot and heavy and they had to withdraw to high ground out of range," observers declared. "As the tanks left we could see burning wrecks littering the road. At the time our land forces were short on artillery, but the navy was there to supply the punch."

CHILD DIES OF BURNS.

EVANSTON ARMY FLYER MISSING IN PACIFIC ZONE

Lt. Richard M. Foss of the army air force, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Foss of 2414 Brown avenue, Evanston, has been missing in action in the southwest Pacific since June 30, his mother said yesterday.

Lt. Richard M. Foss.

Lt. Bruce Van Buren

Lt. Foss was born in Evanston March 17, 1921. He attended Evanston Township High school and Northwestern university. He was employed by the Acme Steel company, Chicago, until August of 1942, when he entered the air force.

Bruce Van Buren, a first lieutenant in the quartermaster corps, has been killed in an accident in North Africa, his parents were notified yesterday by the war department. Lt. Van Buren, 24 years old, had been in the army for about two years. His parents live at 1950 Warren avenue.

Eugene Joseph Paulson, 22, a navy motor machinist's mate, 2d class, is reported missing in action in the Southwest Pacific, according to a telegram received from the navy department yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Paulson of 223 Maple avenue, Villa Park.

CALLS ITALIANS' PLANES DATED; TANKS A JOKE

BY JOHN GUNTHER.

Representing the Combined American Press.
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

COMMAND POST OF THE 15TH ARMY GROUP, Sicily, July 15.—Italian aircraft is mostly out of date, Italian tanks are a miserable joke and Italian artillery is ludicrous—this is the price the Italian people are now paying for their "efficient" leadership.

Expert American and British observers advancing into Sicily continue to be amazed at what they call the pitiful inadequacy of Italian material and equipment. Even the food supplies for the troops are grossly bad.

Ration boxes were found with a thin layer of provisions on top and a pile of gravel underneath. Tins of meat were opened and found to be rotted and cans of soup are dish water.

CHICAGO BOYS TAKE BIG PART IN SICILY DRIVE

One Helps Capture 120 Italian Prisoners.

BY H. R. KNICKERBOCKER.

[Representing the combined U. S. Press.]
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH U. S. ARMY IN SICILY, July 10 [Delayed]. — Chicago has done its share, and more.

From England to Africa and now in Sicily I meet one on every side, in every outfit of the army, navy, air forces, and coast guard—scores of eager young men from Chicago, proud of their uniform and their city.

Texas may have reaped more glamor, but there's many an outfit on America's far-flung battle line where "deep in the heart of Chicago" would be more apt than the original ditty.

Helps Capture 120 Italians.

Here, for example, is 21 year old William F. O'Connor, whose wife and three months old son live with his mother and father at 2040 Roscoe street, and who today shared with six other comrades the unusual experience of capturing in the heat of battle 120 Italians.

I met him at the entrance of the town of Gela a few hours after its capture by our assault Rangers. He offered us water, which is precious in these parts, and willingly told his story:

"We left ship at 12:45 a. m. and landed on the beach at 10 minutes to 1. That was the most exciting moment because the Italians had their big searchlights on and they were shelling us while we came in. But they didn't hit us.

"As far as I know we lost only two scouts. A little later on we were cleaning up the town and going from house to house. Now, that's a funny thing. The Italians won't come out and surrender unless you yell at them. We soon learned that.

Waiting to Be Told.

"At first we just went along the street waiting to see Italian soldiers and make them give up. But all the time there were plenty of Italians in the houses waiting for us to tell them to come out."

O'Connor, who doubtless will soon be promoted for his work today, queried "how did we seven guys capture 120 Italians?"

"Why, it was easy. They wanted to give up so bad they came out with their suitcases packed and handed us their rifles, already unloaded.

"We went from house to house and yelled 'come on out' and out they came, but they couldn't come until we yelled at them. As soon as they came out some of our boys would start talking Italian to them and they all seemed pretty glad. Some of them carried a white flag, towel or handkerchief."

Back to Kill More.

A few blocks up the street of deserted, forlorn Gela, another Chicagoan threw more light on Italian morale. This was Sgt. Thadeus Stefanik.

"Did you kill any of the enemy?" I asked.

"Not this time," he said, "but in 1939 I did.

"Yes, in 1939 I was in Warsaw until the Germans arrived. I killed some of them but they captured me and sent me to prison in Koenigsberg. I escaped and now I am here to kill some more. I understand there are plenty of Huns here in the interior."

I asked Stefanik what he thought of Italians as military opponents.

"Well," he said, "I can only describe the way three of them behaved. When we hit the beach none of us stopped to dig in but pushed on fast for our objective which was the customs house some hundreds of yards away, where we were to set up a temporary command post. After a few seconds of running one of our naval guns hit close by and suddenly out of nowhere came three Italian soldiers holding up their hands.

Beg for Their Lives.

"When they came near they threw themselves down on their knees and begged us to spare their lives. We asked them a lot of questions and they answered everything without apparently caring what it meant."

But the list of Chicagoans in this operation alone will extend almost indefinitely.

On our ship alone I met Capt. Charles B. Meldrum, medical corps, of 3515 Adams street, who smiled happily as he reported he had had a letter from his mother dated as late as June 13. Another Chicago boy in Meldrum's outfit was Pvt. Kenneth C. Mueller of 1615 Ohio street. Then Chief Gunner's Mate Nicholas Tannaci of 3156 Fifth avenue, generously invited me to be introduced to all the Chicago boys he knew aboard.

Also among the crew of our transport were Robert Austera, seaman 1st class, 7041 West 40th place; Arthur H. Olson, seaman 1st class, 1633 South 16th avenue, Maywood; Eberhard Steurich, 3650 North Damen avenue, and George Raftis, 7456 Cottage Grove avenue.

An important group of Chicagoans were in artillery "N" unit, which at this moment is battering the enemy with detonations that shake this typewriter. They include Ralph Provenzano, 7154 Woodlawn avenue; Samuel A. Conde, 321 North Sixth street, Geneva; Henry J. Rogers Jr., 8018 South Morgan street; Harold J. Kiskes, 7329 South Carpenter street; Kenneth Gross, Franklin Grove; Robert F. Knight, Rockford; Robert P. Talmadge, 1251 Leland avenue; Trenton C. Davey, 123 Ogden street, Belvedere; Billie W. Hopkins, Normal, Ill.; Wendell H. Harmon, Mattoon, and Elbert Reed, Chicago.

TWICE A VETERAN.

Capt. Charles B. Meldrum is 46 years old, and before going on active duty, lived with his stepmother, Mrs. Charlotte Meldrum, at 3515 Adams street. His father, George B. Meldrum, a wholesale grocer, died many years ago. Capt. Meldrum is assigned to the army medical corps. He is a two time veteran, having served in the first World war, also in the medical corps.

Kenneth C. Mueller, private first class, has been in the army four years, according to his brother, Herbert Mueller, 1615 Ohio street, with whom Kenneth lived. Pvt. Mueller is 26 years old, and a graduate of Lindblom High school.

HOW U. S. TROOPS RALLIED IN CRISIS AT BRIDGEHEAD

Axis Tanks 1,000 Yards Off When Stopped.

BY DON WHITEHEAD.
[Associated Press War Correspondent.]
[Representing Combined American Press.]

WITH U. S. INVASION TROOPS ON SICILY, July 12 [Delayed]—(AP).—The complete collapse of the Italian coastal defenses gave impetus to the American invasion of Sicily and a breakdown in German military efficiency saved the bridgehead in the central sector.

This became clear today as the Americans fought their way into the island and hundreds of Italian and German prisoners streamed back to the prisoner of war pens.

The crisis on the American front came July 11 when a veteran infantry division struggled 10 savage hours to stem enemy attacks that swept to within 1,000 yards of the vital beachhead which was the high road to victory.

How Enemy Failed.

A military spokesman said the only thing that saved the central front from being overrun was the magnificent fighting of the front line troops and the lack of coördination in the enemy's three-pronged drives that came simultaneously from the east, the west, and the north.

Within 48 hours after landing the troops had met and defeated three enemy divisions on Sicily, including the Hermann Goering panzer [armored] division.

It is significant that the prisoners from the Goering division were mostly youths in their early twenties, with little or no combat experience and very little training.

Believe Hitler Blunders.

Some military observers take this to mean that Hitler has committed his veteran divisions on the Russian front and they believe he has blundered.

The Goering division, which has a mobile reserve force to back up the Italian coastal defenses, was scattered from Comiso [about 10 miles from the coast] to Caltagirone [about 25 miles farther inland]. The troops were alerted two weeks ago for the invasion and took a defensive station, but when the allied move failed to materialize the alert turned into an invasion maneuver and then the troops returned to their garrisons.

When the Americans swarmed into the city of Gela Saturday one of the first things they did was to cut telephone wires. This broke communications between Comiso and Caltagirone.

Tanks Not Warned.

One Goering tank battalion at Caltagirone was not notified of the invasion until five hours after the troops were ashore. Other units were not notified until nine hours later.

The enemy's tank battalion at Caltagirone was ordered to move against Gela and to penetrate the American bridgehead. And then the Germans committed their greatest mistake—a mistake which unquestionably saved the Americans thousands of lives and millions of dollars' worth of equipment.

And it was this: When the tanks drove in they were not followed by infantry support. The Germans threw an overpowering weight of tanks against the center front while we had only a few tanks and field guns ashore for defense. But there was no infantry behind to capitalize on the armored drive, which was stopped just short of the beachhead by artillery fire.

Even as it was, the beachhead was threatened and only a stout hearted defense turned the tide.

Sicily Only 1st of Many Europe Fronts, Says Davis

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—The allied invasion of Sicily is only "the first of many fronts in the campaign of Europe," Director Elmer Davis of the office of war information said today. Davis, leaving for New York, whence he will depart shortly for London and possibly North Africa, said he believed allied commanders "expected more opposition than they got."

ANTI-PLANE GUNS RIP PILLBOXES FOR DOUGHBOYS

Famed Division Wins Wide Sicily Area.

BY HAROLD V. BOYLE.
[Associated Press correspondent representing the combined American press.]

LICATA, Sicily, July 13 Delayed]—(AP).—Anti-aircraft guns were used to blast shore pillboxes for an infantry division which, after destroying defenses at four Sicilian landing beaches, conquered some hundreds of square miles of Italian-held territory in three days of an unrelenting drive.

They were mad—these soldiers of a historic World war division—because after smashing thru at Casablanca last November, they had been compelled to cool their heels in Morocco for six months, reaching Tunisia only in time to police the battlefields other American forces had won.

Guarded Allied Flank.

Capt. Hugh A. Scott of Portland, Ore., described the landings to guard the allied left flank:

"As some of our craft approached the shore, Italian guns opened fire on them from heavy pill boxes. The heaviest guns we had in the boat were 20 millimeter anti-aircraft cannon. They were not very big but they were extremely accucrate. Firing at point blank range, the gunners quickly knocked out the pillboxes and the men landed safely. Our casualties were extremely light."

Altho the opposing coastal fortifications were dense, the troops pushed quickly thru them and by noon held the high ground controling the area surrounding this city of 30,000 population.

Add to Captures.

"We shot the works," said Scott, "and every regiment went thru on top. The city of Licata was taken by 11:30 on the day of the invasion and the troops found about a third of the population still there."

On the first day, in their continuing advance, the doughboys seized approximately 5,000 prisoners, including 150 Germans.

Fanning out as an advanced division, they made a four-pronged attack which soon netted them the towns of Riesi, Naro, Palma di Montechiaro, and Campobello. They are working toward the main road network between Calanissetta and Agrigento.

DIES WORKING IN GARDEN.

Mrs. Mary Dangremond died of a heart attack yesterday while working in her garden in the rear of her home at 11314 Lothair avenue. She leaves four sons, among them Maj. Leroy Dangremond and Lt. Gerrit Dangremond of the army, and three daughters.

MERCY PLANE SINKS AS SEA RESCUE FAILS; CHICAGO FLYER LOST

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—Eight of the nine man crew of a navy patrol bomber died in the far North Atlantic, the navy reported today, in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue survivors of an R. A. F. crash. The men of the royal air force, afloat in a dinghy, were rescued later by a British seaplane patroling from the British Isles.

Lt. Phillip A. Bodinet.

L. F. Pellitier, aviation radioman, 1st class, Fall River, Mass., only survivor of the American patrol plane, said the R. A. F. dinghy had been sighted on a heavy sea with the weather closing in fast. It was decided to take a chance in putting the plane down lest the rescue never be made, but midway in the alighting a cross wave swung the big boat into an adjoining wave, splitting her bow. The crew of nine manned two rubber life rafts.

The R. A. F. men paddled over, but heavy seas soon separated them from the rubber boats. The misery of freezing wetness joined hunger and thirst, and one by one the American airmen died. Among the crew was Lt. Phillip A. Bodinet, 4337 Elston avenue, Chicago, the navy announced.

THREE ROB STUDENT OF $97.

Israel Zimmerman, 56 years old, a student at the University of Chicago, reported to police he was robbed early yesterday by three Negroes of $62 and $35 in postal savings certificates near his home at 1213 East 62d street.

FOG IS GREATER WORRY THAN SUB ON CONVOY SHIP

Brings Gray Hair to Even Hardiest Skipper.

[This is the third of a series detailing the experiences of a war correspondent crossing the Atlantic by convoy.]

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD A LIBERTY SHIP IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC.—Submarines don't worry convoy skippers so much anymore, but they have one enemy that keeps them on pins and needles—fog.

Fog is bad enough when sailing alone, but in a tightly packed convoy it brings gray hairs to the hardest bitten seamen.

I was scared out of 10 years' growth when the foghorn let go for the first time with an earsplitting blast. In pitch dark and a pouring rain I went up on the flying bridge where the captain, chief engineer, and first and third mates were all anxiously standing watch.

Can't See Own Bow.

They were leaning forward trying to peer beneath muck so thick it could have been cut in chunks. We couldn't even see our own bow. Every 60 seconds we blew our foghorn and waited anxiously for the reply of ships nearby. The third mate, who wore an ordinary white cap with a string under his chin, tried to point with his finger in the direction of each answering blast to give us some idea where the other ships were.

All the ships were operating under the war shipping administration and were loaded with war materials.

"I have to worry that I don't go too fast or too slowly, and that everybody else around holds his position," said the captain. He had another worry, too. More ships were scheduled to join us and nobody knew where they were. Radio silence is maintained except in case of attack, which increases the difficulties.

The fifth day. At dawn we find ourselves alone in a great big ocean, but in a couple of hours we've caught the convoy again, much to everybody's relief. My cabin mate, George Reynard, tells the captain he is traveling by ship because he likes the sea, but the captain says that after 25 years the novelty has worn off for him. With last night's fog in mind, he says, "there are times when even a picnic ceases to be a picnic."

Gun Practice Ordered.

Signal flags from the commodore's ship order gun practice and all over the convoy the rattle and roar of gunfire break out. The air over the vessels is filled with tracers from anti-aircraft weapons.

There's a good deal of kidding between engine room and deck officers. This morning the engine room let the pump pressure drop and there's no water for washing.

"If you can't even keep water running in the bathrooms, how do you expect to get this ship across an ocean?" the second mate asks the chief engineer at breakfast. The chief's reply isn't printable.

This second mate is a card. Until recently he was instructor at a naval training station in a technical course which involved a lecture illustrated with lantern slides. To enliven a particularly dull session, he ran in a few French postal cards he had picked up on a pre-war trip to Paris. That's how he happened to go back to sea.

VETERAN OF 119 BATTLES OPENS AIR CADET DRIVE

Lt. Merle S. Else, a fighter pilot of the army air forces who distinguished himself in 119 air battles in the Southwest Pacific, led a parade thru the loop last night to open a new recruiting drive for aviation cadets.

Marching behind him were the officers and men of the Chicago army aviation cadet selection board, 400 aviators of the civil air patrol, and army air force aides. The parade started at Victory plaza at the city hall and disbanded at the Palace theater, where a recruiting rally was conducted.

Maj. Lauris M. Eek, air liaison officer of the 6th service command, assigned Maj. Charles W. H. Schuck, Illinois wing commander of the CAP, to head the current procurement program. Maj. Eek said that the original quota for the Chicago area has been doubled three times in the last six months because of the imperative need of men.

WALLACE, JONES SQUELCHED IN F.D.R. SHAKEUP

gress provides other means of financing the office of economic warfare, the Reconstruction Finance corporation is directed to turn over to the office of economic warfare all funds necessary to carry on its operations.

"5. The director of the office of war mobilization is given the responsibility of unifying and coördinating the policies and programs of the agencies engaged in foreign economic matters in conformity with foreign policy of the United States as determined by the state department."

LETTER TO DISPUTANTS

The President today addressed the following letter to the Honorable Henry A. Wallace, chairman of the board of economic warfare, and to the Honorable Jesse H. Jones, secretary of commerce:

"Gentlemen:

"I have come to the conclusion that the unfortunate controversy and acrimonious public debate which has been carried on between you in the public press concerning the administration of foreign economic matters make it necessary, in the public interest, to transfer these matters to other hands.

No Time for Inquiry.

"In the midst of waging a war so critical to our national security and to the future of all civilization, there is not sufficient time to investigate and determine where the truth lies in your conflicting versions as to transactions which took place over a year and a half ago.

"My action today is not intended to decide that question. The important thing is to clear the decks and to get on with the war at once. To do this requires a fresh start with new men, unencumbered by interagency dissension, and bitterness.

Doubts Coöperation.

"I am persuaded that the present controversy indicates that future coöperative action between your two agencies is impossible, and that without full coöperation between you the program of economic warfare cannot be carried out.

"I am sure that the American people understand that both of you have attempted to do your duty as you have seen it; but we must go forward without any further public debate as to matters which are now academic so far as winning the war is presently concerned.

"I have therefore issued today an executive order of which I am attaching a copy for your information and guidance.

"Very sincerely yours,
"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Takes Over

LEO T. CROWLEY.

LETTER TO OFFICIALS

"The President also addressed identical letters under this date to the heads of departments and agencies. The text of these letters is as follows:

"Dear sir:

"On Aug. 21, 1942, I sent to the head of each department and agency of the federal government a letter, copy of which is attached.

"I call your attention to the statement contained in that letter that 'disagreements either as to fact or policy should not be publicly aired, but are to be submitted to me by the appropriate heads of the conflicting agencies.' Notwithstanding these positive instructions, disagreements between agencies have been publicly aired on several occasions.

Must Come to F. D. R.

"I realize the nervous strain under which government officials are working in war time but I cannot overlook any further violations of my instructions. By this letter I do not place any restriction upon your furnishing statements in response to congressional inquiries. But if when you have a disagreement with another agency as to fact or policy, instead of submitting it to me or submitting it to the director of war mobilization for settlement under the terms of the order creating that office, you feel you should submit it to the press, I ask that when you release the statement for publication, you send to me a letter of resignation.

"If any subordinate of yours violates my instructions in this regard, I shall expect you to ask for his immediate resignation.

"I am sending identical letters to the heads of every department and agency of the government.

"Sincerely yours,
"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

CABINET COMMENT

Here are the comments of Vice President Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jones on President Roosevelt's curb on their powers:

Mr. Wallace—"In war time no one should question the over-all wisdom of the commander in chief."

Mr. Jones—"I concur most heartily in the President's determination to have harmony and coöperation between government officials and agencies in the war effort. The department of commerce and the Reconstruction Finance corporation and its subsidiary corporations engaged in foreign purchases will render every possible assistance to the new director of economic warfare.

"The director will find the affairs of all RFC agencies engaged in foreign purchases, as well as the Export-Import bank, in excellent condition. He will find the organizations functioning with a maximum of efficiency and at a minimum of expense.

"The President could not have selected a better qualified man for the important assignment of director of the office of economic warfare than Leo T. Crowley. Mr. Crowley is well and favorably known to the business and financial world because of his able administration of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and as alien property custodian."

CROWLEY'S BACKGROUND

Leo T. Crowley, who yesterday became head of the newly created office of economic warfare, is accepted as President Roosevelt's spokesman in Wisconsin. He is unmarried and has a home at 1110 Edgewood avenue, Madison. The President demonstrated preference for him as early as July 25, 1933, when he appointed him chairman of the NRA in Wisconsin.

Crowley has long been associated with big business. He began his career with the General Paper & Supply company, of which he rose to president. He was made chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation in 1934 a position he has held since that time. He also is alien property custodian and chairman of the board of the Standard Gas & Electric company. He is a director of the National Canadian Life Insurance company.

Born in Milton Junction, Wis., Aug. 15, 1887, Crowley was taken to Madison as a boy by his parents. He attended high school from 1906 to 1908 and then became a grocery clerk. In 1910 he purchased the General Paper & Supply company, a small concern, and in following years built it up until it had a capital of $300,000.

He held many state and municipal appointments. He was president of the Madison city board of health from 1924 to 1929. Philip LaFollette, progressive, appointed him chairman of the state banking review board in 1932.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

THURSDAY, JULY 15.

THE famous tall corn of Iowa has suffered a sad setback this year despite the fact that there has been an acreage increase of 12 per cent over last year's plantings.

The July 1 crop report from the college of agriculture in Des Moines indicates a corn planting of 10,935,000 acres. The average estimated yield for this year is only 46 bushels to the acre compared with the record breaking yield of 61.5 bushels last year.

Total production of corn is estimated at 499,928,000 bushels compared with 596,796,000 bushels in 1942. The reason for this heavy decline, the college said, is lack of uniformly high stands, lower germinating quality of the seed, and late planting because of unfavorable weather.

Oat Acreage Drops.

The oat acreage for harvest is estimated at 4,855,000 acres, a decrease of about 6 per cent from the 1942 acreage. This is one of the three smallest oat acreages in 35 years.

About the most favorable aspect of the entire report is the fact that weather conditions have been good, on the average, for the development of grains, and good yields seem in prospect at least for the oat crop.

The combined acreage of barley, wheat, and rye, is only 194,000 acres whereas in previous years the acreage of any one of these crops exceeded this total, excepting in 1941 when winter wheat ran 140,000 acres. Stands of winter wheat are not good, the report stated; and in some sections of the state there are an unusually large number of barren or poorly filled heads on the grain.

Bright Spot in Iowa.

Soybean acreage is up this year over last: 2,312,000 acres compared with 2,202,000 in 1942. This crop is the bright spot in the Iowa picture. Fields generally are clean, development has been rapid, and growth sufficient to insure maturity during a normal growing season.

For the first time a commercial crop of hemp is being produced in the state. In north central Iowa there are 44,000 acres planted as a war emergency crop. There are now 11 processing plants in the state to handle the production.

Grain stocks on Iowa farms as of July 1 were somewhat larger than for the same date a year ago, but, except for last year, were the smallest since 1938. To increase the seriousness of the situation, grain disappearance is by far the largest on record for the period. On top of this, corn holdings of the Commodity Credit corporation have been largely disposed of, the total of nearly 21 million bushels on January 1 having been reduced to 6.5 million bushels on July 1. The feed outlook is not cheerful.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

FOUR rows of the large farm garden, each 500 feet long, were replanted yesterday. Peas had been harvested from these rows, and before replanting the gardener pulled out all of the old plants and reworked the soil to a depth of six inches. This was done with a machine powered rotary tiller.

The crops replanted in the four rows included the final planting of Golden Bantam corn, Danvers half-long carrots, Detroit dark red beets, green curled endive, and Vienna white kohlrabi.

Altho many gardeners plant kohlrabi only in the spring, this vegetable thrives when planted in mid-July to mature in mid-September. The roots are prime after 55 to 65 days. After the plants appear above ground, they should be thinned to stand five inches apart in the row. Kohlrabi is subject to the cabbage worm and should be sprayed with pyrethrum or rotenone, or a combination of these insecticides, when the other members of the cabbage family are sprayed.

PUT YOURSELF IN HIS PLACE . . . in his cockpit climbing swiftly away from an Axis airfield into a pitch-black night . . . bomb racks loaded . . . heading for Yank-held territory.

How would your mind work (under a Nazi bonnet), if you knew Radar's sleepless, X-ray "eyes" were waiting up to greet you . . . on warships, airfields, and lookout posts of the United Nations' forces?

What would you be thinking . . . knowing that Radar was robbing you of "surprise", the attacker's one tactical advantage . . . detecting you as much as 130 miles from your target? Always watching you . . . in storm, clouds, and fog . . . five miles up or skimming the waves! . . . marking you for ambush and destruction!

When the flak whams accurately through the clouds to rip jagged wing holes; when you meet night fighters who need no flame from your exhausts for true aiming, wouldn't you momentarily doubt the infallibility of the "master race"?

Wouldn't you nurse a scowling respect for American ingenuity? For Radar was developed in the United States . . . pretty much the product of Navy and Army research laboratories who weren't as unprepared as you thought.

And shouldn't it occur to you that a fellow can't win when he's fighting against a nation with the inventiveness and resources to produce weapons like this?

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

1922. Naval Aircraft Radio Laboratory, Anacostia, D. C. Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor and Leo C. Young, observing that radio signals were reflected by steel buildings and passing ships, suggested it as a means of detecting enemy vessels in darkness, fog, and smoke. This was the birth of Radar!

1937. Bloomfield, N. J. Westinghouse developed the key electronic tube for the U. S. Army's first Radar equipment used to detect aircraft. Radar "beamcasting" focuses invisible, ultra-high-frequency waves traveling at the incredible speed of 186,000 miles per second.

1941. Pearl Harbor, T. H. Lieut. Lockard, then a private using Radar equipment made by Westinghouse, detected and reported the approaching Jap bombers when 132 miles distant, and still a half hour away. Because a flight of American planes was expected, no warning was sounded.

1943. On every front Radar fights with our men . . . playing an important part at Midway . . . guiding our landing forces through thick fog into Attu harbor . . . helping our fleet off Guadalcanal "see" a Jap warship eight miles away in pitch darkness—and sink it on its second salvo! Radar has revolutionized naval and air battle tactics . . . and multiplied a hundredfold the range of human vision.

195?. Postwar Transportation by air and ocean holds Radar's promise of undreamed security. Pilots of the future's giant air liners will ride through the clouds, fog, and darkness, confident that Radar will warn them of mountains, tall buildings, or planes in their path. Our ocean shipping will use it to avoid collisions with icebergs, rocks, and other ships—and to enter harbors in heavy fog.

Westinghouse was making Radar 18 months before Pearl Harbor. Since then, Westinghouse production of radio communications equipment, including Radar, has increased 41 times!

ILLINOIS G.O.P. READY TO FIGHT WILLKIE IN '44

Party Heads Answer His Avowed Plans.

If Wendell Willkie enters the Illinois Republican preferential primary as a candidate for President next year, he will be opposed, the state's leading Republicans said last night.

The party leaders' comments were made in reply to statements made by Willkie in an interview in New York. During the interview, Willkie was asked to comment on a resolution adopted July 1 at a meeting in Chicago of the Republican National Revival committee, which urged Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, to enter the preferential primary.

Willkie was asked: "Have you seen reports that Col. McCormick may run in the Illinois primary?" He replied to the question in his own handwriting:

"I certainly hope it is true. For then I could really make the issue clear—the greatest issue of the day—American relations to the rest of the world and liberal internal domestic policies."

Willkie said also that if Col. McCormick became a primary candidate he [Willkie] would stump Illincis thoroly to spread his doctrine.

Col. McCormick was in Canada last night and was not available for comment on Willkie's statements.

Schroeder Predicts Defeat.

Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois national Republican committeeman, said:

"Republicans of Illinois are overwhelmingly against Willkie. Any one of a half dozen men are possible candidates against him. Should he decide to enter his name in this state, any one of them would defeat him decisively."

Gov. Dwight H. Green said:

"From what has been said to me by rank and file members of the Republican party in Illinois, it seems certain that Willkie would be opposed in our state."

Sen. Wayland Brooks made the following comment:

"I have no doubt that Illinois will be represented at the next National Republican convention with practically a solid delegation to represent the views of Illinois, both regarding future domestic policies as well as our future foreign policy, without the help of Wall street or the dictation of those who put their hopes regarding their personal future world leadership above the interests and rights of the American people.

Want Fighters' Ideas.

"Several hundred thousand young men from Illinois are in the fighting forces. Many are among the nation's outstanding heroes. We, in Illinois, will want to know their views, expressed in person or by letter, when we chart our course.

"I am sure that we can find some one representing the truly American viewpoint to lead and present the Illinois viewpoint who does not owe allegiance to the international bankers who were so anxious to plunge us into war and are so anxious now to commit us to their future world program."

Joseph P. Savage, president of the Illinois Gen. MacArthur for President club, which has opened headquarters in Chicago, said that if Willkie enters the Illinois primary, he will find Gen. MacArthur running against him.

MAYWOOD RALLY TO OBSERVE ITS 2D BATAAN DAY

Preparations are under way by the Greater Maywood association for the second annual observance of Bataan day on the afternoon of Sept. 12 in Maywood park. Most of the men of Company B, 192d tank battalion, which fought on Bataan, were from Maywood. One feature of the day will be the dedication of an honor roll of the men and women who have left the village to enter the army and navy. Louis E. Nelson, recently elected president, is chairman for the event, and his committee includes Charles Yunkers, Le Roy Allen, Dan W. Duda, Theodore Groenke, Arthur Wartha, George Miller, R. N. Sager, J. D. Richardson, and J. L. Tasch.

HOFFMAN BRANDS F.D.R. CHALLENGE 'PRESUMPTUOUS'

Washington, D. C., July 15 [Special].—President Roosevelt's recent assertion that congress' denial of funds for the salaries of three federal officials was not binding on the executive or judicial branches of the government was termed by Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] today as a "direct and presumptuous challenge to the sovereignty of the people and the congress."

"More and more the President's true character, his all-consuming ambition to become a dictator and the first President of a United States of the world is overriding whatever good judgment and respect for constitutional government he may once have had," Hoffman said in a statement made at his office.

"The President has for so long and so often disregarded the fact that congress alone has the authority to say when, how much, and for what purpose the taxpayers' money shall be spent, that he now appears to think he has unlimited arbitary power and can usurp the functions of congress. The President should learn that he is not above the law."

Police Seek Knife Man Who Slashed Pedestrian

113 GIRLS WANT SERVICE MEN TO SHUN CENTERS

Service men will be put to a crucial test starting Monday. They'll be asked, in effect, to choose between friendship for 485 girls and free pie, cake, sandwiches and other treats at the Service Men's centers.

The test arises over the recent dismissal of the 485 girls as junior hostesses at the centers. The move was made to allow other girls a chance to be junior hostesses. There is a waiting list of 10,000.

At a meeting of 113 of the dismissed girls in the Hamilton hotel last night, it was voted to ask the service men in Chicago to boycott the centers, starting Monday. The girls were confident that the service men, whom they know by the thousands, will help their cause.

BUY MORE WAR BONDS TODAY!—2nd War Loan

When the Stripes are in the Attic . . .

A NEW BATTLE WILL BEGIN

WE were thinking about a soldier named Tim the other day . . . but not in a sticky, sentimental sort of a way.

We were just thinking about the office boy who'll come home a technical sergeant.

You see, we'll owe Tim a job when he gets back. But how the heck are we going to fit a man who has kept a Flying Fortress in fighting trim back into the miniscule responsibilities of sealing letters and running errands?

Obviously, we've got to figure out a wider scope for a Tim who has learned a great deal, not only about machines, but about people.

▶ And how about the girl who has Tim's old job? She is doing all right. Maybe she will get married and quit work when the war is over . . . but then again?

See how our thoughts were running? Two jobs to provide where only one job existed.

If you run a business, or a department, you know the next step in our thinking by heart. Multiply Tim by the number of employees that are in the services, or in government jobs, and add the new people that now have their old jobs, and you will see that this nation faces the greatest opportunity in the history of the world.

If we live up to that opportunity, we will not have 10,000,000 unemployed, with their wonderful training going to waste. Instead we will have a country humming with the released energy of its whole people.

▶ What are we going to do about providing 10,000,000 new jobs when the uniforms are in the attic?

That will be the peacetime battle, and thousands of civilians are now planning its strategy and tactics.

Fortunately, there is a better way to use the energy and skill of our fighters and war workers than putting them on ambition-killing government jobs in some super W. P. A.

▶ If you doubt that, remember that our modern industry is little more than 50 years old.

In that short time it has provided more good living for more people than all the centuries and milleniums that went before.

American Industry can give good jobs to every skilled and energetic person who wants to work.

How? By extending the process that produced so much good living for so many in the years gone by.

If that is true, then everybody should understand how industry works, so that the growth of industry can be encouraged.

The purpose of industry is to get more work done in less time.

▶ The life of industry is improvement.

When products are constantly improved (either in appearance, service or price) more and more people buy them. That makes jobs.

When there is no industrial improvement, you have a country with living standards like those in China, or India.

When there is slow industrial improvement, you have a country like, say, one of the Balkan states.

When there is rapid industrial improvement, you have a country like ours, with the highest living standards in the world.

We haven't always understood this, and so we have had periods when there was little new machinery and improvement in plant. That helps cause depressions.

But, remember that the plants which made electric refrigerators, radios, air conditioning and streamlined trains supplied good jobs during the last depression, because those were improved products which people bought in spite of hard times.

We don't need to worry about creating 10 million new jobs, if we give our nation of Eli Whitneys a chance to do their stuff.

▶ Why do we say "give them a chance"?

Because the only chance industry has to improve is through its Seed Money.

As you know, Seed Money is that part of profit which is "ploughed back" into a business in improved factories, machines, methods and products.

As you also know, a very great amount of Seed Money is being taxed out of existence.

We don't think it makes much sense to stunt the growth of industry at a time when 10 million new jobs will be needed, do you?

If you think Congress should look into this matter of providing better conditions for industrial growth, tell your Congressman how you feel.

"Industrial Progress is the Source of all Good Living."

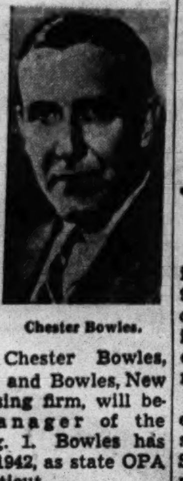
BROWN ASSERTS OPA HAS A PLAN; DENIES RED TINT

Announces New General Manager: Bowles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown today defended the office of price administration against charges of radicalism and planlessness made yesterday by a resigning official, but announced at the same time that the agency will be reorganized under a new "general manager."



Chester Bowles.

The price chief said at a press conference that Chester Bowles, partner in Benton and Bowles, New York City advertising firm, will become general manager of the agency about Aug. 1. Bowles has served since May, 1942, as state OPA director in Connecticut.

The new appointment and Brown's defense of OPA followed a blistering indictment of the entire agency and its policies by Lou R. Maxon, Detroit advertising official, who resigned yesterday.

Denies Charges.

Brown refused to answer Maxon's charges in full on the ground that this would only "provoke further discord," but denied what he termed "two serious charges that require answer."

One Maxon charge he answered was the statement that an OPA clique wants the government to make and distribute all goods.

"I have never heard any such proposal by any individual and certainly there is absolutely no intention on the part of this office to undertake such control," Brown said.

Denying that OPA lacks policy, the price chief said his agency has a "clear policy," which is to reduce prices to the level of Sept. 15, 1942, as directed by congress last October.

This will require a 5 per cent price reduction, Brown added. To do this, he said, the present price roll-backs thru subsidies will be continued on meat and butter, and probably a similar subsidy-roll-back will be applied to canned vegetables instead of coffee, as previously planned.

Beef Supplies Gaining.

Discussing OPA policy changes, Brown explained that all grade labeling orders will be rescinded under new legislation by congress outlawing such regulations. The labeling provision on rayon hosiery, which has created much controversy, was canceled by OPA today.

On the question of boosting consumer meat supplies and correcting OPA's widely criticized meat pricing policies, Brown had no immediate remedies to offer. He said no ceilings on live cattle are planned, and that beef supplies are now increasing of their own accord. The question of placing ceilings on live hogs is still under study by OPA and Food Administrator Marvin Jones, Brown added. He said no change in the corn ceiling of $1.07 will be made during the current marketing season.

FREED IN ABORTION CASE.

Dr. Effie L. Lobdell, 76 years old, a physician, was acquitted yesterday by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in Criminal court of a charge of prescribing drugs to induce an abortion on a married woman. The physician pleaded not guilty.

SEN. LUCAS' BILL TO ADD VOTING HOURS OPPOSED

Jarecki Cites Cost and Possible Fraud.

"He may not know it, but his idea of keeping the polls open until 9 p. m. has been a dream of machine politicians for years. To them it means doubling the number of election jobs and the opening of new roads for fraud."

This was the comment of a veteran politician yesterday on a radio speech Wednesday night by Sen. Scott W. Lucas in which the Illinois Democratic senator advocated passage of a bill he has pending in congressional committee. The measure would require uniform hours for voting at all elections in which federal officials are elected. Thruout the country, Lucas would have polls open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. In Illinois, the statutory hours are from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Illinois Officials Not Consulted.

As far as is known here, Sen. Lucas did not confer with any Illinois election officials concerning his proposal. His term in office expires next year and if he runs again it will be in the April primary. At that time, if congress passes his poll hour bill, it will be in full effect.

The head of the Chicago election machinery, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, said he did not want to criticize Sen. Lucas' proposal in a hostile way, but explained that the question of extending the poll hours in Illinois had been discussed widely for years and that, long before Lucas took up the subject, it had been determined official and public opinion was against any extension.

Jarecki's Opposition Summarized.

A summary of Judge Jarecki's points against the proposed change ran like this:

1. Prolongation of the voting hours in Illinois from 11 to 15 hours is unnecessary.

2. Fifteen hours of consecutive duty is too arduous for precinct judges and clerks.

3. In many instances, two shifts of judges and clerks, with a consequent doubling of the expense, would be required.

4. Tired watchers would quit their jobs, leaving the way open for new frauds in the early morning hours while votes were being counted.

Ample Opportunity to Vote.

Judge Jarecki was emphatic in his contention that the present voting hours in Illinois provide ample opportunity for voters to get to the polls if they are at all interested in doing so.

"The average man now works eight hours," he said, "and the polls are open for 11 hours, so the average man has three hours in which to cast his ballot.

"The average working man can vote before he goes to work, but in case of necessity his employer must give him two hours off that he may vote.

"I assume that the other states, or most of them, are equally considerate of the rights of the voter. If there are some that are not, the faults in the laws of those states can be cured by them without forcing night voting on all of the 48 states.

"The Chicago election board found increased difficulty in filling its rosters of judges and clerks last spring, and by next year the task will be almost impossible, even if the number required is not increased.

"If, on top of that, we add four more night hours to the voting period, every one in a polling place will be tired out, if not exhausted, before the counting is completed. That is when the short pencil workers and other fraud experts would get in their work."

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

[This department answers questions covering problems related to the social welfare of relatives of service men, both in the column and by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent with inquiries to Sally Joy Brown.]

Mrs. G. D. writes: "My only son is in the army, and I am receiving an allowance of $37 a month. I find it quite difficult to meet all my obligations on this amount, since it is necessary for me to take rather expensive medicines. Occasionally, I am able to do small services for neighbors, such as sitting with children in the evening, and thus I can earn a little. Several persons have asked me if I would help them regularly, and such part time occupation would pay me $2 or $3 a week. Will it be necessary for me to report that income, and if I do, will my allowance be stopped?"

ANSWER: It is my understanding that the only changes in financial status of class "B" dependents which need be reported are those taking the dependent out of the category of "actual dependency." The law does not require that the dependent have no other income. It merely states that you must be dependent upon the soldier for a "substantial portion" of your support. Since the amount you are able to earn would not be sufficient to maintain you, I do not believe you need worry about small irregular amounts, such as you describe.

Mrs. C. M. asks: "My husband and I are living apart under a separation contract drawn up by a lawyer. There has been no divorce. Under the contract, he is required to give me $15 a week and pay necessary doctor bills. He has now been classified 1-A. We have two children, and he also has a child by a previous marriage. Could you tell me what allowance the government will give me and my two children if my husband is drafted? Because of the separation agreement, I wonder if I can receive the regular allowance for a wife and two children."

ANSWER: Without knowing the exact terms of the agreement, it is not possible for me to advise you. At the time your husband is inducted, he should bring with him a certified copy of the separation agreement to submit with the application for an allowance for his dependents. Government attorneys will then decide as to the legality of the agreement and the distribution of the government's contribution among the various dependents.

Mrs. D. W. writes: "My husband is a sergeant in the army. Last month he wrote that he had been in the hospital with a throat ailment. He informed me that he would receive no pay for the period during which he was hospitalized, because he was not on duty. This month he wrote me that he could send no money because he did not receive pay for the two weeks he spent in the hospital. Doesn't the army pay service men during all times of illness?"

ANSWER: Rules concerning pay vary according to the type of illness and the time at which the illness was contracted. In some cases, it is true that men receive no salaries. I would suggest that you contact the Home Service department of the American Red Cross, 616 South Michigan avenue. That agency may be able to advise you as to the circumstances of his illness and whether he was paid during that time.

Two Operators of Still Get Year and a Day Terms

Adam Weingart, 29 years old, and Dominick Tomson, 25, were sentenced to a year and a day in federal prison yesterday by Federal Judge William J. Campbell on their plea of guilty of operating a still in a garage at the rear of 3702 Wallace street. A companion, William Dunn, 26, who had quit the still before the government raid, was placed on probation.

HARVEY BOY, 10, IS SUFFOCATED IN REFRIGERATOR

Thirty hours after he disappeared from his home, Harold Smith, 10 years old, 14720 Wood street, Harvey, was found dead yesterday in an unused refrigerator in the basement of the home of a neighbor, Leonard Sanders, 14712 Wood street.

Police Chief Albert Roll of Harvey said the boy apparently had locked himself in the box, from which the freezing unit had been removed, and had suffocated. The police searched the refrigerator for finger prints on the theory that a playmate might have locked him in, altho the box stood on a slight incline which could have caused the door to slam shut, Roll said.

The boy's mother, Mrs. George Smith, wife of a former Harvey policeman, who has four other children, said she last saw him alive about 11 a. m. Wednesday. Shortly thereafter he called on Mrs. Sanders and got permission to take her husband's bicycle from the basement for a ride. Mrs. Sanders paid no further attention to him, she said. When she entered the basement yesterday she noticed that the door of the refrigerator was not ajar as she had left it, and, opening it, found his body.

DEMPSEY GIVEN CUSTODY OF HIS TWO CHILDREN

White Plains, N. Y., July 15 (AP).—Supreme Court Referee J. Addison Young announced today that he had given the custody of the two Dempsey children to their father, Lt. Comdr. Jack Dempsey, "with reasonable rights of visitation" to their mother, Hannah Williams Dempsey.

The decision was reached, he said, at a private hearing this morning in his chambers, which was attended by attorneys for Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, and his wife, from whom he obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce 10 days ago. Neither Dempsey nor Mrs. Dempsey attended.

Young said that, "As long as the children have been in his [Dempsey's] custody for some time, we can leave the arrangement as it is." He added that an arrangement under which Mrs. Dempsey frequently was permitted to see the children, Joan, 8 years old, and Barbara, 6, was already in effect.

ICKES AT ODDS WITH BROWN ON SUPPLY OF GAS

Secretary Denies There Is Any Excess.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—Sharp disagreement between Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown over gasoline rationing policies came into the open today following yesterday's announcement that the whole problem of the nation's oil and gasoline supply is to be restudied in the light of expanding military consumption.

The inquiry which is being made by War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes was initiated by Brown who said he believed Ickes has not allowed as much gasoline as possible for civilian driving, it was disclosed. Byrnes is expected to consult Bernard M. Baruch and a delegation of eastern congressmen have urged him to have the Baruch rubber committee reconstituted to make a complete inquiry as was done in the case of rubber last year.

None Can Be Spared.

Adding to the confusion and bewilderment of the motoring public which cheered Brown's statement, was a statement by Ickes that no gasoline can be spared for any except essential purposes in the east coast shortage area on which a stringent pleasure driving ban has been clamped.

Ickes asserted that the overseas military demands are increasing steadily and explained to a press conference that "great and enormous demands for oil and gasoline dropped on us like bombs with no prior notice at all."

He said these demands are growing "higher and higher" every day and that the petroleum administration "couldn't err" in allowing any gasoline to be used for anything other than essential purposes.

Stocks Still Subnormal.

He declared that petroleum stocks are still far below "what they ought to be," even tho last week's figures showed an improvement.

Rep. Fred A. Hartley [R., N. J.], heading the congressional delegation that called upon Byrnes yesterday, urged that civilians be allowed a specified amount of gasoline to use as they see fit as is the system in Canada, which gets more than 80 per cent of its motor fuel from this country. Hartley also noted that Canadian motorists are allowed nearly twice as much gasoline as the one and a half gallons per week allotted to A card drivers on the Atlantic seaboard.

Commenting on the Hartley suggestion, Ickes said that it might mean that "vital gasoline" would be used for nonessential purposes.

Brown Denies Fight.

Meanwhile, at his press conference, Brown emphasized his belief that holders of basic A cards should be permitted to use their gasoline allotment as they see fit. He said that "other high figures" in the government supported his stand on lifting the pleasure driving ban at the earliest possible moment.

Apparently anxious to avoid the start of another battle of Washington, Brown emphasized that despite his apparent differences with Ickes, as he put it, there is no fight between them.

INSURGENT COAL STRIKE ENDS AS U. S. JURY ACTS

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15 (AP).—The insurgent coal strike in southwestern Pennsylvania collapsed today as a federal grand jury continued an investigation to determine who was responsible for continuing the walkout which began June 20.

Two mass meetings, with United Mine Workers' locals from the dozen mines which had remained idle represented, voted unanimously yesterday and last night to resume work today. All but about 3,500 of the final 10,000 holdouts went back yesterday.

"I have been called down to Pittsburgh by the federal bureau of investigation," Anthony Congello, president of the local at the Isabella mine of the Weirton Steel company, told the mass meeting at Isabella, near Uniontown. "The government means business. My own intentions are to go back to work."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

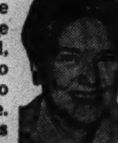
THE QUESTION.

Were you ever remembered for a good deed you did in the past?

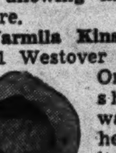
WHERE ASKED.

Lake street and Harlem avenue, Oak Park.

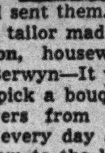
THE ANSWERS.



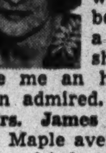
Mrs. Thomas W. Harwood, housewife, Oakland Park, Fla.—I was introduced to a girl in Florida who had come from Kentucky to see her soldier husband, but had no place to live. I invited her to stay at my home. Months later it was impossible to get my car out of Florida to use in Kentucky. She more than repaid me by allowing me to use her auto there.



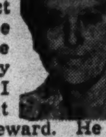
Yarmila Kinst, beauty operator, 2521 Westover avenue, Riverside—One of my beauty shop customers always came in to have her hair done when it was closing time. I had to stay an extra hour and she never seemed to appreciate it at all. But one day I was surprised to receive a box of fine stockings from my late customer.



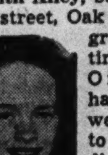
Walter E. Taylor, supervisor, street car company, 531 North 2d avenue, Villa Park—When I fixed up the porch for the old couple who were living on a pension I didn't expect to get paid for the job. A couple of weeks later they gave me a beautiful suit some one had sent them. It fit me as tho it were tailor made.



Mrs. Oliver Nelson, housewife, 3226 Maple avenue, Berwyn—It was fun to pick a bouquet of flowers from our garden every day and take them to the lady across the street. She was elderly and had been sick in bed for a long time. Before she moved away she gave me an heirloom doll I had often admired.



Mrs. James Mottys, housewife, 3801 Maple avenue, Berwyn—I sent three fried chickens to my son and his buddies at an army camp. I didn't expect any more than the satisfaction it gave me. That evening my son walked in and I couldn't help but think that was my reward. He assured me the boys would take care of the chickens.



Ruth Alley, bookkeeper, 300 Madison street, Oak Park—Before I was graduated I had a part time job as waitress. One customer was hard to please and I went out of my way to see if I could serve dinner as she liked it. When I was graduated she gave me a beautiful piece of jewelry. I didn't think she even knew my name.

ONE U. S. CAMP TO BE USED FOR DISLOYAL JAPS

WRA Centers to Be Shut as Others Are Freed.

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—Disloyal Japanese in war relocation authority camps will be segregated in a single center "within the next few weeks," Director Dillion S. Myer revealed tonight.

The WRA camps probably will be abandoned, he indicated in an address over the National Broadcasting company's network. The loyal Japanese will be allowed to leave the camps for work in factories, farms, and "other places where their abilities can be used to best advantage," he said.

"We believe that it is possible to distinguish between the loyal and the disloyal people of Japanese ancestry, as well as with other national or racial groups, to a degree which will insure the national security," he declared.

Investigation Lengthy Process.

Asserting that there are "some people" in the relocation centers who have indicated they prefer to be Japanese rather than American, Myer said it had taken time to gather enough information for the segregation program.

"We expect to carry out the program as soon as transportation can be obtained to make the move," he said.

Myer did not give the proposed location of the new center.

Myer termed "untrue and misleading" much information which he said had been circulated about the centers. A subcommittee of the Dies committee on un-American activities has been investigating the camps.

Suspects Arrested Early.

Enemy aliens suspected of being subversive were arrested immediately after Pearl Harbor and were interned, Myer said, adding that they have never been in the relocation centers. He said the centers were established primarily to provide living quarters for the evacuees while long range settlement plans were being worked out.

WRA doesn't feel, he said, that the centers are desirable institutions.

"It isn't the American way to have children grow up behind barbed wire," he said. "It's difficult to reconcile democracy with barbed wire."

ORDER PRICE CUT ON SHOES SOLD MINUS COUPONS

Retailers planning to sell obsolete and odd lot shoes ration free from July 19 thru 31 under a special authorization by the office of price administration were warned yesterday that they must reduce prices to within a 10 per cent markup over their cost, or to 25 per cent below the regular retail price on July 1.

The OPA will permit retailers to sell the following percentages of their April 10, 1943, inventory without ration points: 1 per cent of men's and boys' dress and work shoes; 4 per cent of women's shoes; 2 per cent of misses', children's, infants', and other rationed shoes.

After July 31 all shoes unsold under this plan may be retailed only on ration coupons.

Coffee rationing will be terminated on or before Aug. 11 because supplies are ample, office of price administration officials in Washington predicted yesterday.

COURT DECIDES NEVADA DIVORCE VALID IN ILLINOIS

Nevada divorces, long unrecognized by Illinois courts, were upheld in the state for the first time yesterday when the Appellate court at Galesburg ruled that "a divorce decree which is valid in Nevada is also valid in Illinois."

The high court based its decision on a ruling in which the United States Supreme court last December held that all other states must recognize Nevada's six week decrees.

The Appellate court's decision, delivered by Justice Fred G. Wolfe of 2d Illinois district, was concurred in by Justice Baline Huffman, but Justice Franklin R. Dove dissented. The latter held "that the validity of foreign divorces may be challenged" in Illinois, and added:

"If it appears from the evidence that the domicile of the plaintiff in such a suit is fictitious, fraudulent and falsely alleged for the purpose of obtaining a divorce, our courts should so hold."

BUY MORE WAR BONDS

Sure, you like Beef

—but right now, because more beef is needed for war, your red ration stamps will go further if you ask for Pork, Lamb or Sausage

The recent increase in beef point values was intended to get people to eat less beef, so the armed forces could get enough.

- War is a great beef eater. New methods of boning, freezing and shipping beef to America's fighting men have made it one of the most practical and highly demanded of all fighting foods.
- When your mouth is watering for a good steak, which you may not be able to get, remember that no man ever turned up his nose at barbecued spareribs, a hearty lamb stew with dumplings, ham hocks, lamb patties, liver sausage on rye, or a platter of cold cuts.
- Remember, every cut of meat from the royal rib roast to the most democratic soup meat has the biologically complete proteins which the whole nutritional world is stressing these days.
- Every cut of meat also contains essential B vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin, niacin) and important minerals (iron, copper, phosphorus).
- Remember, high ration point value is no guide to nutritional value. All meats contain the same nutrients.
- If we can't get beef, let's be glad we can get some of these other meats practically all of the time.

The nutritional essentials of meat (proteins, B vitamins, minerals) are not stored in the body to any appreciable extent. They must be supplied in the daily foods we eat.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY ON MEAT

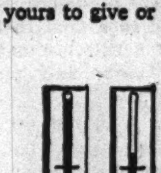
Q. What should I pay for Meat?

A. Don't go over the ceiling prices set by the government. These prices, cut by cut, are displayed in your meat market, where you can see them. Your meat-man should not ask more than the ceiling; you should not pay more. If you do, you are helping the Black Market.

Q. What is "playing ball" with ration stamps?

A. These are the three Honor Rules of red ration stamps—

1. Don't buy any meat without proper number of stamps.
2. Destroy unused or expired stamps.
3. These stamps are yours to use —not yours to give or sell.



Q. Can't I get along with less meat in hot weather?

A. This notion has been completely disproved by modern nutrition, which teaches that protein requirements do not vary appreciably, regardless of season, temperature or climate. The human body is the same summer and winter. Its protein needs are the same, whether you sit at a desk or work in a garden.

Q. What do you mean by "making the most of meat"?

A. It means a sharp knife and cutting the pieces thinner.

It means everybody cleaning the plate every time.

It means looking on leftover meat as a basic treasury of future meals.

It means a lot more "part-meat" dishes—extending the flavor and nutrients of meat through meat stews, meat pies, croquettes, casserole dishes and other good old-fashioned thrift dishes which the war has brought to modern tables.

1. Do you admit that the American Revolution was the greatest event in the history of human progress?

2. Does not the American Constitution provide by far the best form of government ever created?

A THIRD QUESTION.

Today, another week having passed, we are directing another question, the third one, to One Worlders, Union Nowers, New Dealers, and all the rest of the advocates of a super-government. We reprint the first two questions at the head of this page and now we ask this one:

Is it not a fact that Americans enjoy a degree of self-government such as has been achieved nowhere else in the world?

The three questions, like those that will follow them, are all intended to emphasize a fact that the proponents of super-government try to hide. They want the people of this country to believe that we have nothing to lose if we subordinate the United States to a world government.

The question about the American Revolution was raised to underline the importance to our country and to the world of our independence. We could not have achieved what we have achieved if our people had not been free of foreign control over our destinies. The One Worlders and the rest of them want to restore the yoke that the Revolution threw off.

The question about the Constitution was raised to carry the thought a step further. The Constitution has given us the best form of government the world has known, and because it is best, the most durable government in the modern world. A super-government would supersede the Constitution. The Revolution gave us the Constitution; a super-government would take it away. The form of government that has enabled us to live as free men and to become first among the nations would be lost to us.

The first two questions pick up the thought that Lincoln had in mind when he wrote the first sentence of the Gettysburg address. The new question echoes the hope he expressed in the last sentence, "that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

That kind of government, Lincoln believed, was America's great contribution to the world. America has shown that the people can rule themselves through officers of their own choosing. Under our form of self-rule men can rise to their full stature and walk unafraid. The law and the officers who enforce it are not imposed upon the people from without but are the free choice of the people themselves. We have not had to suspend the Constitution or elections in this country in war or in peace.

Americans are proud of the achievements of their young men in this war. They are the best fighting men the world knows. They have self-discipline, self-confidence, and individual initiative to a degree unknown in any other army and navy.

Our boys are of the same blood as their European allies and enemies. The difference is that our young men have lived in a land that for more than a century and a half had enjoyed self-government, free of caste and foreign domination. The advocates of super-government would turn the clock back. If they succeed, we shall still have young men in America but they will not be the equal of those who wear their country's uniform today.

CASH IN THE VAULT.

Safe blowers cracked a vault on the northwest side over last week-end and made off with their selection of choice valuables found in the several hundred boxes they were able to get at. A decided preference was shown for cash, and there was evidently a lot of it there.

Chance of loss of jewelry in a public vault can be surmounted by insurance at very little cost. As for cash it is both childish and unpatriotic to keep it in a vault. The government sells war savings bonds which can be turned into cash at will, but only by the rightful owner. If the bonds are lost by robbery, the government stands ready to replace them. An 81 year old man had $5,000 in war bonds and $400 in cash in his box in the looted vault. The safe blowers took the cash and threw the bonds on the floor.

Those who do not either buy bonds with their idle money or deposit it in a bank which could invest it in war bonds are hurting the war effort. The government needs the money to pay the huge expenses involved in fighting the enemy. It offers an attractive return. Those who keep their cash in a vault are the owners of slacker dollars. And, moreover, the Portage Park incident shows that they're even incurring a risk of loss.

THEY NEVER WOULD BE MISSED.

1. The woman carrying a baby who got on the train at Highland Park, lighted a cigaret, and continued to smoke after twice being reminded by a trainman that the car was reserved for nonsmokers.

2. The man who got on the front end at Winnetka and walked to his card game in the rear car, smoking a not too fragrant cigar. He has been doing it for years.

3. The passenger on the aisle who kept the passenger next to the window locked in, thus preventing his victim from getting off the train in time to get a seat in Louie's cab.

NOTE ON BUROCRACY.

Demarest, N. J., is a town of 1,400 residents. It has a volunteer fire department. The office of defense transportation allotted Fire Chief Arthur W. Griffin 70 gallons of gasoline last April to run his three pieces of apparatus. Chief Griffin fought a lot of grass fires last spring and now he has only enough gasoline left to pump water for five minutes.

He asked the ODT for more gasoline. The ODT turned him down. Harry F. Tate, a Wall street broker who lives in Demarest, thought he could do better. He called his bout with ODT "the biggest pushing around any human being has ever received." Demarest still has only enough gasoline for five minutes' fire fighting. The office of civilian defense has offered the city another pumper, but no gasoline.

A fire in this town, deprived of its fire fighting equipment, could be costly. If lives or property were lost thru burocratic stupidity, somebody ought to go to jail, but the burocrats concerned aren't uneasy. Evidently they have been taught to believe that they can do no wrong.

WHY THE OPA IS A FAILURE.

Mr. Roosevelt's administrative organization is gaping at the seams and the gaps are widening every minute. The OPA, already punch drunk and tottering, took an uppercut from Deputy Administrator Maxon who, in resigning, declared that Houdini could not untangle its chaos, and that it is impossible for it to perform its highly essential tasks while its professors and Frankfurter hot dogs are using it to collectivize the economy of the nation.

Meanwhile, Henry Wallace's Milo Perkins gathers the employes of the board of economic warfare to indoctrinate them in their boss' feud with Jesse Jones, and tells them that the Vice President opened the attack in order "to turn up the stones where the slimy things were crawling."

This administrative incompetence in the New Deal is nothing new. It goes back to its beginnings. The tragic difference, however, is that while in peace time the incapacity of Mr. Roosevelt's administrators was often a disguised boon to the country, in war time the same incompetence threatens our national existence.

In peace time Mr. Roosevelt was usually doing something that wasn't good for the country, and very often the worse he did it the better off the country was. The NRA, for example, would have been an intolerable tyranny had it operated as its planners envisioned it. Instead, it merely ended in intolerable chaos and disintegrated before its inherent viciousness had been made apparent to a great many people in the country.

The war, however, has resulted in controls being placed on every phase of our economic activity, and the New Deal maladministration of its own controls has ceased to be merely a national irritation—it is a national menace. True, the advocates of the planned economy are demonstrating daily the fallacy of their theories, but the demonstration is wrecking the country.

This incompetence is too deep-seated to be cured by minor reforms. Of course, things would be better if Mr. Roosevelt got a cabinet that he could lean on instead of one that he has to spend much of his time propping up. Things would be better if Mr. Roosevelt fired his political favorites when they failed to deliver, instead of shifting them to other and equally important jobs. Things would be better if he abandoned the policy which he announced with such insouciance in the early days of the New Deal, of trying one thing and if that didn't work, trying another. This has merely piled one confusion on the top of another and one incapable agency on top of another agency that has failed to function.

These are all defects which might be remedied immediately if Mr. Roosevelt were willing to do so, but they are not the fundamental defect. The fundamental defect in the New Deal organization is that Mr. Roosevelt himself is an incompetent administrator and always has been. He refuses to delegate authority. He is jealous of his subordinates, and thus inevitably surrounds himself with second rate men.

Mr. Maxon predicted dire results if the office of price administration breaks down. In a limited sense he is right. It is already fairly well broken down and the country is already suffering the consequences, but the OPA is destined, whatever leadership it may get, to be a largely futile undertaking. It can be run more simply and efficiently, it is true, but its task is a hopeless one, in view of the administration's fiscal policy. The OPA is, in fact, largely a device to make people think something is being done about rising prices.

It is in the Roosevelt fiscal policy that the danger of inflation lies, and particularly in that phase of the policy which undertakes to guarantee the people that none of the so-called social gains of the New Deal in peace time shall be lost because of the war. The theory that the New Deal will continue to raise substandard wages has been merely a blanket for the practical attempt to buy the war workers' votes for the fourth term. The raising of substandard wages has proceeded to the point where the men who sweep the floors in a Chicago torpedo plant are getting $72 a week, which approaches the base pay of lieutenant commanders in the navy.

So long as the New Deal continues to swell consumer income by these inordinate wage payments, while at the same time restricting the production of consumer goods for which that income is normally spent, inflation is inevitable. This is not any hole in the dike in which the OPA can stick its finger. It is an enormous flood gate and Mr. Roosevelt is the man who is keeping it open.

CORN BORER CYCLE.

[Indianapolis News.]

Many victory gardeners whose prospects for roasting ears were ruined by the European corn borer have been mystified by the presence of the pest, especially on land where corn never was grown before.

The explanation is that as a part of the borer's cycle the parent moth flies until it finds growing corn on which to deposit the eggs. The eggs can be identified as a scalylike substance on the underside of the leaves. From these eggs the tiny borers hatch, becoming larger and more vigorous as they attack the corn's tassels and then enter the main stalk.

If the borer's presence is suspected before the tassels form, some types of insecticide will be effective. After the borer goes to work, however, it is too late to eradicate it. What is known as the first brood in the central part of Indiana is damaging the young corn now. The cycle for the second brood extends from July to September, and in the extreme southern part of Indiana there are traces of a third brood.

A large percentage of the first planting of sweet corn is now badly infested or ruined, but the second planting—where gardeners were trying for a succession thru the summer—may possibly escape and provide a satisfactory yield.

In Britain, war pressures have broken down the barriers of caste, and any day we look for a new Scotland Yard novel in which it is old Sir Hilary who stabs the butler.—Detroit News.

UNDER THE SIGN OF SIRIUS.

These are the "dog days" when household pets are resting quietly in the shade and saying to themselves, "Human beings delight to bark and bite." The official period runs from July 3 to Aug. 13, and its only observance this year will be among the war gardeners, bringing in the sheaves of kohlrabi.

The vacant lots of the city's outskirts, where not invaded by gardeners, are knee-deep in a luxuriant growth of wild flowers, white or faintly lavender, with a suggestion of fragrance. You can make the circle tour of the Smoky mountains, famed for their botany, without seeing such a display in 12 hours of serpentine driving. These Chicago flowers, however, do not bear poetic names. They are merely the soapwort or bouncing Bet.

History of the Gold Coast—XXXVIII.

The 1890s were the days of the bicycle craze. After years of inventive effort the high-wheeled velocipede, the bone-breaker and nose-splitter of the '80s, had given way to the low, two-wheeled safety bicycle. Chicago, with its flat terrain, was ideal for it and soon the parks and boulevards swarmed with them. Manufacturers vied with one another in turning out new models each year in all colors, with nickel, silver, and in some cases gold plated fittings.

Cycling became the rage. Knickerbockers, jerseys, sport coats, and peaked caps became de rigueur for the gentleman cyclist, and split skirts, shirtwaists, and sailor hats for the lady. Bloomers were seen occasionally, but were frowned upon. On Sundays and holidays the Drive and Pine street, now grown up into Lincoln Park boulevard and macadamized, were thronged with machines of all kinds—singles, tandems, tricycles, and some for four, six, and even 10 and 12.

The cycle clubs would turn out in numbers. With leader and color-bearer at the head setting the pace, the members following in columns of twos, threes, or fours, they would pedal their way to Lincoln park or across the Rush street bridge to Michigan avenue. On warm evenings the Drive, glowing with sparkling headlights, and on special occasions with Chinese lanterns, presented an animated and colorful spectacle. The pest was present as usual—the scorcher who, bent over his ram's-horn handlebars, would split the wind, weaving in and out of the crowded boulevard regardless of the danger to the others and to pedestrians. Occasionally he would be caught by a "sparrow cop," also mounted on a bike.

The cycling event of the year was the race sponsored by the American Century club, a national organization of cyclists who had ridden 100 continuous miles within a specified time. The water tower was the start and finish of the run. At 6 a. m., Memorial day, the first starters would pedal off furiously at the crack of the gun on the 100 mile race to Wheeling and return, followed by hundreds of others at frequent intervals during the early morning hours. The winner would cross the finish line about six hours later and receive for this grueling feat the usual trophy and, what was better still, the blue ribbon of the cycling world—the right to wear a century medal on his manly chest with a bar for the run he had made and additional bars for future runs. The affair was managed by veteran century riders, who usually wore a long chain of bars. They owned the water tower for the day, and stalked about with aplomb, much to the admiration of the youngsters.

The bicycle craze died down as suddenly as it arose. The principal cause of its decline was the realization that cycling, after all, was work even for the ardent young swain pumping his turtle dove around the boulevards on a bicycle built for two.

HAVING A GOOD SUMMER?

What a change in our household this summer:
No vacation for dad or for mother;
With classes at "U" and a V-garden, too,
We are digging at one or the other.

No time for golf or the movies.
The show's good tonight, it is said,
And we'd like to go—but the insects!—And so
We'll get out the sprayer instead.

We've sadly neglected our reading,
And canceled delectable plans.
We scurry to school, or we follow the rule
Of "two hours from garden to cans."

Now weeding is less fun than tennis,
And the muscles do misbehave,
Yielding soreness and cramps. But consider the stamps

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DENGUE FEVER, A VIRUS INFECTION.

DENGUE, or breakbone fever, is a virus infection. Prior to the onset of symptoms, the invader will exist in the blood of the victim for several days. How does it get there? We can blame insect carriers, chiefly mosquitoes. The species which spread the organisms are well known, not only in this country, but in the Philippines. Several types can transport the disease from the sick to the well and epidemics usually follow a rainy season when breeding conditions are favorable.

For the most part, the diagnosis is made from the clinical picture. But care must be taken not to confuse the signs with those presented by rheumatic fever, malaria, influenza, etc. Fortunately, the disorder is not fatal. Nevertheless, it may make the patient about as miserable as it is possible to be and survive.

As a rule, a high temperature will persist for two to ten days, depending upon the virulence of the ailment. Early in the seizure, there will be headache, a boring sensation behind the eyes, backache, tender joints, and soreness in the legs. Altho skin rashes are not constant they appear some time during the seizure. If flushing occurs, it will fade only to be replaced by dusky, measlelike blemishes. Later, flaking of the cuticle will be accompanied by intense itching. Enlargement of various glands is common.

There is no specific treatment but bed rest is demanded as well as good nursing. Sponge baths to lower the temperature will prove comforting. Fluids may be administered freely, particularly fruit juices. If pain is marked, it may be relieved by sedatives.

As the digestive tract is rarely involved, nutrition can be maintained without much difficulty. Frequently, however, the patient will refuse to eat because he feels so wretched.

While one attack does not confer immunity, some degree of protection is acquired. The main thing is prevention, which we can exercise by avoiding unnecessary contacts with infected mosquitoes. Thus far no vaccine has been developed.

The disease becomes extremely important from the standpoint of troops, as soldiers will be incapacitated for from one to two weeks, even tho complications do not present themselves. In many of our southern communities, the ailment is called "six-day fever" because—at the end of that interval—the mercury will drop. But another week or more may elapse before the individual feels strong enough to resume his aforetime activity.

While the malady is confined largely to our gulf states, in certain periods, it has been reported from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, etc. Only a few years ago a large proportion of the population of western Texas fell victim to the insect-borne illness. A decade ago, more than a million cases were recorded in the United States in a single season. It is widely prevalent in all of the Pacific islands.

SUGAR IN URINE.

R. H. writes: What is renal diabetes?

REPLY.

Not true diabetes, in the sense that certain cells of the pancreas have refused to function. It means that the victim has consumed too much sugar [carbohydrates]. In consequence, the material filters thru the kidneys and appears in the urine.

AFTER-EFFECTS.

T. Y. writes: Is there such a thing as chronic encephalitis?

REPLY.

You probably have in mind the type which disturbs the outer portion of the brain. This is followed by shaking palsy, or Parkinson's tremors.

REPLY.

BREEDING BOOTLEGGERS.

Chicago, July 13.—During the Volstead era you and other influential newspapers and prominent citizens fought prohibition as a matter of principle. Today we are again in the grip of prohibition and no one seems to do anything about this one.

I refer to the hold the liquor stores have on the retail trade. Liquor is subjected to heavy taxes, it is true; but does this justify a price increase of from 20 to 30 cents every week or so? Whiskies and gins have gone up several hundred per cent in the last year, and continue to rise. The excuse is, "You know they aren't making it any more." What about the warehouses full of liquor made before Pearl Harbor? Naturally releasing this stock would reduce prices, so it stays locked up. What about commodity ceilings? It apparently does not obtain where liquor is concerned.

Naturally there must eventually be a reaction. Either drinkers of hard liquor will turn to beer and light wines or the bootlegger will burgeon once more. In either case, the pay dirt in the gold mines of local liquor stores will run out. It will serve them right.

ANNOYED.

DOVES WERE THRIFTY, TOO.

Oak Park, Ill., July 6.—A recent letter to your column tells of a robin who, with slight repairs, is using the same nest for a second brood. Many ornithologists lay down hard and fast rules, telling us that birds never use the same nest twice. However, I believe that birds, like humans, have their individual tastes and habits. I recently had the same experience with a pair of mourning doves, an extremely shy bird, who built less than five feet from the ground in a fir tree, inside a fenced in garden where a small dog runs, and about 10 feet from an outdoor fireplace where many summer meals are prepared. By taking a casual peek now and then, progress could be watched. Two babies were fed and finally the nest was empty, but not for long. Not many days later the female was brooding again on the same nest. On one occasion when she left the nest for not more than 30 seconds we peeked, and sure enough, two more eggs. The male was missing during the day, but we knew he was teaching his family to find food. In the evening, however, his cooing could be heard near-by.

THE POLISH STAMP.

Chicago, July 13.—In reply to Mr. Hafner's letter of July 7, the papers have carried extensively the story of the forthcoming twelve issues of stamps showing the flags of the occupied nations, the flags that soon shall fly again in those countries, thank God!

Does Mr. Hafner know that in 1932 Poland issued a stamp with the picture of George Washington, commemorating the 200th anniversary of his birth, and again in 1938 one showing the city of New York; Thomas Paine, George Washington, and the Goddess of Liberty?

In 1918 we issued stamps depicting the flags of the allied nations, we issued stamps in honor of Von Steuben of Germany, Rochambeau and De Grasse of France, and Kosciuszko, the great Pole who was granted his citizenship in reward for his great service in behalf of American independence.

ARCHIE HIGNETT.

WHERE WERE THE MOSQUITOES LAST YEAR?

Chicago, July 13.—Please let me ask your music critic if it is necessary to consult "Webster," for a definition of the word mediocre? Using it as she did today, in her criticism of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia Park, proves to me that she has absolutely no understanding of what environment, temperature, humidity, and insects can do to any players playing outdoor concerts, nor does she know what humidity does to the strings and bows of the string section. If she will interest herself in conditions pertinent to the above, she will make allowance for many of the defects to which she refers.

As a former member of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, where I have played for 27 years, including many seasons in Ravinia park. I resent Miss Cassidy's article in THE TRIBUNE.

There are no better critics to pass on a conductor than the men who play under him and all of those whom I have questioned regarding Mr. Defauw rate him as a great conductor and that's good enough for me.

Finally, why have music critics when they continually contradict one another? Let the public decide for themselves.

TURNABOUT.

Chicago, July 13.—I hereby claim the honor of being the very last Chicagoan to contribute his bit to the landlord-tenant feud. And my solution is so simple it's strange it hasn't been offered before this. Let the tenants become landlords, and the landlords become tenants.

I am a landlord, and want to be the first to take advantage of this transposition. I want to plow up the lawn. I want to drive up and down hallways in a jeep. I want to tear the building down, brick by brick.

Of course, in my building most of this spade work has been done.

Naturally I have my own doors properly sandbagged. I have arrangements to sleep in a boiler factory near by.

Whenever I venture to cross the no man's land that was once a lawn I go disguised as a tenant, to avoid injury at the hands of "Mother's Angels."

My place is modern—oversized mortgage, overdue tax bills, and rent ceilings. Incidentally, prospective owner, when and if flats become plentiful, I am sure that the "Great White Father" will initiate rent floors to protect landlords. Just hold your breath until he does.

L. NOSROVLOH.

BACON AND LARD HOGS.

Freeport, Ill., July 12.—In Canada 220 pound hogs are "tops" and bring the top prices as lardy bacon is not desired. The bacon contains good strips of meat and little lard. The United States places top prices on 240 to 270 pound hogs. Were we to cut down the top price to 220 pound hogs, the corn and other feed used to produce the extra poundage could be saved and used to other advantage, produce better bacon for the consumer as well as improving conditions for the farmer, as he would be compelled to use less high priced grain to bring up poundage and take care of a greater number of hogs.

"COURAGE."

Chicago, July 13.—The other day you had a wonderfully touching cartoon on the front page of your newspaper. It was headed "Courage" and showed a mother looking out of the living room window, in which hung two service stars. She was anxiously awaiting the mailman, who could be seen approaching.

My youngest son, a member of the army air forces, was killed in Africa last Dec. 19. We did not learn of our son's death until Feb. 19, and all thru these winter months I watched his brave mother [as so perfectly depicted in the cartoon] awaiting word from our boy—word that never came, in spite of the fact that she knew if everything was well with him he would not neglect to write. I feel that the mothers of our soldiers are every bit as heroic as their sons. I feel that this heroism has received very slight attention from a citizenry that owes them so much. Therefore, I was glad to see the cartoon in question, and I hope to see more recognition given to these courageous mothers who have had their hearts broken by the war, but have stood up bravely and are still courageously carrying on. Our boy was a member of the Lake View R. O. T. C. during his high school days and proudly wore a Tribune medal.

F. F. PAUL SR.

WHY STAND BY?

Maywood, Ill., July 12.—J. C. Hafner, who stated that he bought a 5 cent postage stamp upon which was printed the Polish flag, wonders if it was just another attempt, on the part of the New Deal, to keep the printers working.

I must confess that I am just as dumb as Mr. Hafner. However, I would rather believe that this 5 cent stamp is just another attempt on the part of some of these long haired internationalists who are determined to ruin the structure of the country by forcing these foreign emblems down the throats of us poor saps who stand by and permit such things.

Lebanon, Ind., July 10. — [Legal Friend of the People].—1. Is it lawful for the owner of land on one side of a river to erect a fence the full width of the stream? The fence is intended to control cattle. 2. The river is navigable for small pleasure craft and is used extensively for outings and fishing. The fence completely blocks the passage of these boats.

P. I.

1. If his property boundary extends only to the center of the stream, then obviously he has no right to erect a fence beyond the center.

2. If the stream is navigable, he has no right to fence even to the center.

URGE U. S. NAME RECEIVER FOR LOOTED VAULT

Federal Move Is Sought by Boxholders.

A formal charge of fraud was tossed into the cauldron simmering around the Portage Park Safe Deposit vault robbery as attorneys for five boxholders filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday in federal District court.

The petitioners alleged that the operators of the safe deposit company conveyed, transferred, concealed, removed or permitted to be removed certain properties with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors, and that on July 10 and 11 certain persons unknown to the petitioners removed personal property belonging to them and other victims from the premises.

Will Ask for Receiver.

"Vault employes have permitted a lot of property to be taken out of there by people who claim it is theirs," Milton Gerwin, one of the attorneys, said, "but when our clients make similar demands to recover their property, they meet with no response." Gerwin and Atty. Theodore D. Kahn said they will appear before Federal Judge William J. Campbell this morning to ask that he appoint a receiver and grant a temporary restraining order on the ground of emergency.

The creditors and their claims are: Earl Derx, 5534 North Mango avenue, $1,500 in currency and $3,500 in securities; Mrs. Marie Edlin,, 5709 Berenice avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. Waunita Pinkonsly, $1,000 cash and securities of unknown value; Joseph M. Morman, 4056 North Major avenue, $1,400 cash and $2,500 securities, and Joseph Christ, 4255 North Mason avenue, $1,800 cash and $1,500 in securities. The victims charged that the affairs of the company are in a chaotic condition and that property belonging to hundreds of persons has been so intermingled and confused that officials cannot determine what losses have been sustained.

John J. Oros, manager of the vault, told a customer that he had always refused to rent boxes to gamblers. "I know them all, too," he said, "because I was a United States marshal for 20 years. I kept my own valuables in a box here, but it just happened to be on the side the burglars didn't touch."

Oros released an incomplete list of names of victims, but their losses have not been itemized. They are:

JUDGE SPARES GIRL FROM RETURNING TO FATHER AS 'SLAVEY'

Judge John J. Lupe in the Superior court issued an injunction yesterday to save Frieda Wesler, 17 years old, from being taken back to the home of her father, where, she charged, she was kept as a slavey for her stepmother.

The injunction was issued against the girl's father, Henry Wesler of Richmond, Ind., and the Chicago police department. Frieda left her father's home Tuesday and came to the home of her mother, Mrs. Mattie Milner of 7632 South Campbell avenue.

Wesler followed her Wednesday, enlisting the aid of Chicago police. When they appeared at Mrs. Milner's home, she refused to give up Frieda.

The girl, accompanied by Atty. Sol R. Friedman, told her story to Judge Lupe yesterday.

"My parents were divorced in 1931," she said. "I was placed in custody of my father. Then he remarried, and two more children were born—a boy and a girl.

"Recently my stepmother has been working in a war plant. I have to do all the housework and take care of the children."

SAVE the Carcass
RECAP and Roll!
EVEN though your driving is cut to the bone, there's no mystery about oil-change time! Every time you finish a page in your gasoline ration book, it's time to change your oil—for two big reasons!

Reason No. 1

Even with reduced driving your oil is constantly exposed to impurities, dust and other abrasives carried through the air—and, at the same time, to the deteriorating effects of partially burned fuel particles!

Reason No. 2

With today's short trips at lower driving speeds, your engine does not get hot enough to "cook-off" water formed by combustion and condensation. This water accumulates in your crankcase and further contaminates your oil.

SO BE ON THE SAFE SIDE. WHEN YOU USE YOUR LAST NO. 6 COUPON THAT'S YOUR REMINDER TO CHANGE YOUR OIL!

SIGNS MEASURES TO EASE COUNTY FINANCIAL WOES

Green Approves School Pegged Levy Bill.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 15. — Gov. Dwight H. Green today signed bills to help the Cook county government with its financial problems and to authorize a higher pegged tax levy for the Chicago public schools. He vetoed the Wimbish bill relating to criminal confessions.

Not yet signed is a bill to permit county peg levies for 1944-'45 totaling $18,000,000, some $1,700,000 greater than for the previous two years.

Most important bill of the series signed today to assist Cook county will transfer the $11,400,000 annual cost of the Oak Forest Infirmary from the county to the city of Chicago and the country townships.

Give Hospital Lien Rights.

Another bill signed today will give the Cook county hospital the same lien rights as private hospitals.

Purpose of two remaining bills is to enable the county board to create a centralized purchasing department. A department of purchasing will be set up to take purchasing functions from Joseph Donohue, 47th ward Democratic committeeman, who is superintendent of public service.

Under these bills the county also is permitted to reclassify employes' jobs in an effort to achieve "equal pay for equal work."

53 Million for Schools.

A $53,200,000 annual pegged levy for 1944 and 1945 is authorized under the Chicago schools' bill. This is $1,200,000 more than the present figure, but $2,600,000 less than the amount sought by Chicago Democrats.

Included among the remaining 17 bills approved today were:

Two bills of a series providing for the placing of delinquent and dependent boys and girls in foster homes, the cost to be shared by counties and the state.

A bill extending indefinitely the life of the legislative council, which has a small staff of expert researchers who study subjects selected by the legislators comprising the council.

The Crowley bill liberalizing the firemen's pension fund law for cities between 5,000 and 200,000 population. Benefits to widows, orphans, and parents are increased.

A bill authorizing a county tax of 10 cents per $100 of assessed property valuation for maintenance of public nonsectarian hospitals, if approved by voters in a referendum.

The controversial bill authorizing the state normal school at Carbondale to broaden its field of instruction to include nearly any subject.

Third Veto of Session.

Gov. Green's veto of the criminal confessions bill was his third of the 63d general assembly. It was the second veto to hit a bill sponsored by Sen. Christopher Columbus Wimbish [D., Chicago], new Negro legislator.

The governor conceded that the bill's purpose was to protect accused persons against third degree methods, but declared that it would not accomplish this.

The Wimbish bill would have required that an accused person signing a criminal confession would have had to tell a judge within 24 hours after signing it that he had done so voluntarily. Otherwise, the confession could not have been admitted as evidence.

WAC PICKS OUT WRONG VICTIM FOR AUTHORITY

"I'll bet you a war bond I'll be an officer before you are," said Mrs. Evelyn Wagner, 28 years old, of Elgin, to her husband, Ronald, when the two joined the services, she as a WAC auxiliary, he as an army private. The husband took the bet.

Scarcely four months later, the two returned this week to Elgin on leave. The wife wore a lieutenant's bar on her cap. The husband paid the bet.

In the Red Lion tavern on State route 25, four miles south of Elgin, the WAC saw two soldier strangers, Corp. Richard H. Johnson and Pvt. Donald Mink, home on furlough. She demanded to see their papers, put them thru a drill before cheering spectators and threatened to have Corp. Johnson arrested, saying his papers were not in order. Johnson, son of Harley Johnson, an Elgin patrolman, went to police headquarters and started an inquiry rolling.

Yesterday two WACs from Camp Grant, an army captain and an Elgin police sergeant descended on WAC Wagner and demanded: "Where did you get that lieutenant's bar?"

Her reply changed her husband's admiration to surprise and started her back to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., under armed guard. She said: "I haven't been promoted. I bought the bar in the camp exchange. It cost 40 cents."

LAKE DIVERSION PLEA UP TODAY AT WPB MEETING

Medical Group Will Act in Crisis.

Chicago's demand on Washington, D. C., for a sufficient diversion from Lake Michigan thru the sanitary district system to protect the city's drinking water supply from the hazard of pollution was advanced yesterday along two lines:

1. Horace P. Ramey, assistant chief engineer of the sanitary district, left by train for Washington, where he will confer at 10 a. m. today with Arthur E. Gorman, director of the water division of the war production board.

2. Dr. Oscar Hawkinson, president of the Chicago Medical society, called a special meeting of the society's governing council for next Tuesday night in the Palmer House to act on a special committee's resolution that the WPB and the President be asked to give immediate help to the city.

Action at Once Urged.

The medical committee's report recommends that President Roosevelt authorize an increased diversion at once, and that the WPB grant priorities to complete facilities for treating sewage entering the water near the 68th street and Dunne cribs. Before the recommendations are sent to Washington they must be approved by the council.

A request to the government for aid in constructing locks on the Calumet river to prevent sewage from backing up into the lake during heavy rains will be drafted this morning by a city council subcommittee, Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman, said last night. The subcommittee will ask for funds under the Lanham act, which authorized the President to make loans and grants to protect the health of war workers in communities which cannot finance their own projects.

Rowan to Be at Meeting.

Congressman William A. Rowan, a former alderman from the 10th ward, will attend the meeting, Lindell said, and will use the subcommittee's resolutions to support his bill for a diversion increase to 5,000 cubic feet a second for the duration of the war.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, yesterday received a report on a sample of water taken from the south side cribs on July 9, showing a coliform bacteria count—[a measure of human and animal waste] of 5.65 per 100 cubic centimeters of water tested that day. This was exceptionally low.

WRECK AVERTED AS STREAMLINER COUPLING SNAPS

A southbound "400" streamliner of the Chicago and North Western railroad was nearly derailed yesterday when the train hit a piece of metal dropped from the air conditioning unit of an earlier train. The streamliner, which was traveling nearly 100 miles an hour, skidded to a stop when the automatic brakes gripped the wheels after the piece of metal broke the coupling iron between the first and second cars.

F. J. Byington, general manager of the line, said the car from which the piece of steel had dropped has been identified. There is no possibility of sabotage, he said. Altho the train was nearly full of passengers, there were no injuries from the sudden stop, nor was the train damaged other than the broken coupling.

The accident occurred just outside Racine, Wis. Engineer O. F. Hendricksen ordered the train back to Racine, where the passengers in the damaged car were transferred to other cars and the train proceeded to Chicago.

$100,000 WILL SIGNED WITH 'X' UNDER INQUIRY

Investigation of a will made by Dr. Nicholas von Schill, 78 years old, medical editor, only six hours before he died July 10 in which he bequeathed $100,000 in real estate and antiques to his secretary, Miss Charlotte Dyck, was begun yesterday by Assistant State's Atty. Joseph P. Burke on order of Probate Judge John F. O'Connell.

The judge temporarily appointed the public administrator to act as executor. Judge O'Connell added he was acting upon the suggestion of Jack Rubens, investigator for the public administrator.

Rubens, the court said, had suggested the action because the aged editor-physician left his entire estate to one not a member of his family and because Dr. von Schill placed an "X" as his mark on the document.

Dr. Schill was editor of the Clinical Journal of Chiropody, Podiatry and Pedic Surgery, 608 South Dearborn street. His estate consists of his $15,000 home at 9730 Winston avenue, $35,000 in other real estate, and $50,000 worth of antiques.

Miss Dyck, Mrs. Bertha Brandt, housekeeper for the late physician, and Miss Ella Tyshen, a nurse who attended him, were taken to Burke by Atty. William J. Grace, representing Miss Dyck. Mrs. Brandt and Miss Tyshen were witnesses to the will. They told Burke Von Schill probably was too weak to write his signature before he died.

The two witnesses said they were convinced there was nothing wrong about the making of the will. Burke said he was satisfied with his questioning of Miss Dyck, who is 38 years old.

ROB TAVERN OF $110 CASH.

Three customers in the South Park tavern, 401 East 69th street, produced guns early yesterday and took $110 from the cash register and liquor valued at $200 after herding the bartender and other customers into a back room.

AMA MUST MEET STATE JOB TAX, BOARD DECIDES

Decision of Referee Is Reversed.

The American Medical association is not devoted exclusively to scientific and educational purposes, and therefore it must pay the Illinois unemployment tax. This decision was made yesterday by the board of review of the state division of unemployment compensation in a test case which affects 650 AMA employes in the state.

Approximately $300,000 in unemployment tax has been paid under protest by the AMA pending a ruling in the case. Unless the board of review's decision is upset in the state courts, this money will become available to pay unemployment compensation to AMA workers who lose their jobs.

Pension Tax Affected.

A final decision in the case also is expected to govern whether the AMA and its employes will be taxed for old age pension benefits under the social security act. A majority of the employes are printers engaged in producing AMA publications.

They were represented in the hearings by Attys. Russell J. Topper and Daniel D. Carmell. Atty. George Maurice Morris of Washington, D. C., president of the American Bar association, presented the AMA arguments before the board of review.

The test case was a claim in behalf of George James Such, 845 Sheridan road, a printer who was discharged by the AMA in 1939. He applied for unemployment compensation based on his earnings in the previous year, and lengthy hearings were held before a referee.

Numerous prominent physicians testified in support of the AMA's contention that it was devoted exclusively to scientific and educational purposes, and therefore exempt from the unemployment tax. This contention was upheld by the referee, who rejected Such's claim.

Findings Set Aside.

The board of review, composed of Samuel L. Golan, Charles L. O'Brien, and Edward W. Lartz, set aside the referee's finding.

A feature of the hearings before the referee was the disclosure that the net earnings of the AMA Journal, a weekly publication, were $706,823 in 1939. Income from advertising amounted to $980,790 during the year.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR SAM VINCI, INQUEST KILLER

The funeral of Salvatore [Sam] Vinci, one of the notorious Vinci brothers, who died Monday in the tuberculosis ward of Oak Forest infirmary, will be held at 10 a. m. today in All Saints' church. He will be buried in Mount Carmel cemetery. Vinci was 46 years old, a printer, and lived at 2495 Archer avenue.

Three of Vinci's brother's died violent deaths, two of them in the gang wars of the '20s. The first, James, was killed in a gun duel July 18, 1925. The second, Michael, was shot down Nov. 20, the same year, and the third, Charles, was assassinated last Dec. 3. None of the crimes ever was solved.

Salvatore himself became a murderer as the sequel to Michael's killing. At the inquest into the latter's death, on Nov. 21, 1925, Salvatore Vinci became enraged over the testimony of a witness, John Minatti, and killed him on the witness stand. He was sentenced to prison for 26 years, and was discharged in 1941. His nearest survivor is a brother, Joseph Vinci, a county employe.

FUNERAL IS HELD IN MAINE FOR ENGINEER OAKES

Dover-Foxcroft, Me., July 15 (AP).—Private funeral services were held today for Harry Oakes, wealthy mining engineer who was bludgeoned to death in his Nassau, Bahamas, home last week.

The Rev. Gordon Chilson Reardon, a friend of the 68 year old baronet, conducted the services, with members of Oakes' family and only a few friends present, in a funeral parlor.

The body was taken to the town vault in the cemetery where the bodies of his parents have lain for years.

Mrs. Oakes entered the parlor alone to be followed a few moments later by her daughter, Nancy, wife of Alfred De Marigny, who has been charged at Nassau with murdering Oakes.

Drive Planned by Methodists for Members

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

National Methodist leadership in the church's world service program and the council of executive secretaries of the various national boards which met jointly with the council of bishops closed semi-annual sessions yesterday at the La Salle hotel, after setting up a development program which will reach into 42,000 local congregations.

A million laymen will be enlisted thruout the church for spiritual service in winning new members, under plans evolved in the commission on evangelism. In the commission's report, children were described as "the first casualties of war," and the new program calls for coöperation with all welfare agencies in combating the rising tide of juvenile delinquency.

The laymen's teams of visitors to be organized in each local church will be especially trained to reach "unchurched parents of young children," the commission's report said. It added that increased public interest in Christian principles due to the war makes the present time opportune for greater evangelistic efforts.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Washington, D. C., former resident bishop of the Chicago area, was recalled by the council of bishops from retirement to succeed Bishop Adna W. Leonard of the Washington area. Bishop Leonard was killed in an airplane crash in Iceland while on tour of world-wide army bases as representative of American Protestantism. Bishop Hughes will serve until the next meeting of the northeastern jurisdictional conference.

Dr. Orrin W. Auman, 740 Rush street, reported to a meeting of the commission on world service and finance that the 42,000 churches had contributed a total of $92,798,310 for all church purposes in the fiscal year 1941-'42. This represented an increase of $4,375,646 over the previous year.

Bishop W. W. Peale of Richmond, Va., president of the council of Methodist bishops, announced that 100 massmeetings will be held in strategic cities next January in the interest of stimulating 8 million Methodists of the country in the direction of a peace plan based on Christian principles. The massmeetings will be a feature of the council's "Crusade for a New World Order."

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Boston, Mass., former president of DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., heads the crusade. He declared that religious forces of the world "must be influential at the place where decisions are made."

WACs Resent Accusations of Immorality

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15.—Charges of immorality made against the WAC some weeks ago in the United States have been greatly resented here.

First Officer Frances Marquis, who commands the WAC in North Africa and was a business and civic career woman in New York before that, branded the complaints as completely untrue, certainly as far as her unit was concerned.

"The girls were furious when they learned about those accusations," she said, "but they soon recognized them as malicious and unfounded gossip."

The WACs are carefully supervised here and are given physical examinations twice monthly. They are required to be in quarters at 9:30 each night, except one day a week when they may remain out until 11 p. m. At properly sponsored parties other nights, they also are allowed to stay out until the later hour.

"There has been little occasion for punishment," Capt. Marquis said. "A few girls have had a little more wine than they should have had, but they've never repeated after disciplinary action was taken. A small number of WACs have been sent home from here, but that was because they were found to be somewhat neurotic and therefore temperamentally unfit for their tasks."

Second Officer Sylvia Marsile of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was a home economics teacher before joining the WAC last August and now is supply and mess officer for the unit here, commented vigorously:

"I get plenty mad when I hear the lies circulated about us." Sometimes it's the army's fault. One night I gave an army officer a lift in my car. He thought I was a nurse and started talking viciously about the WAC. I stopped the car and ordered him out."

Parley to Bring Middle West's Writers to N.U.

BY JUDITH CASS.

The fourth annual writers' conference of the middle west, to be held at Northwestern university from July 28 thru July 31, will bring Chicago authors scurrying back from vacation points to attend the four day session.

Mary Hastings Bradley [Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley] is hoping to return from Wisconsin to preside at a parley on "Our Middle West Future" on the 31st, following the authors' dinner in the Scott hall banquet room. The Bradleys are leaving on Monday or Tuesday for their farm, having turned their south side duplex over to a navy family, and since their north woods home is 27 miles from a railhead, Mrs. Bradley's return in time for the conference is problematical. If the transportation problem is too difficult, Arthur Meeker Jr., vice president of the Society of Midland Authors which she heads, will take her place at the conference.

Conference Sponsored by 17 Literary Groups.

Seventeen literary groups are coöperating in the conference, which last year drew 800 authors to the Northwestern campus. This year the first day will be devoted to writing for children and feature writing, and the succeeding days will be termed Drama and Radio day, Poetry day, and Fiction day, respectively.

Fredrika Shumway Smith [Mrs. Solomon A. Smith], who is vacationing in Harbor Springs, Mich., has contributed an award for the children's poetry contest. The Josephine Hancock Logan [Mrs. Frank G. Logan] prize for the best poem under 17 lines is to be presented at the conference by Mrs. Walter Dill Scott. Mrs. Logan also has given an etching from her collection as an award of merit. The annual poets' party on the 30th in the main lounge of Scott hall will be one of the highlights.

Mrs. Donald McGibeny will arrive from Desbarats, Ont., just in time for the opening of the conference. As co-chairman of the North Shore Creative writers she will be one of the hostesses on Drama and Radio day on the 29th, when the various "workshops" meet for informal dinners.

In their nursery in Kohler, Wis., young Herbert and Ruth Kohler are awaiting the homecoming of their new brother. The third child of Mrs. Herbert Vollrath Kohler [Ruth De Young] was born yesterday in the Presbyterian hospital. He has been named Frederic Cornell for his grandparents, the late Justice Frederic De Young of the Supreme Court of Illinois and Mrs. De Young of Chicago, who was Miriam Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Hyatt of Glencoe announce the engagement of their daughter, Ensign Mary Eleanor Hyatt, U. S. N. R., to Capt. Carl F. von Peckmann of the army. Ensign Hyatt, who is stationed in New London, Conn., was graduated from Wells college in 1940 and from the Career Institute the following year. Her fiancé, son of Mrs. Elsa von Peckmann and of L. A. von Peckmann of New York City, received his degree from Dartmouth college in 1938. He is an instructor in the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga. The wedding is planned for October.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

The 37 Gray Ladies of the Red Cross who minister to patients at the Marine hospital, 4141 Clarendon avenue, took time out yesterday afternoon to dedicate a new sun deck and elevator given to the hospital by Stuyvesant Peabody. Mrs. Peabody, vice chairman of the Gray Ladies in charge of hospitals, and Mrs. A. B. Dunwody, senior Gray Lady at the Marine hospital, began working on the project months ago, with the result that, for the first time, patients can be brought to the sunny deck, formerly the laundry roof.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Miss Kate Lovett, chief nurse, and Mrs. A. B. Dunwody (left to right) at dedication of Marine hospital's sun deck.

The cheery deck is gaily decorated in a red, white, and blue color scheme, with lounging chairs, beach umbrellas, a pingpong table, and other recreational equipment to help the convalescents pass the time. The patients have named the deck "Snug Harbor."

Receiving yesterday were Dr. H. T. Trimble, senior surgeon and medical officer; Miss Kate Lovett, chief nurse; Mr. and Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. Dunwody, and other members of the Red Cross volunteer services. A special guest was Lt. Comdr. Frank Virden, just back from the Pacific. Mrs. Virden is a Gray Lady at the hospital.

Members of the Gray Ladies hospital and recreation corps, who had been working at the Marine hospital for more than a year, staff the recreation room and supervise handicraft. One of their biggest achievements in the last months, in addition to creating the sun deck, is the building up of the hospital library. When they took over, the first month's total of books withdrawn was 40. The latest figure on monthly book withdrawals was 2,185.

Another party on the Red Cross calendar is a tea at 2:30 p. m. today at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, when the hospital executives will be hosts to the 73 nurses' aids serving at the hospital. Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, chairman of the volunteer nurses' aid corps, and her vice chairmen, Mrs. Eugene Talbot, Mrs. Perkins Bass, and Miss Pearl Gridley, also have been invited.

Headed by Mrs. Herbert Lewis, senior aid, and Miss Mildred Hogle, her assistant, the volunteers perform many time taking, minor duties, thus making it possible for graduate nurses to spread their ministrations over a greater number of soldier patients. It is in recognition of the women's faithful services that the hospital officials are giving today's party.

Visiting at Chicago headquarters of the American Red Cross yesterday was Miss Barbara Miller, a worker who had just arrived in the city from London, England. Since last November she had been in the public relations department of the Red Cross in London, where she interviewed American service men and wrote up their activities.

Before going to England, Miss Miller resided in China, and it was from that embattled country that she went to London as an exchange evacuee by way of Africa, a trip which required two months and involved considerable discomfort and excitement. "But nobody minded very much," Miss Miller said of the journey. "The morale was excellent."

Her home is Los Angeles, Cal., and yesterday Miss Miller was making plans to leave Chicago as soon as she could arrange transportation to take up her new position in the public relations department of the San Francisco Red Cross chapter.

Blood Donors Keep Returning to Center Here

Fifty-six per cent of the donors to the Red Cross blood donor center here are Chicagoans who have contributed more than one pint of blood, Ralph Baier, director of the service, disclosed yesterday.

Individual donors have given as many as 14 pints of blood in as many visits over the period that the center has been open, Baier reported. Many persons have given 10 contributions and a large number of others have donated nine times. The center requires a certain period of time to elapse between donations.

"This should show that a contribution of blood has no ill effects if the person is normally healthy," Baier said. "Each applicant receives a thoro physical examination before he is allowed to give any blood and the examination is repeated each time the applicant volunteers."

Only persons between the ages of 21 and 59 are accepted as donors, he explained, but men and women between 18 and 21 will be accepted with their parents' consent. All applicants must weigh at least 110 pounds. Any person who is suffering from a common cold or who has had a severe illness within six months should not volunteer, he said.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, pointed out that the examination given at the Red Cross blood donor center was sufficient for all practical purposes. He added, however, that since the center handles more than 100 cases a day, persons who are doubtful about their physical condition should consult their own physicians.

"A blood contribution does not hurt the average person and the unforeseen effects are very slight," Dr. Cutter explained. "There have been little, if any, permanent bad effects from blood contributions."

All applications are taken by appointment at the center at 5 North Wabash in person or by phone to Wabash 7850. It is urged that when an appointment has been made that it be kept promptly or that the center be notified beforehand of the cancellation.

Monteux Again Delights Crowd at Ravinia Park

Overture, "The Roman Carnival" .. Berlioz
Symphony No. 85, B flat major, "The Queen of France" ....Haydn
Prelude to "Parsifal" ....Wagner
Suite from the ballet, "Billy the Kid" ....Copland
Suite from the ballet, "The Fire Bird" ....Stravinsky

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Pierre Monteux's second Ravinia concert with the Chicago Symphony orchestra was an extraordinary exhibition of comprehensive style. He chose a program that held the glittering brilliance of Berlioz, the formal classicism of Haydn, the sensuous mysticism of Wagner, and two amusingly contrasted ballet suites—Stravinsky's "Fire Bird" that dates back to Monteux's spectacular days with the Diaghileff ballet, and Copland's wiry and laconic score to the tale of the picturesque bandit, "Billy the Kid."

This was not a concert designed to dazzle any one. On the contrary, it was a concert that invited the use of your sharpest eyes and your keenest ears. It had plenty of brilliance, but that brilliance was born of the aristocratic mating of clarity, proportion, and the elegance of style that belong only to a conductor who knows how the music should sound, and who has both the ear and the technique to make it sound that way.

From the very start of the concert the orchestra was completely alive. There were no dead spots, no lethargic interludes, no muddy textures or tones. Everything was in place so that each instrument, each bit of pharsing, each curve and line of the music fit serenely into a fastidious whole. The flawless glitter of the Berlioz brass was no accident of lucky performance, but a gleaming exhibition of what happens when skill and precision meet in the concert hall.

It went without saying that under such conditions the "Fire Bird" would run like orchestral silk from a Stravinsky spool, but "Billy the Kid" was in the nature of an adventure. It was new in the orchestra's repertory, and there was a piquant prick of anticipation as to what the French conductor would make of this deep rooted American score as swaggering as a highwayman and as lonely as a cowboy whistling to keep himself company.

He made quite a lot of it. He found its rhythm, its humor and its lean strength. When Billy the Kid mowed them down [seemingly with a machine gun rather than six shooters] the audience gave him an obligato of laughter, but when he bit the dust himself he won the tribute due a consistent man already become legend.

Altogether, the orchestra and Mr. Monteux make a persuasive combination many of us would like to hear thru the entire repertory. They took Berlioz, Stravinsky, and Copland in their stride, found the symmetrical secret of the rarely played symphony Hadyn may actually have dedicated to Marie Antoinette, and captured the mystical exultation of the "Parsifal" prelude which Wagner himself doubted could be heard to advantage outside Bayreuth. This sort of playing makes concertgoing a pleasure.

Low Marks Do Not Indicate Adult Failure

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Nearly all that group of boys played their way thru high school, altho they all graduated," said the mother of one lad who is not quite 18 and has enlisted in the navy.

"They weren't interested in any of their lessons; they never studied any more than they absolutely had to. They barely got by, and when it came time for the principal to sign the necessary paper so they could all take their 'V tests,' he protested in each instance. He said they would never pass.

"Well, all those boys determined they were going to get thru. Some of them studied for six weeks with a tutor; others plugged for a while by themselves. They have all passed their exams, and one of the boys who has been in for some months is simply forging ahead."

I believe that every mother of an adolescent boy needs an encouraging word once in a while. And I know that she needs it, almost surely, when that boy gets into high school. There are so many students in their teens who dislike this part of their education, or else just endure it and mark time for four years, that it is utterly discouraging to their parents. And, quite logically I must say, they think these boys are not going to get anywhere later on, in adult life.

Now this is not by any means a foregone conclusion. Many a boy, and girl, too, for that matter, has done poorly in school, and later on has been successful in a job or profession.

This is merely said as a statement of fact and as a consolation. It is not meant to give the impression that I think it is all right for young persons to dislike school, or to skim thru the four years, barely passing.

That, on the contrary, is a great pity and waste. These years from 14 to 18 are important creative years. And I believe secondary education should be so planned in general, and so fitted to each individual in particular, that his keen interest is aroused. This interest need not necessarily be academic, either.

I believe these four years, consisting of many hours a day spent in classrooms and at home studying, should add up to an education which develops and fulfills each young personality. And I also think that the home should coöperate with the school in every possible way.

Thru the Looking Glass

Our own idea is that when gray hair appears a woman should say "Boo!" to the psychological bogeys and let nature take its course. But thousands and thousands of women, we know, find the advent of silver strands among the gold, or the brown, more than they can take with equanimity.

Dyeing is a pretty serious step, not to be undertaken without considerable counting of the cost in time, money and trouble. And, once you get past the stage of streaks it's quite likely you'll find your all-gray head more attractive than you dreamed it could be. It's the streak stage that so many find depressing.

If you're in that dreary period, with a few strands of gray here and there marring your peace of mind, you might like to try a hair makeup pencil. It's new, and not expensive, and is quite useful in camouflaging a streak. If the gray hairs are generously and evenly sprinkled it won't be effective, but if it's just a streak or a touch of gray at the temples that's searing your soul the pencil offers one safe and simple method of concealment.

It's in six shades—light, dark, and medium brown, and black, auburn, and blonde. Chances are you'll be able to match your own natural shade. It's not a dye; it will wash away with your shampoo.

This is a fat little pencil which you can apply, moistened, directly to the hair strands. Or, if you'd rather—and we think this is a little bit more satisfactory — you can transfer the stuff from the pencil to a wet mascara brush and do your touching-up that way. It dries quickly.

Confidentially, lots of men will like to use this, too!

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

Total War Note.

Our friend, the exercycle girl in the North Michigan avenue window who pedaled south all winter and north all the month of June, has not moved at all for several days. Has something happened to her A card?

Footgear Conservation.

And then there was the well dressed girl on the Northwestern suburban the other evening who got off the train at Hubbard Woods, leaned calmly and with unconcern against a post, removed her brown and white spectator pumps, and leisurely strolled homeward in her bare feet.

Lightning Bugs Alight.

Advice to the city dweller who sighs for green meadows and their concomitants: Drop down into the Tree studios courtyard any evening just after sunset. Anna Lynch, a painter of miniatures who has a studio in the building, imported some fireflies from her country place near Elgin and released them in the garden courtyard. Now a division of "little lights with wings" flits merrily and brightly in the shadow of the skyscrapers. [Remember those horrid little girls of childhood who used to place a firefly on a piece of broken bottle, remove its phosphorescent light, and wear the broken bit of innocent loveliness as a diamond ring?]

Man Power Shortage.

Probably you know there are two kinds of hikers, those who walk to get some place else, and those who pick up your car at a hotel door and run it to a garage. Those in the first category can be any sex, color, or age. Those in the second usually are young men of 25 or so. The other day the Palmer House emerged with a coterie of girl car hikers. They wear maroon slacks and white blouses with a crimson P over their hearts.

Silent Note.

The National Fraternal Society of the Deaf met at the Hotel Sherman this week, as duly reported in the news columns. The news columns failed to report that the hotel removed 8,840 square feet of carpeting which ordinarily covers the floor of the Grand ballroom, where the society gathered for a dinner-dance. The bare floor permitted the guests to receive the vibration and beat of the music via their feet.

City Sight.

It happened in the loop Sunday night. A great crowd gathered around the window of a candy store. Inside the window three mice were having a gay feast, racing up and down, between and over open boxes of candy, nibbling appreciatively at the sweets and wrinkling their noses as they attempted to decide which flavor was preferable.

Beauty at War.

The labor situation in Buffalo, N. Y., is critical, a scout relays, with the war plants falling all over each other trying to induce women to work for them. This came to a head not long ago when one plant installed a magnificent beauty parlor for its employés, and a rival plant installed one offering the same magnificence but the added inducement of a free permanent. The war man power commission finally had to intervene.

W-G-N to Revisit 1910 'Main Street' in Program Tonight

W-G-N will attempt to recapture the spirit of 1910 when it presents, from 9 to 9:30 o'clock tonight, a broadcast titled "Yesterday's Main Street," based on the new exhibit by the same name at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park.

Listeners will eavesdrop on a conversation of a generation ago between a clothing salesman and a prospective customer, attend a women's suffrage meeting, hear a salesman describe the virtues of a motor car of that era, and finally "witness" the world premier in the Nickelodeon of the first full length picture, "The Great Train Robbery."

Six pioneer Chicago firms joined with the museum in recreating this street with the stamp of 1910 upon it.

Additional Gifts Made to Fund for Free Ice

Three checks totaling $13 were added to The Chicago Tribune Charities Ice fund yesterday. One donor, Mrs. Edmund Von Maltitz, inclosed a note saying she was sending "a check for $5 for the Ice fund as I have done regularly for many years." Another $5 gift came as a memorial to Mrs. Norman Perrin, and Florence G. Lytle sent $3.

War Sets Child Back Mentally, Teacher Says

Emotional disturbances produced by the war inevitably will lead to increased cases of mental backwardness among young American school children, Maryalice Quick, consultant of the child welfare department of the Gary [Ind.] public schools, told the sixth annual conference on reading at the University of Chicago yesterday.

Miss Quick said studies among children evacuated from London in 1939 and 1940 showed their ability to learn was injured by disturbances produced by separation from their parents. Strangely, Miss Quick pointed out, this factor was a "more potent cause" than the fear of being bombed.

"Thus we can safely guess," she told the educators, "that there will be a great increase in mental disturbances among American children in the early primary grades because of their separation from parents, brothers, and sisters who are in the services or working in war factories. This separation and breaking of family routine will be reflected in reading and other learning ability."

The speaker emphasized, therefore, that teachers must not believe that their pupils' inability to learn to read or grasp ordinary problems is always traceable to "inferior mentality." Among other factors she listed as causing mental disturbances in the child are "domineering, lax, and overanxious parents."

"The teacher's job," she contended, "is to straighten out these conflicts in the child by inspiring confidence thru proper guidance."

It's Christmas Time in July at Exhibit of Latest in Toiletries

They all shouted Merry Christmas. They were spangled in glistening wrappings, striped in brilliant color, gay as the jingle of sleigh bells! Some were jolly as reindeer in nickel plated harness, others green and trim as holiday trees by a fragrant yule fireside.

They were the new and old fashions in toiletries designed for the Christmas trade as displayed yesterday at the Palmer House by the Chicago Associated Toiletries salesmen. Thousands of cosmetic items beckoned the 1,000 buyers, with the salesmen promising to deliver less than the buyers wanted because of war time difficulties.

Care Required for War Time Caps and Lids

There will be new kinds of jar caps and lids to cover the home-canned produce of your war garden this year, and perhaps some of these closures will be unfamiliar to you. The glass-top-seal jar cap, a war time product designed to save strategic materials, needs a special introduction, for food spoilage and breakage of jars are likely to result if instructions for its use are not followed carefully.

This particular jar cap consists of three parts of widely varied materials: a metal band, glass lid, and separate rubber ring. It may be used on standard mason jars made with deep screw threads. [Some commercial jars are this type.]

First of all, this cap cannot be used in oven canning, altho it may be used with excellent results for canning foods in the hot water bath, in the pressure cooker, or by the open kettle method. If the food is processed in the jar, one inch of space must be left in the top of the jar when filled, to allow room for expansion. If the open kettle method is used, one-half inch of space must be left in the top of the jar.

Rubber rings may be made of reclaimed rubber which requires careful handling, so don't test them by stretching. Put them on with as little stretching as possible. Place the rubber around the projection on the bottom side of the lid, then adjust the lid so that the rubber lies between it and the top edge of the jar. All jars on which top seal closures are used must have smooth top edges.

Apply the screw band tightly and loosen slightly, immediately, about one-quarter of a turn. Bands must fit loosely during processing. When processing is completed, screw the bands tight to complete the seal. If an open kettle is used, screw the bands tight as soon as the jar is filled. The screw bands may be removed 12 hours after canning. The filled jars should never be turned upside down.

Coconut Date Kisses Make a Cool Dessert

Coconut date kisses take only a few minutes to put together but they give the summer dessert a real finishing touch. Beat 2 egg whites until foamy, add 1 cup powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, and beat after each addition until sugar is blended. Continue beating until mixture stands in peaks. Fold in 1 cup shredded coconut and 1 cup finely chopped dates. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased heavy paper. Bake in 325 degree oven for 20 minutes or until delicately browned. Makes 2½ dozen kisses.

Booklets Provide Help on Jams and Jellies and as Canning Guide

Currants, red raspberries, and other berries now on the market in fairly good supply probably are tempting you to turn them into jams and jellies. Equip yourself with a reliable cookery guide and as soon as each seasonal fruit appears make the amount of jam or jelly your sugar supply will permit. Mary Meade's booklet, "Jams and Jellies," gives you tested recipes for not only jams and jellies, but also fruit butters, conserves, marmalades, and preserves.

Another good addition to the kitchen library is Mary Meade's "Homemaker's Guide to Canning," recently revised to cover a larger variety of fruits and vegetables. Directions are given for the pressure cooker, hot water bath, and open kettle methods of canning.

To obtain "Jams and Jellies," send 25 cents in stamps to Mary Meade, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, or pick up a copy for 20 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower lobby. "Homemaker's Guide to Canning" sells for 7 cents in stamps by mail or for 5 cents at the public service offices.

Soldiers' Meal of Dehydrated Foods Praised

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Dark brown baked beans, fat beef patties, and tender young carrots mingled aromas with half a dozen other appetizing dishes that blossomed from tiny morsels and powders of dehydrated foods to a full grown luncheon yesterday at Fort Sheridan's school for cooks and bakers.

The fare was offered in demonstration of the excellence of dehydrated food when "reconstituted" —technical term for putting the moisture back into the spuds and things—by experts, said 1st Lt. Harry J. Varden, school director. The experts were four students who began working with the dehydrated foods only Monday, but were efficient enough yesterday to begin "reconstituting" at 10:30 a. m. and have luncheon for 200 an hour later.

To call the result a meal fit for the king is scarcely appropriate in a democracy, but it was fit for the colonel, and he was the first to say so. Col. John T. Rhett, commanding officer of the post, praised every morsel, from the fruit ade, a refreshing drink from dark red cranberry powder, to the pie of dehydrated apples topped with a slab of "reconstituted" cheese.

It seems learning about dehydrated foods is still something of an elective on the school curriculum, but officers convinced of the importance of proper preparation may assign men to the course. Training in this phase of army cooking can be as important to soldiers in the field, said Lt. Varden, as a bride's course in a cooking school may be to her new husband.

The utilitarian value of dehydrated foods is obvious in shipping. In general, the contents of 10 shiploads of bulk foods can be packed into one shipload of the dehydrated products. Their value to the ultimate consumers, however, depends upon careful preparation which, in general, begins with reconstitution in water that is about room temperature—70 degrees.

Dehydrated foods, manufactured by commercial companies, appears expensive at first glance. But when 3 pounds of egg powder, at $1.17 per pound, can be converted into 110 eggs by adding 9 pounds of water, the cost simmers down to about 39 cents a dozen.

The butter, known as army spread, is already famous as a product which, when reconstituted, doesn't become rancid or spoil in heat up to 120 degrees. Lt. Varden emphasized that good meals from such foods begin with first class materials at the dehydration plants.

Seeing is believing, and at yesterday's luncheon a great kettle of creamy mashed potatoes came from little bits like samples of spaghetti. There also were baked beans in marked contrast with the hard, dehydrated, little nuts the cooks had to start with.

Dehydrated foods have pretty much gone to war at present, but afterward, in the opinion of Sgt. Art Kuntsmann, instructor in reconstituting such food at Fort Sheridan, the housewife may have to buy a new cook book. And it could be that her bridge game can last another half hour, provided she tells junior to toss the water on the supper so it can "reconstitute."

Variety of Combinations Possible for Meat Loaf

A good meat loaf can be made with almost any desired combination of ingredients if proportions are correct. To a pound of ground beef, pork, lamb, or veal, add an equal measure of bread or cracker crumbs, cereal, grated raw potato, mashed potatoes, or grated raw apple. About ¼ cup grated onion, 1½ teaspoons salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper will be sufficient seasoning for the pound of meat. For liquid, use milk, tomato juice, catsup, soup stock, liquid from cooked vegetables, or water, just enough to moisten the mixture.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

ACCUSER.

Maj. Harper faced round, his eyes flaring.

"What do you think you're doing? I'll break you in two, you Dago!"

He lifted his hands, but before he could make another move, Diego had his wrists.

Arthur Harper was a strong man, even if he had a weak heart. Now he used his strength to try to break Diego's grip on his wrists. He could not. No one in the Glen knew that Diego had any exceptional strength, for he had never displayed it. Now he held Maj. Harper's arms across his breast as if they were bound there, and slowly and inexorably forced him down to his knees.

As Diego held him there immovable and looked down into his eyes, the other's effort collapsed, and his eyes were no longer insolent.

Diego jerked him to his feet, loosed his arms, and struck him back handed across the mouth.

"Go, you gringo!" Diego brought his hands to his sides, and stood there unguarded. The man had not the final courage that is all courage, for he turned on his heel and walked quickly toward the track. And he was not limping.

Diego went back to Ann. He smiled for her, but she did not smile back.

"But you are a man, Diego," she said. "The other thing—it was an accident."

"Of course, my dear," he said, and put a hand on her arm.

Until then she had kept a firm hold on herself, but the moment she felt his hand she collapsed, and the collapse was complete. She did not faint. Her legs just gave way, and she fell against his shoulder; she would have sunk to the ground if he had not thrown an arm around her. For the first time he had an arm around her, and the only feeling he had was pity.

"O, Diego! My Diego! What are we to do?"

"We go from this place," he said, and drew her round the side of the boulder on to the track leading down to the lodge. But there she stopped him.

"No—no—no—not that way. They will put us in prison."

Up to now the reality of prison had not entered his head. She was right. If Maj. Harper called in the police — and he must — Diego and Ann would go to prison—and stand trial for murder. Lovers! Guilty lovers caught trying to hide their crime in order to reap a golden harvest.

"I should have killed him," said Diego.

"No—no! Do not speak of killing." Her hands gripped and shook him. "Diego, you must not let them put me in prison."

"You will not go to prison, my dear," he said.

"You must hide—and you must hide me, too. Look, Diego! I am now all coward, there is no more strength in me." Her voice was shaking. "I do not fear death, but prison, yes! That I fear. I would go mad. I was in prison—many, many months—and for a little I was mad. No, not prison, Diego!"

"You will not go to prison," he said again.

"But we cannot save ourselves, Diego. You cannot save me; you cannot save yourself."

"You must trust me," Diego said.

"My trust is in you." She turned in his arm to face him, her glowing black eyes close to his.

Diego was used to playing a game to the finish. But he must have time. He and Ann must remain free agents until he had time to decide the thing that they would do and keep on doing in the face of life or death. Going down to the lodge would be fatal. Going thru the woods to Loch Beg would be better, for he knew that his aunt and uncle would give them the very limit of help, but that would not give him the time he wanted. No! They must take to the hills.

Ann was staring up at him. She could read, first, the softening of his mouth, and then, the clenching of his jaw muscles.

"You indomitable fighting man!" she said.

"We will go," he said.

"No—no! There is no hope anyway."

"I must make time," he said angrily. Will you not have some sense, woman?"

She went then, but her hill-woman's legs had lost all their pith. She did not want to do anything but die. He had to help her all the way up, and now he was in urgent hurry. There was only one place where they could hide.

At Skene's Rock he paused for one quick survey. All the hills were vacant. There was no boat on the loch below. There was no one on the lawn fronting the lodge. Maj. Harper had not time to make that slanted mile thru the wood. Now was the time to get out of sight.

He put his arm round Ann, lifted her so that her toes barely touched the ground, and ran her down into the shallow hollow. There he stopped to get his breath, opening his mouth wide to draw in the air as quickly as possible. One arm was aching, and his thighs were trembling, but the trip hammer of his heart was pounding steadily. Three months ago this sudden effort would have killed him, but now he needed only half a minute to regain his wind, and he knew that his legs would not fail him this day or next day or any day.

He took that half minute's rest, his eyes moving round over the slopes and peaks. They were alone up there. No man, that he could see, looked at them. Ann Harper had sunk down in the heather, one shoulder against his knee. He put a hand softly on her head and her head sank under it. In half a minute he lifted her to her feet and they faced the slope.

"I cannot go on, Diego," she said. "Something has died within me—it is my whole life I think."

"I will hold you up in my hands," he said.

"For a little while. There is blood between us now, Diego. It was not right to kill an old man, and he mad."

"It was an accident."

"I know. But the blood, it is between us till we die."

There was no use trying to talk her out of this mood now. He firmed his arm round her and drew her on. He could not understand this collapse, this hopelessness.

They went on, but slowly. Ann's vigor showed no sign of returning. She made no effort, and if anything, she grew wearier. They had to rest often, lying off the path in the deep heather. Ann's breath was coming short and shallow, and he was full of fear that she would sink into a swoon.

In a wearily long time they got to the rock on the lip of the chorrie of Garbh Allt. In another hour the half dark of the summer night would be over them, and they must get down the chorrie while there was still light.

The crawl down to the floor of the gorge was a slow and heart breaking task, but they made it at last, and by that time Diego knew weariness and muscle strain. He lay prone on the rock, Ann sitting crumpled at his shoulder, his chin over the edge of a small crystal bowl in the basalt. After a time he sucked in the ice cold water thru pursed lips, and then knelt back on his heels to hold cupped hands for her to drink.

She drank a little only, shivered and shook her head. And then he scooped up another double handful and splashed it into her face. She gasped and blinked and stared, but showed no spark of her temper. Then he held her firmly by a handful of her hair while he scrubbed her face and neck with his handkerchief. That shock and friction helped to revive her a little.

After five minutes' rest they went on down the gorge, thru the gap, and into Strath Dearg. The pony track was wide enough to take them abreast and they made better time. Ann even showed signs of a reviving strength. The half night was over them when they came in view of Donald Gunn's bothy, and there was no moon.

Talent Parade Rescues 'Stage Door Canteen'

BY CECIL SMITH.

At the Stage Door Canteen, on 44th street in the heart of the New York theater district, the actors and actresses of the American Theater Wing have been doing a magnificent job of providing wholesome recreation for the thousands of service men who crowd into New York on leave. After many a fanfare of advance publicity, Hollywood's glorification of the enterprise has finally reached the State-Lake screen.

Few movie fans will be able to resist the lure of "Stage Door Canteen." Katharine Cornell, in her first screen appearance, is only one of the top flight luminaries in about the longest list of celebrities any one picture ever brought together. Almost every type of performer, from Tallulah Bankhead to Edgar Bergen, finds a place in this astonishing parade of expensive talent. As to the music, you can take your choice, for there are six name bands to stir your pulse, from Guy Lombardo's sweetness to Count Basie's sizzling heat. There is also a pale little romance between one "Dakota" Ed Smith and Eileen, the girl with whom he left his heart.

The trouble with reviewing "Stage Door Canteen" is not in knowing where to begin; it is in knowing where to leave off. Many of the celebrities, it is true, have little more than a how-do-you-do to offer. But there are several who are allowed to give fair samples of their abilities. Ed Wynn, who pops up at various times in bits of his inimitable clowning, accounts for more merriment than any other single participant, except perhaps Edgar Bergen with his two dummies. Ray Bolger, the incomparable eccentric dancer, offers one of his best and wittiest routines from his recent musical, "By Jupiter." Miss Cornell recites a fragment of the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" with a young soldier as her Romeo. Gypsy Rose Lee gives a highly censored version of her celebrated intellectual strip act. Gracie Fields, Ethel Merman, and Ethel Waters vie with one another in the vocal field, as also do Kenny Baker and Lanny Ross. Yehudi Menuhin plays Schubert's "Ave Maria" and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "The Flight of the Bumble Bee."

This is loads of talent, as you can readily see. The chief weakness of the whole variety show, apart from its very great length, lies in its lack of first rate original material. The best items in the catalog are those drawn from the performers' standard repertory. The music written for the picture is disgracefully mediocre, when you consider that even the superb projection of wonderful people like Miss Fields, Miss Merman, and Miss Waters cannot make it sound good. And the painful little love story woven in and out of the entertainment is trashily written and poorly acted by a cast of insufficiently trained newcomers.

Engagement

Dr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Diamondstone of Aldine avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to Marvin C. Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jacobs of North Pine Grove avenue. Miss Diamondstone is a senior at Stephens college. Her fiancé left Northwestern university last winter in the middle of his senior year to enter an army training school at Fort Logan, Colorado.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

The main reason for delaying a finesse as long as possible is that some "avoidance play," such as a throw-in or a squeeze, may develop to take the place of the finesse. Often, however, declarer can see all too clearly that sooner or later a certain finesse will have to be tried—that no other type of play will offer itself. At such times he must be careful not to squander an entry that may be vital to the proper execution of the finesse. Consider this case:

East, dealer.

NORTH
♥K32
♦QJ3
♣Q76

WEST
♠6
♥QJ
♦K1087542
♣954

♠J10872
♥1065
♦A9
♣AJ2

♥A9874
♦6
♣K1083

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 heart	Pass	2 hearts
2 spades	4 hearts	Pass	Pass
Pass

This bidding is not recommended. As a matter of fact, in my opinion the only player who bid correctly was West, who "never opened his mouth." North's response should have been one no trump, not two hearts; East's two spade overcall should have been a pass; and finally, South might well have doubled two spades instead of leaping to four hearts.

South's greatest error, however, was in the play, not the bidding. If he had brought home his four heart contract as he should have, all would have been forgiven. Actually, he was defeated two tricks. West opened the spade six. Declarer won, led a low heart to the king and a second round to his ace, then cashed his remaining spade tricks. Next, he led his singleton diamond toward dummy. West ducked; East won with the ace, cashed his high heart and exited with a spade. Declarer ruffed and led a club to the queen. East won and again exited with a spade. Declarer had to use his last trump to ruff this trick and, after that, he could take only the club king. East won the succeeding club lead, and his diamond return let West make the king for a two-trick defeat.

Declarer should have realized that ten tricks could never be made unless the club suit could be made to produce three tricks. On the bidding, specifically on East's two spade overcall, it was virtually certain that the club ace would lie over the queen. Thus, the only entry in dummy figured to be the heart king. The club suit could not be established and run unless the jack could be finessed, and the only means of working that finesse was to lead low from dummy. Thus, instead of putting dummy's heart king to no good use, declarer should have cashed the heart ace, led a second round to the king, and then returned a low club toward the closed hand, finessing against the jack. As the cards lay, this plan would have been crowned with success.

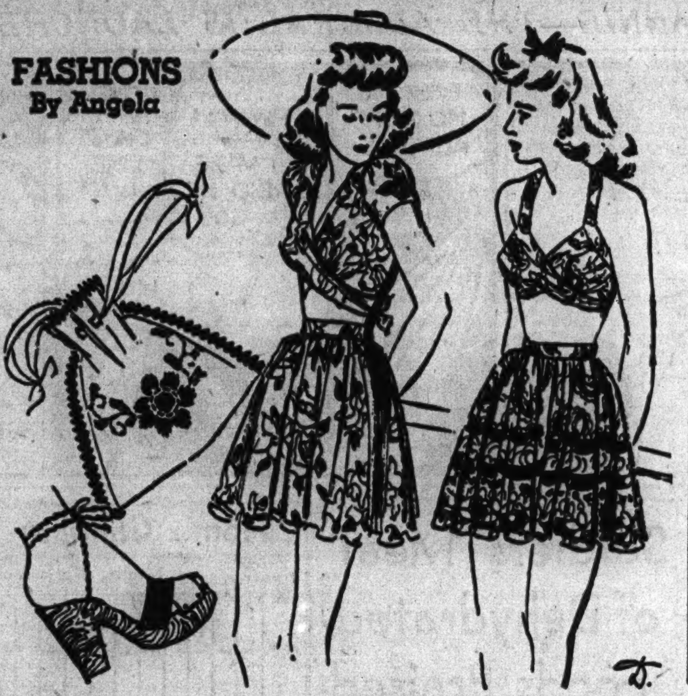
FASHIONS

By Angela



Last minute vacationists who haven't yet planned or purchased summer play clothes still have time to pick up a perfect dream of a silk jersey playsuit or bathing suit as well as gay accessories.

A comfortable sandal, nonrationed and handsome, is the new wooden clog, sketched lower left. It has lightweight wooden soles shaped to fit the foot. Leather cross bands at the instep are matched in an ankle cord tie of red, blue, or green. The sturdy wooden heel is perfectly pitched and painted in red, blue, or green marbleized effect. The sandal is available in sizes 4 to 8.

"Three bags in one" describes the two-toned white and navy felt bag, upper left. A voluminous center compartment of navy will hold glasses, towel, and sunburn lotion, while the two outer bags, each of white and navy, will carry a lunch on one side and a small makeup kit on the other. The felt drawstrings match the interior color of the bags. The floral design is embroidered in red wool.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

Homemaker.

If you are a mother of a family and weary of making beds and plumping up pillows every morning, how would you like to be responsible for 14,000 clean sheets and pillow slips every day?

She was named Sarah Kathryn for her mother and grandmother. Her childhood was closely associated with her mother. For Sarah was the eldest daughter of a family of 18 children, and one can well understand that a helping hand was needed in the housekeeping. One thing emerges clearest of her childhood impressions—her mother's extraordinary ability to remember each piece of clothing and household linen. Sarah worked with her mother and learned from her. And, when her mother died, Sarah took over the management of the home and the rearing of the children.

Sarah got her first housekeeping job on the strength of her homemaking. When she was offered a position as housekeeper for a large hotel in Springfield, Ill., she was asked. "Are you afraid to tackle the job?" "No," she said, "I'm never afraid."

In her work today she shows the same confident readiness. Shortage of help, employe training programs, problems in accommodating war time guests, 60 per cent of whom are directly engaged in the war, and new mechanical devices which require that the executive housekeeper be something of an engineer—all these contribute to making her day interesting and—yes—exciting.

She looks upon the hotel as her home and hers to care for competently. She wishes she could encourage other women, particularly mature women, to enter this growing profession of hotel housekeeping, so closely akin to domestic housekeeping. The qualifications she lists are these: Executive ability, imagination, and a good foundation either of home management or of previous employment in some capacity in a hotel.

Many questions popped into my mind as I talked with her: Do the WACs and WAVES discard their military bearing and strew small feminine things like powder puffs or jars of cold cream about a hotel room? My goodness, yes. . . . Do the maids in the hotel lose out on tips frequently because they are not present when the guest departs or when some special service is performed? Often they do, tho maid service contributes substantially to the comfort of the guest. . . . Do guests ever make their own beds? Rural women invariably do before they go down to breakfast. . . . Are the maids and housekeepers likely to catch an occasional glimpse of a movie star or celebrity? Frequently; in fact many maids collect autographs. . . . Are men or women inclined to forget their belongings when they check out? Men; they leave everything from razors to brief cases, and about one man in ten leaves one bedroom slipper. Is it difficult to make transient guests feel at home? It depends largely on the host. "A perfect host is one who makes you feel at home when you wish you were!"

Critics Acclaim 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' Film

New York, July 15 [Special].—The screen version of Ernest Hemingway's novel of the Spanish civil war, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," was being acclaimed by critics today as the best motion picture thus far this year. The $3,000,000 technicolor movie had its world premiere here last night before an audience of 2,000 persons.

In spite of its physically exhausting length—it takes two hours and 50 minutes to cover less than four days in the lives of its principal characters—the picture is rich in color, sharp in its character delineation, and possessed of great vitality.

A thoro comprehension of the movie may depend upon whether one has read the book, for the novel's fundamental emphasis on the rapturous and tragic love of Robert Jordan, the American dynamiter, and Maria, the orphaned Spanish girl, obviously has been toned down to comply with the Hays office code.

The film's greatest merit lies in its superb characterizations. Gary Cooper as Robert Jordan and Ingrid Bergman as Maria give excellent performances. Katina Paxinou in the role of Pilar, the rugged Spanish peasant woman, is a marvel of tenderness and violence, and Akim Tamiroff, playing Pablo, is a masterpiece of dark and devious moods.

The movie was photographed in the high Sierras and much of the scenery that forms its background is breath-takingly beautiful. The screen version was written by Dudley Nichols, and the picture was directed for Paramount by Sam Wood.

Looking at Hollywood . . . By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., July 15.—David Selznick is having his difficulties these days. He can't find a top director for Claudette Colbert and Shirley Temple to do "Since You Went Away," and may be reduced to having to direct it himself, which would be the first time he's taken a hand at actually directing a picture! What do you bet he can do it? . . . Fred Astaire's next will be with Arnold Pressburger, the man who produced "Hangmen Also Die" and "Shanghai Gesture." No, I don't think Fred's will be patterned after either of those. . . . Rita Hayworth has been making "Cover Girls" now for four weeks. She still hasn't a leading man. Columbia's trying its best to borrow Gene Kelly to play opposite her. . . . Hedy Lamarr entertained Mme. Cartier, of that famous jeweler's family, but didn't trot out her big stones for inspection. . . . Can you imagine getting a huge canary diamond ring besides having the joy of introducing Barbara Hutton to Cary Grant? Well, that's what Dorothy Di Frasso received from them. They were going to save it for Christmas, but Dottie had a blue day and they thought to cheer her up they'd give it to her now. She'll get flowers for Christmas.

Here It Is Free.

If Metro doesn't do a story about Maisie, based on the real life exploits of their own Ann Sothern, they're not as smart as I think they are. It would endear her to every soldier in uniform, besides making a mighty funny film. Ann, as you know, recently married Bob Sterling, and wanted to be with him. So she hied herself to El Paso, and found he was at a camp in Pecos, about 60 miles below El Paso. There was no place for her to live at Pecos. She couldn't get transportation there 'cause trains were filled with soldiers. So our enterprising Maisie traveled back and forth on a canteloupe truck. "And," she says, "the smell of it has cured me of eating that delicious fruit for the rest of my life! The temperature is 112!" She's never been so happy. Ain't love grand?

Great Friends.

I'll bet Eddie Rickenbacker and Secretary of War Stimson have had a get-together in London. . . . You'd be surprised at the name of the big British diplomat who's gone overboard for our famous American pianist, Edith Baker. Wanted to get a divorce and marry Edith, but his government frowned on the idea. . . . Ensign Richard Ney is still in town, but it doesn't look as tho he and Greer Garson were any nearer wedding bells than they were when they took out that marriage license. Greer wants to wait till the war's ended. . . . When the Cuban president, Batista, arrives in the United States, he'll present Xavier Cugat with the highest award of his republic in recognition of his Latin American good will efforts in music.

Do You Blame Him?

John Garfield's fans wrote to ask if he ever turned down a picture where he had to abuse a dog. So I asked John. He said, "I sure did. I don't mind beating up a guy if he's a heel, but I draw the line at animals and children." . . . Al Jolson called up Bill Perlberg to congratulate him on "Hello, Coney Island." Perlberg said, "What do you mean? There's 'Hello, Frisco' and 'Coney Island.' I did them both." Al quipped, "That's what I mean. I've just seen 'Hello, Coney Island, Hello'." . . . Reason Harry James and Betty Grable are house hunting is—Betty's parents shared her home with her. Half a dozen boys from the band were living with James. Harry says he's never been told he's 1-A nor asked to come down for his physical.

We Hope.

If anybody can persuade Myrna Loy to come back, it will be Everett Riskin. Ran into him the other day and he said he'd given Myrna his script of "The Thin Man Comes Home" and she likes it. . . . Bob Hope is setting the dignified B. B. C. in London on its ear. They've never seen anything like him—never will. Up to now, it's been the most dignified broadcasting outlet in the world. Look in your newspapers, and you'll find you can listen to Hope Saturday.

ARIZONA TACKLE, N. U. GUARD JOIN ALL-STAR SQUAD

IRISH, KAPTER TO FACE PROS ON AUG. 25TH

Both Players from Chicago Area.

All-Star Roster

LINEMEN—Don Currivan, Boston college; Pat Lyons, Wisconsin; Al Wistert, Michigan; Garrard Ramsey, William and Mary; Leslie Kalchik and Wilfred Kramer, Marquette; Paul Mitchell, Minnesota; Eldon Werkheiser, Dubuque; Ray Frankowski, Washington; Walter Ruark, Georgia; George Petty, Lake Forest; Vic Lindskog, Stanford; Joe Domnanovich, Alabama; Bob Penaluna, Iowa; Jeff Davis, Missouri; Alex Kapter, Northwestern, and Jack Irish, Arizona.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

This announcement incidentally is an advertisment for the caliber of football players in our metropolitan area. The Lake county, Illinois, player is Alex Kapter, Northwestern university guard, who comes from Waukegan. He joins his fellow townsman, Otto Graham, on the 1943 All-Star squad.

Influenced by Zarza.

No doubt Irish's decision to attend Arizona was influenced by Lou Zarza, whose home also is in East Chicago. Zarza, assistant to Casteel, attended Michigan State and is a former All-Star football player.

ALEX KAPTER.

Kapter bolsters the list of All-Star guards which already includes Garrard Ramsey of William and Mary; Ray Frankowski, University of Washington; Walter Ruark of Georgia, and Bob Penaluna of Iowa. Alex was a regular guard last year at Northwestern and he also earned his letter in 1941. He is entering his senior year and is enlisted in the navy's V-5 program.

Few Equal in Speed.

The Western conference had few guards last season who were equal to Kapter in speed, aggressiveness, and blocking. He stood out in a line which frequently failed to completely carry out offensive assignments, altho playing well defensively. Alex is 21 years of age,

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

IF the competitive system survives the attacks of burocrats the historians of the future will have to give some credit for that achievement to our athletic leaders. . . . Have you considered what the sport situation might have been in this second year of the war if our athletic headliners had fallen for the argument that abolition of competition was necessary to victory? . . . A salute, then, to directors of racing, baseball, professional football, college sports, and all other amateur contests! . . . A particularly low bow to Northwestern university. . . . Due mainly to the enterprise of the Wildcats' athletic department, three national collegiate events have endured the second summer of war. . . . We refer to the track, golf, and tennis meets, all of which were sponsored by Northwestern. . . . Early in the spring it looked as if the national collegiate golf tournament would be abandoned for the duration, but there was one who contended it should not be dropped. . . . He was Ted Payseur, golf coach at the north shore university and the hardest working member of the N. C. A. A. committee which took over operation of the meet in 1939. . . . In the 26 days between June 1, when the decision to carry on was announced, and the opening of the tournament at Olympia Fields, Payseur assembled an entry of 78 from 22 schools. . . . Most popular results of the competition were the team victory of Yale, a last minute starter, and the individual triumph of Wallace Ulrich of Carleton college, first player from one of the smaller colleges to win that honor. . . . Northwestern's tennis coach, Paul Bennett, equaled Payseur's success in directing the national tennis meet, which introduced to midwest fans Pancho Segura of Ecuador and Miami, Fla., university, who won the championship without the loss of a set. . . . The track meet was made possible largely because of the enthusiasm of Tug Wilson, Northwestern's athletic director, who also was instrumental in keeping alive the national collegiate basketball tournament last winter. . . .

Northwestern's hospitality to national competitors did not dwarf its loyalty to the Big Ten conference. . . . The Wildcats were host to two indoor meets—swimming and wrestling—and the three major outdoor events—track, tennis, and golf. . . . When grouch columnists and other purveyors of the defeatist complex exulted because some universities were obliged to drop intercollegiate football Northwestern and all other leading midwestern institutions whose officials believed that the nation needed contact games now more than ever before, announced they would field teams this fall if no one came to the games except the referee, umpire, field judge, and head linesman. . . . No one ever again can accuse the Big Ten, Notre Dame, and others of that caliber of conducting football mainly for commercial reasons. . . . It's still a game for the fellows who play it. . . . If thousands want to watch them, well, that's okay, too. . . . If all this adds up as a tribute to the athletic departments of Big Ten universities, and especially Northwestern's, we have accomplished what we set out to do.

Johnny Doughboy.

They call him Johnny Doughboy
And he's fair and on the square—
A speedy "touch and go" boy
With a will to do and dare.

He comes from plains and valleys
And from winding mountain trails;
He comes from streets and alleys
And he's tough and hard as nails.

In a hundred gallant ways
And yet he fares quite badly
When it comes to getting praise.

He's never bagged a Zero
Or a speedy Messerschmitt
But Johnny is a hero

His nerves are always steady
And he won't retreat an inch
For he is fit and ready
When "the shoe begins to pinch."

So give to Johnny Doughboy
All the credit he is due
For he's the "don't say no boy"
Who is sure to pull us thru!

Michael H. Dally.

Joe Buccanero,
A gay caballero,
Drives a Dubuque to Chicago bus.
Usually mild,
He sometimes goes wild
And feels a pronounced yen to cuss
At the questions they ask
When he's hard at his task,
Trying to serve with a smile:
"Is this bus requisitioned?"
"Is this gig air conditioned?"—
A hundred new queries each mile.

Says Rio Janeiro
May some day pop up in his face
For he'll run off his course
Unless he can force
His attention to its proper place—

"Driver, hurry! We're past

"Do you wonder," broods Joe,
With a grimace of woe,
"That I'm gradually losing my hair?"

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., July 15.—Hi Bithorn and his Cub pals tonight celebrated the completion of the first half of their 1943 schedule by whanging the fourth place Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 0. The victory, Bithorn's 10th, advanced the Cubs to within a half game of sixth and continued them a game out of fifth, if you figure the Phillies as having won a game they must play over. The official tables still credit the Phillies with the phantom triumph, but the Chicagoans really are only a half game out of fifth.

Bithorn's part in the Chicago defense tonight was a four hit, one walk performance. Max Marshall, who tripled with one out in the sixth, was the only gent to get to third. Only one other got to second. Ray Mueller beat out an infield scratch in the third, advanced on Clyde Shoun's infield out. He got no farther.

Cubs' Attack Concerted.

The Cub attack was an odd one. They made all their 10 hits, as well as their eight runs, in two innings, the five run third and the three run eighth. They did not get a man on base in the second, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, and ninth innings.

The Cubs knocked out Elmer Riddle with five hits before anybody was out in the third, the climax being a triple by Phil Cavarretta.

Shoun went in, yielded a hit to Lou Novikoff in the third, then mowed down the Cubs, until the eighth, when the Cubs added three runs when Bill Nicholson busted a homer with two on. It was Bill's twelfth homer and brought his run batted in total to 57.

Riddle Is Routed.

Here's the detail of the severe manner in which the Cubs attacked Riddle in the big third: Len Merullo led off with the first Chicago hit, a single to right, and stopped at second on Bithorn's single off Riddle's glove. Stan Hack singled to right, loading the bases. Eddie Stanky singled to center, scoring Merullo and Bithorn and on Dixie Walker's throw to the plate, Hack took third and Stanky second. Cavarretta tripled to right, scoring Hack and Stanky. Shoun replaced Riddle and Cavarretta scored on Nicholson's fly to Marshall. Novikoff then singled to center, but Eddie Lowrey and Clyde McCullough fouled out.

The productive eighth started

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Orval Grove, whose last mound achievement was a one hitter against the Yankees, was slowed down to a five hit performance last night before 24,349 Comiskey park patrons, but neither the White Sox nor the Maywood lad's unblemished record suffered. The James Dykes' stock yards gang was back on the job with two powerful innings, so Detroit's Tigers succumbed by 7 to 4 in the series opener and the Grove boy proceeded to extend his season's work to eight victories without a setback.

Grove carried the Yanks to within reach of the last out in the ninth before being dropped into the one hit level and this time missed a similar mark only by a few innings. The Tigers found him faultless until Roger Cramer led off with a single in the fourth, but it proved the only safe clout in six innings. In the next session, two hits along with two passes and an error not only moved four Tigers across the plate but cut down the 7 to 0 lead his pals had previously fixed up in his behalf.

Sox Recover from Yank Jolt.

It was no later than the second inning before the Sox began to prove they had recovered from their four straight jolts at the hands of the Yankees. Trout usually gives them concern, but in the mentioned inning they went crazy on extra base blows and knocked five runs across the plate. They hooked Trout again in the third with their two other runs and with that their attack was finished for the evening. They didn't get a hit off either Johnny Gorsica or Frank Lefty Overmire in the last five and two-thirds innings.

At least two of the Sox, exclusive of Grove, were slightly prominent in the giddy proceedings. With two stolen bases, Wally Moses raised his total to 21, one of them coming in the five run second. With two hits, one a triple, Ralph Hodgin, the outfielder now working for Dykes as a third baseman, launched the two run getting chapters. He was the only one to snare two of the Sox seven hits off Trout.

Hodgin Opens Fireworks.

The delightful second was opened by Hodgin's triple, which sailed into right center and was quickly followed by Don Kolloway's double, Hodgin strolling home. Joe Kuhel's bunt sent Kolloway to third

PUT IN TAKES $7,500 RACE ON ARLINGTON TURF

Beats Blue Pennant by Three-Quarters Length.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Put In, the horse which was moved up to first place in the $5,000 Rolling Lawn handicap on July 1 after Take Wing had been disqualified, yesterday clinched the turf course championship of the Arlington meeting by winning the $7,500 Grassland handicap. After this colt had been last in the early stages, Jimmy Haritos brought him in at 11 to 1 odds, three-quarters of a length ahead of Blue Pennant while Air Master was finishing third. Meanwhile Take Wing, refraining from any shenanigans this time, came in fourth after he had been made the 2 to 1 favorite.

The turf course records, which have been falling as fast as marks at a high school track meet, took another beating in this gallop of a mile and three-sixteenths. Put In's time of 1:56 2-5 was two seconds better than the American mark which Reading II. set in winning the Rolling Lawn handicap at Arlington Park last season.

There's Bit of Rough Riding.

As in the case of the recent Rolling Lawn handicap, there was a bit of rough riding in yesterday's turf stake. Frank Chojnacki, jockey aboard Reading II., was suspended for ten days when the stewards held him responsible for letting his mount interfere with Devalue at the start, Air Master on the first turn, and Take Wing in the back stretch.

Blue Pennant took over the pacemaking spot soon after the start, with Reading II., Take Wing, and Air Master close up. Put In was in the rear of the field of nine. On the last turn Air Master took the lead, but subsequently tired while Blue Pennant continued to run. Meanwhile, Put In had been working his way up steadily in the later stages and he got to the front in the last 40 yards. His pay-off was $24.20, $9.80, and $7.20 across the board.

Contenders for the Arlington Classic all will be on the grounds today when Chop Chop and Famous Victory arrive from the east to fill their engagements in the $50,000 stake a week from tomorrow.

A Son of Hyperion.

The Mill River stable's Chop Chop, a son of the Ascot Gold cup winner, Flares, recently increased his prestige considerably by breaking a track record at Jamaica to win the Empire City handicap.

Famous Victory, which races under the colors of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, bases his Classic credentials on the fact that he was second in the Shevlin and the Dwyer stakes and third in the Peter Pan handicap during his New York campaign. He is an imported son of the distinguished English stallion, Hyperion.

These invaders from the east present a formidable threat to Occupation, Slide Rule, and other Classic candidates which have been racing in the Chicago area.

HURLS 2 HITTER AS RHEINGOLDS DEFEAT CO-EDS

Catherine Fellmeth pitched two hit ball as the Rheingolds defeated the Benda Coals Co-eds, 6 to 1, last night in a Metropolitan Chicago Girls Major Softball league game. The Rockolas lost a 1 to 0 decision to the Parichy Bloomer Girls, Laura Bishop scoring her 24th victory. The Gold Crowns beat the Tungsten Sparks, 4 to 1.

Witt Hanleys Defeat North Town Vaults, 10-7

The Witt Hanley Yankees defeated the North Town Vaults, 10 to 7, in the first of a five game series to decide the first half championship of the North Town Softball league last night in North Town stadium. The North Town Currencies defeated the First Ward Demos, 7 to 6, in the first game of the double header.

Eddie's, Brachs Win in Windy City Softball

The Eddie's defeated the Fewers, 13 to 7, and the Brachs beat the Harrys, 11 to 6, in Windy City Softball league games in Hillburn stadium last night. The Adducis meet the Owl Club tonight at Rheingold stadium in the second contest of a three game series.

Swim Trials on Tomorrow in Two Pools

The Oak Park Country club, Peoria, Ill., and Rochelle, Ill., swimmers from Spring lake top the list of clubs competing in the sectional 100 yard Chicagoland races tomorrow afternoon in Cermak pool. Trials also are scheduled tomorrow afternoon in Sherman park pool, 52d street and Racine avenue.

Sunday's sectional 100 yard free style races will be held in Whealan pool, Devon and Milwaukee avenues, and in California park pool, 3901 North California avenue. Qualifiers from the four sections—last year 118 boys and girls received gold qualifying medals—will meet in the Chicagoland finals July 25 in the 14th annual meet conducted by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Oak Park Enters Nine.

Orin K. Noth, swimming director of the Oak Park Country club, has entered nine in the Cermak pool trials. They are Tom Kerwin, class A; Dick Hall, class B, and Dave Jensen, Eddie Kerwin, and Bill Price, class C; Virginia Shearman and Virginia Carolan, class B; Corinne Baker, class C, and Helen Oltman, class E.

While several individual entries previously have been received from Peoria, the last to be accepted Tuesday by the registration clerks were John Merill, class B, and Janet and Martha Miller, class A, for girls 11 and 12 years of age. The trio will represent the Mount Hawley Country club of Peoria and they are swimming in tomorrow's trials so as to participate in another meet Sunday. If they qualify they will return to Chicago for the finals July 25.

Three from Spring Lake.

Coach Joe Ilika of Spring lake, Rochelle, Ill., has entered three in tomorrow's races in Cermak pool. They are Ronald Hansen and Patricia Miles, class A, and Maurine Meisner, class D.

Teams from Washington park, East Chicago, Ind., Calumet City, Ill., and the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. were listed in the final tabulations by the clerks. All will compete in Sherman park tomorrow. The South Chicago Y. M. C. A. swimmers are Glen Larson, David Russel, and George Pesut, class A; William Bricker and Andrew Davis, class B, and Mickey Kochak and Dan Brown, class C.

Members of the East Chicago group are Paul Guiden, Ray and Joe Tulley, class D, and Helen Hanak, class B. The Calumet City swimmers are Edward Fedosky and his sisters, Juanita and Virginia. Edward is entered in class C while the girls will compete in classes B and D, respectively.

The last of the notifications for Sunday's races were mailed this morning. Postcards addressed to those in tomorrow's trials previously had been placed in the mail. These cards furnish racing numbers and note that all preliminary events will start at 1:30 p. m.

All-Stars Get N.U.'s Kapter, Arizona's Irish

Kapter's biggest thrill in intercollegiate football in his sophomore year came in his first game, and he says that every game since then has provided an additional thrill. Alex is eagerly anticipating the opening of the All-Star practice Aug. 7.

One of Biggest.

Irish also will report to Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher on Aug. 7. He will be one of the biggest members of the college group. He's 23 years of age, weighs 220 pounds, and is 6 feet 7 inches tall. Jack attended Roosevelt High school in East Chicago and then earned three varsity letters playing right tackle on the Arizona eleven.

Irish received the degree of bachelor of music from the university and he majored in voice. The All-Star players now may be expected to pair Irish with Otto Graham, who plays several musical instruments, including the piano, and their entertainment is assured.

Kicked 33 Yard Goal.

"My biggest thrill in intercollegiate football," Irish wrote in accepting the invitation to the All-Star squad, "was in my sophomore year. I kicked a 33 yard field goal when Arizona whipped Marquette university."

Irish's field goal kicking will stand him in good stead in the intrasquad battle for positions and and the right to play against the professional champions. The list of tackles, who have accepted invitations to participate in the 10th game conducted by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., includes Paul Mitchell of Minnesota, Al Wistert of Michigan, Leslie Kalchick of Marquette, George Petty of Lake Forest, and Eldon Werkheiser of Dubuque.

UDELL TO PILOT FALCON II. IN MACKINAC RACE

52 Foot Sloop Defends Title Tomorrow.

Clare Udell, veteran R and Eagle class racing pilot of the Chicago Yacht club, will be skipper of Falcon II., the 52 foot Q class sloop defending the Universal division time prize honors in the club's 36th annual race to Mackinac Island, Mich., starting from Chicago harbor tomorrow.

The narrow mahogany yacht, second largest Q boat ever built, won the Chicago-Mackinac trophy last July. It was sailed by L. I. [Ole] Karas, the only yachtsman to win the Mackinac race six times. Karas and Udell brought the Falcon here late in 1941, after the racing season. Since then they have alternated as skippers from race to race.

Peterson in Navy.

The Falcon's crew will consist of the two owners, A. D. Dowrie Jr., Ed Schnabel Sr., Sam Clarke, and Walter Goettsch. Fred Peterson, who was one of the winning crew on the sloop last year, is now a lieutenant in the navy.

Tony Hermann of the Racine [Wis.] Yacht club, who won the 1939 Mackinac race in the Universal [racing] division with his Q class sloop Gloriant, again will be at the helm of the 50 foot double-ended sloop.

Hermann sold the yacht to Thomas Vitas, another Racine yachtsman, several seasons ago when he went into war work and moved to another city. Vitas has invited him to be skipper of the sloop in tomorrow's race.

Al Peuquet Sails Conewago.

Falcon will also compete with Dr. Adrien Ver Brugghen's Hope, another Q boat which twice has won the Mackinac race; Hornet, now owned by Dr. Leonard Carden; Joyant, Charles Granville's P class sloop; the sloop West Wind, formerly Stephia of the Milwaukee Yacht club, and the eight meter class sloop Conewago.

The Conewago, which won the Col. Robert Morse trophy last week in the 93 mile race from Black Lake, Mich., will be sailed by its owner, Al Peuquet, Payson Mayhew, and a Chicago Yacht club crew.

An 'A' Card? Fishing Good in Michigan

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Anglers who are wondering where they can moisten their fishing lines within A card distance of Chicago should examine a map of southwestern Michigan and note the hundreds of small bass and bluegill waters which dot that area. In the square area from Battle Creek east to Lake Michigan and south to the Indiana line are four to five hundred small lakes which annually produce excellent fishing for the residents of that area but which have been overlooked by Illinois anglers. Now that gasoline rationing is curtailing fishing trips, the area is receiving renewed attention.

Early this week we tossed fly rod lures as well as bait casting plugs at the bass in the waters surrounding the town of Paw Paw, Mich. In this one county [Van Buren] there are 101 small lakes. Many of these have only one or two boats to be rented, and most of them have no accommodations for tourists, but they do have depth and vegetation to hold a good fish population. The angler who enjoys staying at a hotel or in a housekeeping cottage can fish a new lake almost every day. Large bluegills can be hooked almost any time and large mouth bass can be taken when these battlers are in a feeding mood.

In addition, the Paw Paw river, with its numerous branches, provides good trout fishing. This season the streams in the Paw Paw region, like others thruout the state, are too high to produce best results. In fact the trout anglers in the Paw Paw area have had to leave their waders at home and fish the trout streams from highway bridges this season.

Bass fishermen going into the lakes around Paw Paw should be well supplied with weedless lures. When we fished Ackley lake and Reynolds lake we found the bass rising from the thick beds of water lilies and pickerel weed around the lake edges.

TAMBURRINO'S 73 WINS K. OF C. STATE TOURNEY

600 Golfers Compete in Elmhurst Event.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

August Tamburrino, a 34 year old furniture salesman who has been moving in progressively on the state golf championship of the Knights of Columbus for the last seven years, finally arrived yesterday.

Augie, a bespectacled member of Feehan council, made the grade with a 73, two over par for the tidy acreage of the Elmhurst Country club, and thereby won the 16th annual title and with it the Fred B. Snite trophy. Tamburrino was fourth in 1941 and last year only Sgt. Frank McNamara of Leo and Sid Smith of Quigley finished ahead of him, the sergeant later winning a playoff of his tie with Smith, the 1940 victor.

Host Snite and his associates had anticipated a field not to exceed 400. Instead, 600, the largest competitive entry of the year in the Chicago golf district, turned up, with the result that 200 of them had to be sent to the adjacent Brookwood course to play their rounds. More than 700 attended the evening dinner.

Leo council led by Fritz Jordan who finished second with a 75, and Sgt. McNamara, who tied for third at 77, won the team trophy with a foursome aggregate of 320. Springfield finished second with 329. In addition to McNamara and Jordan, the Leo quartet which successfully defended its 1942 crown included Joe Morris and Joe Bartush, each of whom finished with an 84.

August Tamburrino, Feehan, 38—35—73; Fritz Jordan, Leo, 39—36—75; Sgt. Frank McNamara, Leo, 37—40—77; Sid Smith, Quigley, 39—38—77; Joseph A. Patton, Springfield, 41—37—78; James Leavitt, Oak Park, 39—40—79; Charles O'Reilly, Aquinas, 41—38—79; Harry Buckley, Springfield, 40—40—80; John Hanik, Perez, 39—41—80. Frank McDermott, De Soto, 43—38—81; Harold A. Nilles, Glenview, 40—42—82; Nick Muscari, St. Cyr, 39—43—82; Tony Rudis, Springfield, 40—42—82; Tom Jordan, Quigley, 42—40—82; Leo Slewinski, Tonti, 41—42—83; Joseph Bartush, Leo, 41—43—84; Joseph Morris, Leo, 43—41—84; Dick McHale, Perez, 43—42—85; Fred Corcoran, Aurora, 44—41—85; Fred B. Snite, Elmhurst, 42—43—85.

and he scored from there on Mike Tresh's tap, which Jimmy Bloodworth threw too late, as well as wild, to the plate. Tresh took second on the error, and went to third on Grove's out, after which Moses walked. Moses stole, as usual, and followed Tresh over the plate on Thurman Tucker's triple to right. Guy Curtright beat out a bunt, which Pinky Higgins wasn't anticipating, Tucker scoring the fifth run.

Having brought on production with his triple, Hodgin opened the third with a single and again things happened to the dismay of the Tigers. Kolloway was thrown out by Bloodworth, but Kuhel singled, Hodgin counting. Kuhel went down to second while Paul Richards was pursuing a wild pitch and scored on a single by Tresh. Grove walked, whereupon the Tiger management realized Trout was in need of assistance. Gorsica was rushed to the rescue and the fun stopped.

Grove Gets in Trouble.

Grove's distress in the seventh began with a pass to Dick Wakefield and a single by Higgins. Ned Harris sent a likely looking double play grounder to Luke Appling who fumbled momentarily and had to make a short toss to Kolloway, who dropped the ball, Wakefield scoring on the play. Rudy York walked, filling the bases, and a single by Bloodworth scored both Higgins and Harris. York counted while Rip Radcliff, who batted for Richards, was forcing Bloodworth. Prince Henry Oana was sent forth to bat for Gorsica and relieved the situation by bouncing to Appling for a twin killing.

Grove had some trouble in the eighth, but it wasn't serious. Cramer singled and after two were out Higgins enjoyed a single on a drive that Hodgin kept from developing into a two bagger. Moses took in Harris' fly to end the inning.

After fanning York to open the ninth Grove walked Bloodworth, but Appling came thru in the clutch by taking charge of Unser's sharp grounder and turning it into a double play.

DODGERS OPEN JAUNT, LEAVE MEDWICK HOME

New York, July 15 (AP).—Joe Medwick, veteran outfielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers and in his prime one of the greatest slugging stars of the National league, was left at home tonight as the Dodgers departed for Boston. It was assumed he would either be traded or released.

Just before the club boarded a train Manager Leo Durocher announced to writers that Medwick had been given permission to remain in New York and said an explanation would be forthcoming tomorrow.

Since Brooklyn now is one over the 25 player limit as the result of acquiring Fritz Ostermueller and Archie McKain from the St. Louis Browns yesterday for Buck Newsom, the writers quickly reasoned that Medwick was the player who would be lopped off the roster.

Cubs Defeat Reds Behind Bithorn, 8-0

The success brought the Cubs' road record on this trip to 11 victories in 16 engagements. They have won four out of nine from the Reds and three out of five in Crosley field.

Most shocked man in the park tonight was Riddle. He was in quest of his 12th victory and his fifth straight. Instead he suffered his fifth loss, his first at the hands of the Cubs.

The Reds had a four game winning streak prior to tonight's thumping which was witnessed by a crowd of 16,026. Strangely enough, they've had four game winning streaks, but never a span of five victories.

MERULLO WINS RACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., July 15.—In the field events before tonight's game between the Reds and the Cubs, the Chicagoans came out second best, but won two of the featured contests. Lennie Merullo took the 75 yard dash and Phil Cavarretta beat Lou Novikoff in the throw-off of a tie. Len's time was announced as 8 seconds, and Cavarretta's winning toss was 380 feet.

John Lobert won the wheelbarrow rolling contest for accuracy from Novikoff. The contestants were blindfolded, but it is suspected Lobert peeped. Bucky Walters won the fungo contest and the Reds took the four-man relay throwing race.

ST. VIATOR CLUB PLANS BENEFIT SHOW JULY 23

Five amateur boxing bouts, two wrestling matches, an exhibition of the art of judo by a WAVE and a WAC, and other interesting features are included on the benefit outdoor athletic program planned by the military commission of St. Viator's Holy Name society, Friday, July 23, at Addison and Kedvale avenues.

The proceeds of the show will be used to furnish cigarets, tobacco, copies of the parish paper, and other items to St. Viator's 600 men in the service. Members of the military commission also hope to raise enough from benefit performances to send each of the boys a Christmas present as they did a year ago.

AMATEURS WILL FIGHT TONIGHT IN CICERO RING

A series of amateur bouts between boxers from Milwaukee and Chicago will be held tonight in Madison-Cicero outdoor arena, 4820 Madison street. The Chicago team will be led by Tim Dalton, city Golden Gloves lightweight winner, who went to the semi-finals in the Tournament of Champions last spring. He will meet Alvin Jordan. Other Chicagoans on the card will include Earl Allard, 126 pounds; Jackie Boyd, 112; Caesar Cooper, 140.

Boyd and Sanders qualified for the meet tonight by winning their matches last Friday, the former knocking out Pvt. William McVey, and Sanders defeating Corp. Don Hanni. These conquests helped the Chicagoans beat a team from Camp Grant 6 bouts to 3.

MATCHES FACE McKAYS.

Les Faust, 16 year old ace, and Bill Bartz, one armed star, have been assigned the pitching duties for Match Corporation of America in their two game week-end softball series with the Rock Island McKays. They meet Saturday in Parichy stadium and Sunday in Rockola stadium.

By Way of Description.

It often has been said of questionable women that they smoke like a chimney and drink like a fish. However, after watching some of them make gulping thrusts at a lighted fag I'd think it would be sufficient to say they smoke like a fish.

AIR LINES ASK FREE FIELD IN WORLD ROUTES

'Not Adaptable'

Jersey City, N. J., July 15 (AP).—Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, told stockholders at their annual meeting today he did not believe military airplanes would be adaptable to air line operations after the war. The nature of fighter plane construction and the high cost of operation would rule such craft out of the commercial field, Trippe said. He said the transport business of his company would have increased 300 per cent above 1941 if the company could have obtained delivery of 57 four engined transports ordered before the war.

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—Most of the nation's air lines combined today in asking that the world skyways be opened to all after the war, with private ownership and operation fostered and encouraged by the government.

The declaration of principle, signed by 16 companies at the conclusion of a five day conference, made it clear the American carriers were willing to exchange freely the rights they sought in other countries.

The statement was in the form of a supplement to a reply made jointly to questions on post-war air problems posed by the civil aeronautics board. This statement served also as a formal notice to the CAB that the signing companies would file applications for certificates to operate on world-wide routes.

Asked to Preserve Facilities.

The government was asked to preserve for United States air lines the use of facilities which this country has been installing all over the world for military purposes, to plan for exchange of the right of innocent passage over foreign countries, and help the carriers prepare for future developments in aircraft manufacture.

Missing from the list of signers were United Air Lines, a nationwide carrier; Pan American Airways, largest operator in the international field, and American Export Airlines, which had begun to enter the Atlantic field when the war began.

United said it had declined to sign because the other lines would not accept its proposal that the statement not preclude it "from giving serious consideration to jointly financed and operated routes if it should be found that the best interests of the country can be served by such coöperative effort."

Pan American had no comment.

Call for Private Ownership.

The joint statement summarized their basic policies as follows:

Free and open competition—world-wide—subject to reasonable regulation by the appropriate governmental agencies.

Private ownership and management.

Fostering and encouragement by the government of the United States of a sound world-wide air transportation system.

LOWER FARES IN EFFECT

Reduced fares for air travel, which brought rates near the level of 1st class rail plus Pullman fares, were placed in effect yesterday by a number of large air lines. Lower air express rates—down about 12½ per cent—also went into effect in accordance with lower tariffs filed by the air express division of the Railway Express agency, which serves the air lines.

American Telephone Earns $2.22 a Share in Quarter

Walter S. Gifford.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, reported yesterday that volume of telephone business again set new records in the second quarter of the year as a result of "abnormal war time demands." He said materials for new construction and the manufacture of new equipment are practically unavailable except for essential war needs and that "civilian demands increasingly cannot be met in full."

The company's income statement showed net earnings again slightly short of requirements for the annual $9 dividend. Second quarter net profit was $41,429,000, equal to $2.22 a share, against a dividend requirement of $42,058,000. Adjusted net profit in the corresponding quarter of 1942 was $41,328,851, or $2.21 a share. In the 12 months ended June 30, net earnings were $162,118,000, equal to $8.67 a share, against $175,693,749, or $9.40 a share.

Bell System Gains.

Consolidated net income of the Bell system for the quarter ended May 31, applicable to American Telephone and Telegraph stock, amounted to $43,960,918, or $2.35 a share, compared with adjusted net income of $40,810,482, or $2.18 a share a year earlier. In the 12 months ended May 31 net earnings were $171,017,450, or $9.15 a share, against $178,357,770, or $9.54 a share.

Other companies reporting net profit included:

PULLMAN COMPANY—This Chicago sleeping car subsidiary of Pullman, Inc., reported that May net operating profit was $624,895, against adjusted net operating profit of $905,974 in May, 1942. Net operating profit for the five months thru May totaled $2,436,730, compared with an adjusted figure of $3,012,557 a year earlier.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH—A net loss of $2,324,269 was reported for May, against a net loss of $380,839 in May, 1942. For the five months ended May 31, the net loss aws $3,711,610, against $1,900,866.

TRUAX-TRAER COAL—This Chicago firm had consolidated net profit of $1,025,049, equal to $2.10 a common share, in the year ended April 30, compared with $845,243, or $1.86 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

Arthur H. Truax, president, said that the year's output by the company's 11 mines reached an all time high of 5,241,027 tons, against 4,744,480 tons the year before.

Stocks Topple After Rising to New Peaks

New York, July 15 (AP).—The stock market had a last minute setback today after numerous favorite issues had touched peak levels for nearly four years.

Little was found in the news to account for the late decline. War bulletins from virtually all fronts were encouraging, and business developments hardly could be called pessimistic. Brokers, consequently, attributed the reaction mainly to profit cashing on the long advance.

Dealings were slack from the start until the final half hour, when volume began to slide. At the close declines of fractions to two or more points were well in the majority.

The Associated Press 60 stock average fell 0.4 of a point to 52.9, widest drop in one day since June 1.

Rails, steels, rubbers, motors and mail orders were in the forefront ofthe decline. A handful of oils managed to keep ahead as reports persisted of a boost in crude prices.

UTILITY BONDS STRONG.

New York, July 15 (AP).—Utility liens made the best group showing in today's bond market, the Associated Press average of 20 issues rising 0.1 of a point. Rails and industrial averages were slightly lower. Carriers, ahead generally Wednesday, were subjected to profit selling.

CHICAGO TRADE SLOWS.

1942 PAY ROLLS IN ILLINOIS SET 2.3 MILLION TOP

The largest manufacturers' pay roll in Illinois history—$2,302,950,000—was carried in 1942, the Illinois Manufacturers' association announced yesterday. The vast total was attributed to major war contracts, which from June, 1940, to April 1, 1943, amounted to approximately 7 billion dollars for the state. The association analysis was based on estimates by the department of commerce.

National industrial pay rolls for 1942 were estimated at 30 billion 706 million dollars, of which total Illinois accounted for 7.5 per cent to rank fifth behind New York, with 12.3 per cent; Pennsylvania, 9.7; Ohio, 8.8, and Michigan, 8.6.

Rock Island Authorized to Retire Debt of $369,000

Trustees of the Rock Island railroad were authorized yesterday by Federal Judge William J. Campbell to purchase $369,000 of equipment trust certificates.

OUTPUT LAGS AGAIN IN JUNE, ARMY REPORTS

61% of Year's Goal Yet to Be Reached.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—For the second successive month war production for the army in June fell below schedule, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson reported today.

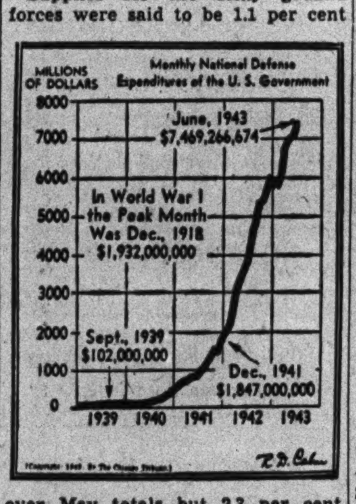
Unless production is speeded up in the next six months the nation will fall behind its 1943 goals, he said. During the next three months about three-fifths of the army's requirements must be turned out if the 1943 schedules are to be met.

June aircraft production was only slightly above May, and was below schedule, he said. June plane production in weight was fixed at 3 per cent above May totals and fighting planes were 70 per cent of the total as against 68 per cent in May.

Weight Is Increased.

The average weight of planes produced was 7,300 pounds in June as against 7,100 in May and 6,100 in January.

Supplies for the army ground forces were said to be 1.1 per cent over May totals but 2.3 per cent below April figures and 4.9 per cent below June schedules.



Production of major items for the ground forces in the first quarter of the year totaled 4 billion 158 million dollars. In the second quarter the total was advanced less than 10 per cent to 4 billion 558 million dollars.

"The jobs remaining to be done vary widely," Patterson said. "In the next six months we must produce 61 per cent of the total number of airplanes scheduled for 1943.

Assignments to Services.

Chemical warfare, 68.9 per cent; signal corps, 67.9 per cent; corps of engineers, 65.1 per cent; transportation corps, 62.1 per cent; ordnance, 59.6 per cent; quartermaster corps, 44.8 per cent, and medical department, 38.2 per cent.

Patterson's report on army production followed yesterday's statement by Donald Nelson, war production chairman, that June war production missed its 6½ billion dollar goal by a half billion dollars.

"Large increases in production must be made during the coming six months if army requirements for 1943 are to be met," Patterson said.

OBJECTIVES APPROVED

Objectives of the war time code for merchants announced by WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson were approved yesterday by David Mayer Jr., chairman of the board of the State Street Council. "Provisions of the code sound like they were written by a business man who understands business," Mayer said. "It is a reasonable code and one which most thinking merchants have anticipated. I'm sure that, with adequate information on supplies, the rationing of clothing can be avoided."

TFR-500, It's a Form You Should Know

Thousands of individuals and corporations in the Chicago federal reserve district yesterday were becoming acquainted with TFR-500. They were doing so because failure to get on the proper footing with TFR-500 could cost them $10,000 in fines or as much as 10 years in one of Uncle Sam's jails, or both.

TFR-500, it may be explained, is one of the latest of the many forms with which federal agencies have complicated the lives of corporation officials and individuals. It is an instrument of the treasury department and was directed at individuals or corporations owning foreign stocks, bonds, or other forms of property.

Who Fills the Form.

Any person, corporation, or other interest that owns more than $10,000 of property in a foreign land—and that includes Canada—must fill out the form. However, the form must be filled out by those outside the $10,000 class who own foreign bonds, regardless of value, payable in United States dollars or who own interests in foreign organizations, patent license agreements, trade mark license agreements, and such.

Originally TFR-500 had to be filled out by Aug. 31, but the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago announced yesterday the time limit had been extended to Nov. 1.

Details Given—and How!

In order to make it easy for the citizen to fill out TFR-500, the treasury under the signature of Randolph Paul, acting secretary, has issued a 24 page circular—designated as Circular No. 22—printed fine type. Many legal phrases, sentences containing several hundred words and long chains of subparagraphs are used to help keep the person filling out TFR-500 from going wrong.

Officials at the reserve bank said they expected at least 100,000 reports would have to be made out in the 7th federal reserve district. Banks' and trust companies were notifying their customers of the new regulations.

Handled by Reserve Banks.

The treasury said TFR-500 was intended to provide the government with accurate information on foreign property owned in the United States, so that the government could act with more knowledge on international economic and financial activities now and after the war. The federal reserve banks are handling the operation for the treasury.

After receiving copies of TFR-500 and Circular 22 one Chicagoan was inspired to write Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], complaining of additional paper work. He said that much of the information required in the report already was in possession of the treasury department. He said the documents provide another example of "why there is a terrible shortage of paper, the necessity for pentagon buildings for the filing of more records and the perpetual request for more and more government employes."

People and Events

Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York advertising agency, will open a Chicago branch office in September, Thomas D'Arcy Brophy, president, announced yesterday. Chester Foust, who has resigned as vice president of J. Walter Thompson, Chicago, to become executive vice president and a director of Kenyon & Eckhardt, will head the new office.

Tribute to the "scrapping" abilities of the Stewart-Warner corporation employes was paid when the blue and gold "Eagle" standard of the salvage division of the office of civilian defense was presented in ceremonies held in the plant. The employes also received a special citation of merit for having salvaged more than 110 million pounds of metal since Dec. 8, 1941.

MERCHANTS GO ON HONOR CODE TO MISS RATION

Ban Put on 'Scare' Ads for Clothing.

Arthur D. Whiteside.

Washington, D. C., July 15 (AP).—The nation's clothing merchants were placed on an honor system today to comply with a war time code of selling practices designed to discourage "overzealous" salesmen and "excess" buying, and thus avoid the rigors of rationing of clothing.

The code, laid down by Donald M. Nelson, war production chief, in a declaration of policy, ruled out for the duration advertising phrases coined to stimulate sales thru such scarcity appeals as: "Buy now—these prices are good for a short time only."

Code Drawn by Whiteside.

In place of such advertising, WPB suggested that coypwriters devote themselves to: Item advertising of regular merchandise at regular prices, institutional advertising, and advertisments informing the public on conservation and care of goods, services of their repair departments, and the war program.

The code was drafted by Arthur D. Whiteside, director of WPB's office of civilian requirements, after consultations with representatives of textile retailers.

Rules in Effect at Once.

Whiteside termed the program "the broadest step in individual commercial self-regulation ever attempted in this country."

There will be no policing of stores as long as the code works, it was stated. The declaration of policy said WPB had determined that there is "an adequate supply of textiles to meet essential civilian needs."

RETURN TO JOBS, AKRON STRIKERS TOLD BY UNION

Akron, O., July 15 (AP).—Striking CIO bus and street car operators tonight were ordered by their international president to return to their jobs a short time after the war labor board called for an end to the stoppage which paralyzed mass transportation in this war busy rubber capital.

Referring to a WLB panel's findings on a pay increase request which local union leaders said precipitated the walkout, Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers' union, said: "There is a way of settling this thru an appeal to the WLB. The panel's finding is not the final word. There is, however, no justification for a strike. I cannot understand how these men could go ahead and stop work and violate the CIO no-strike pledge."

Big Post-War Use of Steel Is Predicted

New York, July 15 [Special].—Vast potential markets for steel at home and abroad after the war were indicated in a survey of post-war markets conducted in behalf of United States Steel corporation by George W. Wold, president of United States Steel Export company, the corporation disclosed today.

Wolf studied the post-war planning programs of companies in 13 "customer industries," which represent in a normal year about four-fifths of United States Steel's business.

Auto Outlook Promising.

"The automobile industry has especially promising prospects," the survey disclosed. "It is estimated that by the end of 1943 there will be a backed up demand for 2 million trucks and 6 million passenger cars which, added to the estimated normal requirements of 1 million trucks and 3 million passenger cars per year, means that by 1944 there will be a demand for 12 million automotive vehicles.

The survey disclosed there is "a golden opportunity for the fabricated house to come into its own." Old production methods have meant that Americans have been getting less for their money in housing than in almost any other product, it said.

A trend toward larger use of steel on farms also was indicated by the survey, which predicted steel barns and sheds.

Big Highway Use Forecast.

Highways will provide another large outlet for steel. Delayed maintenance has built up "an enormous backlog for reinforcing steel for existing highways," the survey said. "In addition, many thousands of new highways are needed and are being planned," including metropolitan express networks as well as superhighway networks serving the whole country instead of a few areas, as at present.

In the railroad industry, catching up on deferred maintenance and changes in track and rolling stock to meet increasing speeds of passenger and freight trains will offer the principal opportunities and thousands of cars and locomotives will have to be replaced.

SKILLED WORKER SUPPLY USED UP, A. OF C. IS TOLD

The supply of highly skilled workers has been exhausted, Col. Harris P. Ralston, deputy director and occupational advisor of the selective service system in Illinois, said yesterday at the Chicago Association of Commerce war problems school in the Palmer House.

The United States employment service cannot provide machinists, or mechanical and electrical engineers, Col. Ralston said. Employers must take fewer skilled workers and break down jobs to operations within the capacity of these workers, he declared.

MEAT SUPPLIES TO HOLD RATION AT SAME LEVEL

The war food administration announced yesterday that the civilian allotment of the meat supply during the 12 months to July 1, 1944, will be 63 pounds of every 100 produced, or an amount that will permit continuation of the civilian meat ration at "about the present level."

Total allocable meat supplies, exclusive of necessary operating reserves, were estimated by the WFA at approximately 23¼ billion pounds. The WFA said it was believed that civilians would receive 14¾ billion pounds during the 12 month period, compared with apparent civilian consumption in 1942 of about 17½ billion, and the 1935-'39 average of about 16¼ billion, altho exact estimates could not be made now.

Allotments Are Compared.

The estimated civilian shares of beef, veal, lamb, and mutton are smaller than the consumption figures for last year and the five year average. The allotment of pork is smaller than the 1942 total, but is larger than the average.

Total meats	14,697.2	17,588	16,2[illegible]
Beef	5,937.5	7,903	7,094
Veal	909	1,006	1,037.4
Lamb, mutton	539.8	939	86[illegible].3
Pork	7,310.9	7,740	7,283.6

Of the total meat supply to be allocated, the army and navy have been given almost 4 billion pounds, or 17 pounds out of every 100, the WFA said. The food distribution administration will procure for American allies approximately 3¼ billion pounds [mostly pork], or 14 out of every 100, and allotments for reserve supplies and exports including the Red Cross and United States territories and possessions make up the remaining 6 pounds.

Beef to Total 9 Billion Pounds.

About 9 billion pounds of beef will be available during the next 12 months, the WFA estimated, with the civilian share representing about 66 pounds out of every 100 and the army and navy allotment of 2 billion representing 23 pounds. Other claimant groups, including lend-lease, are to receive 170 million pounds, or 2 out of each 100 pounds.

Of the approximately 12 billion pounds of pork expected to be available, the civilian share has been set at 59 out of each 100 pounds. Lend-lease has been given less than half that amount, or a total of 3 billion pounds, while military and war services will require another 1⅛ billion.

The WFA said meats are allocated on a quarterly basis, with

Average Slides 15 Cents as Supply Is Large.

The second largest Thursday receipts in six months pushed hog prices down 10 to 25 cents a hundred pounds to pierce the government's "floor" of $13.75 for 240 to 270 pounds the third time in three weeks.

Heavy selling of hogs was reported in all parts of the country. Twenty of the biggest stock yards received a total of 116,000 head, which was 8,000 less than the abnormally large total handled a week earlier, but 34,000 more than the average of the three preceding Thursdays, a gain of 41 per cent.

Average Declines 15 Cents.

The average hog price declined 15 cents to $13.40, only 5 cents above the lowest daily average since March, 1942. It was 90 cents below the average of a year earlier. Top loads early sold at $14 and later at $13.90, and the bulk of good young stock weighing 200 to 240 pounds sold from $13.75 to $13.90.

Some letup in cattle receipts stimulated enough competition for best grades to lift prices for that type slightly. Other steers and yearlings were slow and barely steady. The best brought $16.75 and the bulk sold from $14.50 to $16.

Twenty markets received 30,000 cattle, compared with 37,000 a week earlier and 32,000 a year ago. However, this brought the five day total this week to 204,000, against 159,000 a week ago and 178,000 a year ago.

BUTTER STOCKS HIGH

Butter reserves in cold storage on July 1 were the largest on record for the date, egg supplies were the largest since 1933, and lamb, mutton, lard, and frozen egg stocks were above a year ago, the department of agriculture reported yesterday. Poultry and American cheese showed big declines from a year ago, however, and beef and pork, down moderately from a year ago, were the smallest since October, 1941, and January this year, respectively.

The government set aside order and consumer rationing were major factors in pushing butter in storage at the first of this month to 157,955,000 pounds, largest total in the records of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, which go back to 1916.

Heavy demand as the result of meat rationing and higher incomes was reflected in the decline of poultry in storage to 25,193,000 pounds from 79,200,000 a year ago.

Cold storage holdings in pounds, except shell eggs, which are in cases, as reported by the department of agriculture follow:

CANADIAN STOCK.

I am stationed in England with the United States army, and would like some information concerning Canadian Pacific railway stock. What may be the disadvantage to a United States citizen as compared with a Briton in holding the stock in the event of a drastic change in the British empire's financial status? Would there be any advantage in purchasing the stock in England rather than doing so for my account at home?—L. F.

Answer: Canadian Pacific "ordinary" or common stock is issued in terms of the Canadian dollar, but is quoted in pounds on the London exchange and in United States dollars on the New York Stock exchange.

If the Canadian dollar depreciated sharply in terms of the United States dollar, but remained steady in terms of the pound, English holders of the stock would be in a better position than United States holders. The Canadian dollar now is at a discount in relation to the United States dollar, and if it regains parity the present holders of Canadian securities will benefit.

There is usually no appreciable advantage to the small trader in purchasing a Canadian or an American security in the London market. The activities of arbitragers tend to keep a security's market value in line in the various markets, taking into consideration, of course, the exchange status of the currencies involved.

STUDY MEAT PERMITS

County war meat committees in the Great Lakes region of the food distribution administration have begun reviewing all local slaughter and butcher permits in a campaign to eliminate illegal slaughter practices by tightening the system of issuing permits, the war food administration announced yesterday.

Because of the rapidity with which slaughter permits were issued originally, the policy in granting quotas was loose and not uniform, and the 4,115 slaughterers and butchers in the region recently were required to submit evidence by last midnight to establish their right to their quotas, the WFA said.

John A. Kotal, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, Chicago, notified Price Administrator Prentiss Brown by telegram that the association is "obliged to protest" the office of price administration's "acquiescence" to the practice of local packers in certain cities selling direct to consumers. He said it has resulted in a "chaotic condition."

SELLING OF RYE PUSHES PRICES OF GRAINS DOWN

Scattered liquidation by holders of rye futures developed yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after Prentiss Brown, price administrator, made a statement that no change in the ceiling price of corn was planned and that the OPA was discussing placing a ceiling price on hogs. Many operators who bought rye futures on the prospect that higher prices would prevail for corn started to unload their holdings and prices slumped, with July in the lead. July rye closed 2⅝ cents a bushel lower at $1.08¼, which was 8¼ cents below the high of the preceding week.

WAYS TO KEEP TRUCKS ROLLING ARE DISCUSSED

Supply Becomes Acute, U. S. Official Warns.

Moving to prevent any breakdown in the nation's highway transportation system during the war, war department traffic officers yesterday opened a two day session at the Hotel Sherman to plan smooth highway operation. Army officers at the meeting warned that the problem of maintaining an adequate supply of trucks was becoming acute.

Col. Frederick C. Horner, chief of the highway division, transportation corps, Washington, D. C., outlined a proposal whereby much of the responsibility for maintaining vital war highway transportation is to be transferred to state and local officials. He explained that the objective is to decentralize control away from Washington and place it where action can be taken quickly.

Urges Saving of Trucks.

Col. Horner said the nation must conserve both its trucks and its highways. It is essential, he explained, that every possible truck mile be saved so as to save wear and tear on equipment. He advocated "preventive maintenance" of trucks in order to prevent breakdowns which are costly both in money and time.

Heretofore a war production board requirement has been that in order to obtain a new replacement truck part the old part had to be turned in. Col. Horner said he is trying to work out an arrangement whereby a part showing signs of wear may be replaced without immobilizing the truck while the part is being exchanged.

State Standard Favored.

Reports have been received of damage to highways from trucks that are too heavily loaded. In general, he said, the transportation division supports the program of the American Association of State Highways, which limits loads to 18,000 pounds an axle.

Col. Dan A. Hardt, in command of the 6th transportation zone office, told the meeting that his office is ready to coöperate in settling highway problems, but still is confronted by numerous difficulties. Among these, he said, are highway barriers, which hinder the war, such as lack of reciprocity between states.

ICC DISPUTES PLEA TO REOPEN N. W. HEARINGS

The interstate commerce commission yesterday moved to dismiss a suit filed by the Chicago and North Western railway July 1 in which the railroad sought reopening of reorganization hearings. In an answer filed in federal district court, the commission contended the court had no jurisdiction.

New Chicago Plant

many good jobs are still open in various skills and trades where you can get ahead and go places with DOUGLAS.

Don't let any one tell you that this great, new CHICAGO PLANT is merely an assembly branch. This is not true. We build the famous C-54 complete—the giant DOUGLAS SKYMASTER. We perform every operation in building planes ready-to-fly from here to far battle areas. From raw materials all the way thru our own tooling and thru every variety of machining operation, no other plant in the entire aircraft field is any more self-sufficient. Just one of our big buildings, alone, is almost three-quarters of a mile long under one roof. DOUGLAS employes say, "A swell place for all of us to work!"

Everything here is fine and new, each individual works with new, up-to-the-minute equipment and with company furnished tools. Eating facilities are tops. No other job will afford you any greater degree of pleasure along with profit. The essentiality of aircraft means we have materials for full time work, with time and a half pay for overtime above 40 hours per week. You may have group life insurance, health and accident insurance and hospitalization at low cost. And you will have the deep satisfaction of participating DIRECTLY in war effort, seeing YOUR planes fly from here to our fighting men to win VICTORY quicker.
